Love Of Farming Guides Outstanding Farm Family

TOPTON (Berks Co.) — Managing a family owned-and-operated dairy farm requires the cooperation of all members.

The Schantz family of Show Top Farms, Inc., knows well the value of cooperation and working together to managing the farm — an element essential to success on both the farm and the family's many activities.

The family will be honored at Reading Fair's 47th annual Outstanding Farm Family Awards Banquet Wednesday, July 25 at 7 p.m. at Virginville Grange Hall.

Farm chores are evenly divided between the Schantz family, David's family, and a full-time employee. "Everybody has their responsibilities," said Kathy. Although the children help with many aspects of the farm, mostly Megan helps take care of the cows while the boys, who enjoy driving the tractor, work in the field.

David, Kathy, and the children farm in partnership with David's parents, Burd and Joyce Schantz. The dairy phase of the farm began when Burd, at age 11, bought his first registered cow to put on the family's chicken farm. His son, David, was raised on the farm and worked there all of his adult life. After David met Kathy at a Grange dance and the couple married, they built a home near the farm.

The Schantz children are the third generation of dairy farmers and plan to continue the dairy farming heritage.

"We were brought up on it," explained Megan.

"We really like our cows," said Kathy, who, although her grandparents were farmers, did not grow up on a farm. "'My boys are just like their dad — they like being outside, being in the field, working the ground."

The Schantzs hope to expand their farm to support the three children who hope to stay connected to farming life in the future. Megan attends the vocational agriculture program at Kutztown High School to learn veterinary science, horticulture, and agriculture technology. "I want to stay on the farm, so that will help me get ag-related experience," said Megan.

"The kids all want to come back and help on the family business," said Kathy.

The new addition to the existing barn created a unique "L" shape. Each of the four people who are milking takes a section of the tiestall barn.

David and Kathy Schantz and their three children will be awarded the 2001 Reading Fair Outstanding Farm Family distinction next Wednesday evening at the Reading Fair's Annual Banquet at the Virginville Grange. The family farms 505 acres and milk more than 160 registered Holsteins. With David and Kathy are children Nathan, 8, Matthew, 13, and Megan, 15. Photo by Michelle Ranck

Doyle Paul, left, accepts award for 36 years of outstanding service as an agriculture teacher at Berlin Brothersvalley High School in Somerset County. Presenting the plaque is LeRoy Dreibelbis, president of the Pennsylvania Association of Agricultural Educators.

Teachers, Young Farmers Gather To Learn

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Through 36 years of teaching agriculture to Pennsylvania high school students, Doyle Paul has seen some major changes — both in agriculture and in the educational system.

In the early years of his career, most of Paul's students at Berlin Brothersvalley High School in Somerset County came from working farms. The students "could actually take the information (learned in class) and use it right away," he said.

Today only about half of the students in his ag classes are from farms — in a distinctly rural school district. Paul said that teachers now must offer "a meaningful ag experience" to diverse students who might choose from a wide range of ag-

From Eggs To Layers: Chicks Hatched In Elizabethtown

ELIZABETHTOWN (Lancaster Co.) — The egg is back.

After a decline in demand in the '80s, recent studies which shed more light on cholesterol increased consumer confidence and demand.

Two major hatcheries, Hy-Line International, a layer hatchery, and Longenecker Hatchery, are located here in Lancaster County. Each facility fulfills a different market in the chicken industry.

According to Bob Kreider, regional manager of Hy-Line International, "egg demand has increased after an all-time low in the '80s because of the cholesterol issue," he said. Recent studies by the egg nutrition center and private studies that show no relation between dietary cholesterol and blood level cholesterol.

On the production end, Iowa is first in layer numbers, followed by Ohio, California, and Pennsylvania, said Kreider. "Pennsylvania has always, since records have been kept, been in the top five as an egg-producing state," he said.

The company was founded in 1936 by Henry Wallace, Iowa, who also started Pioneer Seed Company.

The Elizabethtown facility, one of seven of the company's locations, has a ready market. Approximately 44 million layers are found in Pennsylvania, New York, and parts of Canada, the area serviced by Hy-Line's Elizabethtown branch. The facility has an annual pullet chick capacity of 20 million and markets three strains of chickens that produce varying sizes of eggs or a brown egg.

The company is also in the fertilized egg business, as they incubate the eggs for 10 days for laboratories which need the eggs for the human influenza vac-

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was fair to moderate as dealers cautiously assessed needs approaching the weekend. Offerings of bone-in breasts were fully adequate to available, but not as burdensome as in earlier week trading. Boneless-skinless breasts ranged adequate to fully adequate.

Wings were fully sufficient. Dark meat lines were at least adequate. Retail and distributive movement was fair to fairly good at times, best where retail promotions were gearing up. The market tone was cautiously steady to instances weak on bone-in breasts, no better than steady on boneless-skinless breasts, about steady on the balance of parts.

10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. (Rain or Shine)
HOLTWOOD, PA, LANCASTER COUNTY

"Beyond Conservation, Exploring the Soil Food Web"

Learn about the latest farming practices, technology and equipment This field day is designed to be interactive-no long speeches! Attendees will have ample opportunity to ask the experts questions one on one.

- Andrew Sharpley, USDA-ARS (State College, PA) will demonstrate the rainfall simulator to determine soil erosion rates and phosphorus runoff Sharpley will also discuss the region's excess phosphorous issue and how research is determining ways to manage it
- Don Reicosky, USDA-ARS (Morris, MN) will present information on how tillage affects soil organic matter and carbon sequestration, which is becoming a national political issue
- Mark Goodson, PSU Extension, will demonstrate the dynamics of living organisms in this year's soil pit Goodson will discuss how the roles of these living organisms interact.
- Dana Ashord, USDA/ARS (Auborn, AL) Cover Crop Rolling Researcher
- Ken Hargesheimer, (Lubbock, TX) Small Scale Organic No-Till and Equipment
- Ioan Paltineanu, Paltin Intl (Laurel, MD) Real-Time Soil Moisture monitoring for irrigation management

Other experts and over 30 exhibitors will also be on hand.

NEW THIS YEAR!

Unveiling of a unique pilot project that utilizes wireless remote control helicopters and parafoils to shoot images of crops, fields and farms This aerial video photography can be used to detect the specific location of crop stress, insect infestations and nutrient deficiencies It will enable farmers to treat affected areas, rather than the entire field Bolar Heli Systems (Allentown, PA) and Nutrient Solutions in Agriculture, Inc (Palmyra, PA) will conduct this exciting demonstration

FOOD!
Mouth watering sweet corn, watermelon, cantaloupe, homemade ice cream and other refreshments will be available for purchase.

FOR THE KIDS
Children won't want to miss an educational adventure with local naturalist Chotty Sprenkle, as she takes them on a stream exploration Kids can also crawl through an earthworm tunnel and assemble soil tubes to create a soil profile Children should bring appropriate footwear and clothing

The OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC THIS WEEK WITH

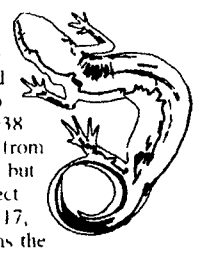
NEW MOON, JULY 20

HISTORICAL WRONG TURNS

The birth of "gerrymandering," the takeoff of "Wrong Way Corrigan," a good-bye to Ty and the end to nickel-and-diming all share July 17 anniversaries. Elbridge Gerry, born July 17, 1744, gave his name to gerrymandering (trying to manipulate an electoral area) when he created a salamander-shaped district to favor his party. On July 17, 1938, pilot Douglas Corrigan took off from New York headed for California, but ended up a day later in an unexpected destination—Ireland. On July 17, 1961, Ty Cobb, known to many as the greatest baseball player ever, died of cancer. In 1997, Woolworth's announced that it was closing its 400 five and dime stores, ending a 117 year American tradition.



In order to become the master, the politician becomes the servant.

–Charles De Gaulle (1890–1970)

TIP OF THE WEEK

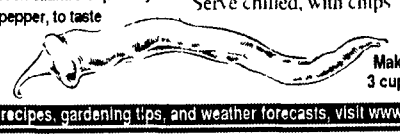
GREEN-TOMATO SALSA

1 red pepper, seeded and roasted
2 jalapeño peppers, seeded and roasted
4 or 5 large green tomatoes
2 small onions, chopped
3 cloves garlic
1 teaspoon sugar
1 teaspoon cumin
1 2 cup fresh cilantro or parsley
salt and pepper, to taste

Blacken seeded peppers and jalapeños on a grill or under the broiler, turning until skins can be peeled. Combine all ingredients and chop coarsely. Season to taste, then refrigerate for at least 3 hours. Serve chilled, with chips.



Makes 3 cups

OPINION

A Much-Anticipated Expansion

Last week we reported about the expansion plans for the Harrisburg Farm Show Complex.

The commission did an extraordinarily great job of putting together a plan that is solid and will easily benefit all who exhibit at and visit the Farm Show.

So hats off to a bigger and better show complex, one with more room and that is environmentally controlled (does that mean no more "Farm Show" colds?), with easy transportation to and from events, and with a bigger and better exhibit hall.

We have, however, a couple of caveats that we hate to use in any way to mar an otherwise perfect plan.

One, the complex is in vast need of a major hotel almost at the doorstop. When those "Farm Show Week" snows hit, it would be nice to be within walking distance of a large hotel, or any hotel, for that matter.

Two, the complex could really use an adjacent aboveground parking garage. Perhaps, in the foreseeable future, if a multistory garage would be present, maybe connected to the proposed "spine" of the complex, a lot of visitors and exhibitors would be pleased.

But all in all, the plan is solid and A-plus. We're so happy to report some good news every once in a while. Way to go!

To Prevent Haymow Fires

The best way to prevent haymow fires is to make sure the hay is dry enough before baling. Sometimes, however, the weather may tempt you to bale hay wetter than you should or you may discover after the crop is in the mow that it was wetter than you thought.

Bob Anderson, agronomy agent in Lancaster, gives the following tips on monitoring the hay in your barn.

All hay should be checked about 4 to 5 days after it is baled. Temperatures up to 120 degrees are fairly typical and this is considered normal sweating. Most hay baled at 15 to 20 percent moisture will reach these temperatures.

Generally hay at this temperature will not have a serious problem with quality losses but could have some mold and mustiness. At a temperature of 120 degrees you should be able to hold your hand or arm against the hay for 30 seconds. If you cannot keep your arm against the hay that long, it's time to get a thermometer and find out what the temperature really is.

Temperatures between 120 and 150 degrees will cause protein and fiber to become less digestible. This hay may caramelize, giving it a strong sweet smell. Hay at this temperature should be stored in a manner that will allow the heat to dissipate from the stack. When the stack is large, it is a good idea to rearrange the stack to allow good air movement and cooling.

When temperatures are between 135 and 160 degrees, hay requires constant monitoring to make sure that temperatures do not continue to rise. When temperatures reach 160 degrees, hay should be checked every 4 hours.

When temperatures reach 195 degrees, spontaneous combustion is possible. Hay should be removed from storage buildings before this temperature is reached.

To Apply For Century Farm Designation

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture is accepting applications for the Century Farm Program.

To qualify, the farm must be owned by the same family for 100 consecutive years to the date of the application. A family member must live on the farm on a permanent basis. Additionally the farm must consist of at least 10 acres of the original holdings or gross more than $1,000 annually from the sale of farm products. This program honors the family farm and the rural traditions of Pennsylvania that are important for the continued growth of the commonwealth.

For applicants in Lancaster County, information about the program, applications, and assistance in filling out the application may be obtained from the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension, (717) 394-6851. Century Farm nominees from Lancaster County whose applications are processed by Sept. 21 will be honored at the Lancaster County Farm-City Ag Chamber Banquet Nov. 5.

For Century Farm Applicants in other counties, applications and assistance can be obtained directly from the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture at (717) 787-5085.

To Use A New Department Name

To better reflect the scope of its work, the agronomy department in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences changed its name to the Department of Crop and Soil Sciences July 1.

According to A. J. Turgeon, interim department head, the title was changed after extensive consultation with faculty, alumni, and agricultural industry professionals.

"We made the change for the sake of clarity," Turgeon said. "Agronomy has always been about crop production and soil resources, but it is an older term that a lot of people aren't familiar with. Many other departments changed their name for the same reason.

"Our research and extension activities in production agriculture, environmental stewardship, and land use policy won't change. Our faculty have actively researched and trained graduate students in these areas for years. But, acknowledging soil science in our department name should enhance our ability to attract the best students.

"Soil is the fundamental medium that supports all of mankind's activities,' said Turgeon. "We grow our food in soil, build our buildings on it, play on it and dispose of our wastes in it. We will continue to conduct research and teach in areas important to the agriculture sector and all the citizens of the commonwealth."

Quote of the Week:

"You cannot help men permanently by doing for them what they could and should do for themselves."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

WHY LOVE HURTS

Background Scripture:
Hosea 11.
Devotional Reading:
Psalms 103:8-14.

Pain almost always accompanies love. Some people choose not to let themselves love so that they will not experience its pain. Others keep themselves from loving too much so that their pain may be minimized. Yet it is inescapably evident that, if we will not risk pain, we will not know love — and to miss love is much worse than escaping pain.

We see this demonstrated in both the divine and human planes of love. God had every reason in the world to stop loving Israel because they rejected his love. Hosea masterfully compares God's love for them and for us with the grace-filled love of a parent for a child. "When Israel was a child, I loved him, and out of Egypt I called my son. The more I called them, the more they went from me" (11:1,2).

Anyone who is or has been a parent can understand what God is saying through Hosea. True love is given as a gift, not reward. Parents give love not because they are assured of getting love back, but because it is in the nature of love to give without guarantee — even though the children may not recognize and respond to it.

No Guarantee

There is no guarantee in loving that the one to whom we give our love will respond to us with love.

If you expect to receive back the love you give, what you are giving is not love. It is not the love that the parent God gives his children: "Yet it was I who taught Ephraim (Israel) to walk, I took them up in my arms; but they didn't know that I healed them. I led them with cords of compassion . . . and I bent down to them and fed them" (11:3,4). No child can fully know or appreciate the love of parents. So it is with us and God.

We hope our children will respond to us with love and gratitude, but it is not part of the contract. We may find that our children fail to respond, just as God finds us failing to respond to him: "My people are bent on turning away from me; so they are appointed to the yoke, and none shall remove it" (11:7) — except the Lord himself.

The consequence we bring upon ourselves in rejecting the Lord's love is misery we bring upon ourselves. It is our bent in turning away from the Lord — whether or not we recognize it — that is our own undoing. We sell ourselves into captivity: "They shall return to the land of Egypt (where they had been slaves), and Assyria shall be their king, because they have refused to return to me" (11:5).

Good Grief!

No matter how often or far we run from God, it is his love for us that offers us a way back. "How can I give you up, O Ephraim! How can I hand you over, O Israel! . . . My heart recoils within me, my compassion grows warm and tender" (11:8).

God grieves over the loss of us and that grief is more powerful than his anger. Mortal parents may say, "Go and never come back," but God says: "I will not execute my fierce anger, I will not again destroy Ephraim; for I am God and not man . . . and I will not come to destroy" (11:9).

So Hosea tells us that God grieves over our conscious or unconscious rejection of him. He promises us that God never stops loving us and always, like the Prodigal Son's father, holds open the door for our return — and, in fact, comes out and looks for us. Furthermore, if God's love for us surmounts the pain we cause him, so we are called to love others with the same open-door policy.

The very last we hear of Gomer is when God says to the prophet: "Go again, love a woman who is beloved of a paramour and is an adulteress; even as the Lord loves the people of Israel, though they turn to other gods . . ." (3:1). So Hosea puts aside the pain she has caused him and buys her out of servitude, once again bringing her home — just as God does with us and we are called to do with others.

Dairy PLUS

Booklet Features
Bonus Dairy Coverage
For Producers
Issue Date: Saturday, September 22
Deadline: August 31

Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus to reach out to more than 100,000 readers in Northeast and Mid-Atlantic

Booklet will feature bonus dairy news, information

As milk production reaches new heights, dairy producers are not only looking for the latest news on expansion of herd or facilities, but for ways to get the most out of their equipment dollar.

Lancaster Farming's Dairy Plus Booklet will focus on large-scale producers who either are looking toward herd expansion, constructing new facilities or farm renovation, or looking for other ways to market their milk.

Dairy Plus will feature news about dairying never before published in the Northeast's largest weekly farm newspaper. That includes the latest information on business partnering, nontraditional dairy marketing (including goat and sheep milk production, cheesemaking, and ice cream), and news from milk cooperatives and processors.

The booklet will include dairy farm features, additional DHIA information new to Lancaster Farming, business hirings and expansion, and regulatory news information.

A big part of the booklet will be news and information about nutrient management, a key issue with dairies.

Included in Dairy Plus will be columns about the latest in dairy management written by Penn State experts and a farm calendar of events.

Includes:

- Dairy Herd and Facility Expansion
- Dairy Farm Feature
- Penn State Dairy Management Team Report
- Nutrient Management Update
- Dairy Business News
- Dairy Calendar of Events
- Extensive DHIA Reports

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State

Nonfat Dry Milk
Prices Declining

- Nonfat dry milk prices decline 6 weeks.
- CME Grade AA butter drops to $1.76.
- Cheese market steady.

Western nonfat dry milk continues to flow into government storage as domestic market prices weaken. In fact, prices for Western nonfat dry milk have been declining for six weeks in a row.

USDA reports that the markets are awaiting the 2001-2002 Dairy Export Incentive Program (DEIP) allocations. Buyers are holding back to see how low prices will fall. Demand for nonfat dry milk, however, is reportedly good.

International prices are relatively high. Last week USDA reported that prices for nonfat dry milk in Australia/New Zealand were $0.9580 per pound. Domestic U.S. prices for nonfat dry milk, on the other hand, are falling because of the reduction in the CCC purchase prices.

Western nonfat dry milk this week averaged $0.9550. It appears that our domestic U.S. price has fallen to the world price. Despite this, USDA reports that about 10.4 million pounds of Western nonfat dry milk entered the dairy price support program for the week July 9-13.

The butter market also continues to weaken. This may be short-lived. Part of the decline may be due to surplus butter from the July 4 weekend. It may also be a result of reduced demand because of high retail prices. USDA reports churning activity is light as most cream is going toward the production of ice cream. Thus butter may be in a better supply-demand balance in the weeks ahead.

Demand for dairy products has been good so far this year. For the months January through April, commercial disappearance relative to a year ago has been as follows: butter down 5.0 percent, American cheese up 3.8 percent, other cheese up 3.3 percent, nonfat dry milk up a whopping 42 percent, and fluid milk products up 0.3 percent. Thus, a weaker U.S. economy with higher unemployment rates has not apparently put a dent in demand for dairy products.

The big unknown, of course, is what the milk supply will do the rest of the year. Will milk production per cow recover? Will producers find first lactation heifers to fill up their barns?

It is possible to see a recovery in the Northeast if forage conditions improve. It is less likely in other parts of the U.S. (Upper Midwest and Northwest) because of limited forage production and poor quality. Thus the recovery in milk production could be prolonged into next year despite a strong profit incentive to expand production.

The market is wagering that the milk supply will have a partial recovery by the fourth quarter of 2001. The CME futures markets as of July 13 report that the Class III price is expected to decline from $15.30 per CWT in July to $12.85 by December. This is still relatively high when one considers the average Class III price in 2000 was just $9.74 per CWT. The Class IV futures as of July 13 were $14.75 per CWT in July and declined to $13.05 by December.

Cleary the reduction in the CCC purchase price for nonfat dry milk is having a negative impact on the outlook for Class IV prices. This may be temporary, since nonfat dry milk is relatively tight on the global market.

Average Farm Feed Costs for Handy Reference

To help farmers across the state to have handy reference of commodity input costs in their feeding operations for DHIA record sheets or to develop livestock feed cost data, here's last week's average costs of various ingredients as compiled from regional reports across the state of Pennsylvania.

Remember, these are averages, so you will need to adjust your figures up or down according to your location and the quality of your crop.

National Dairy Shrine Names Student Recognition Contest Winners

Jewart, Lesher From Pennsylvania Recognized

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Jenny Kelsey of Canastota, N.Y., is the first place winner in the 2001 National Dairy Shrine student recognition contest. The annual contest is for graduating college seniors planning a career related to dairy-production agriculture who have demonstrated leadership skills, academic ability, and an interest in dairy cattle.

A Cornell University graduate with a degree in animal science, Kelsey has excelled in her activities. From the dairy judging team to the Cornell College of Agriculture and Life Science ambassador president, the organizational, communication and leadership skills Kelsey acquired have been a great asset to her career development.

Kelsey was raised on a Holstein farm in New York. Her experiences working with young stock led to her desire to do research on Holstein calves at Cornell. Her keen sense of nutrition and hands-on experience had led to her success. She will have articles published in the Journal of Dairy Science, with the results of her research efforts.

Kelsey will receive a $1,500 cash award at the National Dairy Shrine awards to be conducted on Oct. 4, at World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wis.

In second place and receiving $1,000 is Nancy Deutsch, a recent graduate of Cal Poly and now back home in Louisville where she plans to get her master's degree in agricultural economics at University of Kentucky. Nancy was selected as the outstanding agriculture major at Cal Poly before going to Washington, D.C. as a press and agriculture policy intern for U.S. Senator Mitch McConnell.

Third through ninth place winners named below will also be honored at the National Dairy Shrine Awards Banquet on Oct. 4 in Madison, Wis. and each will receive a $500 cash award.

Joy Lesher, Pitman, graduated from Delaware Valley College with a 3.9 grade point average and is heading for Kansas State University and Veterinary Medicine.

• Angela Geiger, Readsville, Wis., a recent graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Madison, was a valedictorian in high school and on the dean's list at the University of Wisconsin. She is now working on her master's degree in dairy science and milk quality at the same university.

• Kelly Smith, Walnut, Ill., is a graduate of the University of Illinois in animal science. She was co-chairman of the Midwest Regional ADSA-SAD convention. Her future plans include graduate school at Cornell University to study dairy nutrition.

• Michael Gunderson, Pearl City, Ill., also got his recent degree in agricultural and consumer economics from the University of Illinois. He, too, was on the Dean's List and received the 2001 University of Illinois Excellence in Leadership Award.

• Matthew Jewart, Home, has his dairy science degree from Penn State. His outstanding record as a collegiate judge has earned him the honor of helping teach judging at Penn State.

• Katie Dixon, Chestertown, Md., just received a degree in animal sciences from the University of Maryland. Katie is planning to obtain her master's degree in extension education and become a 4-H agent. She was named the outstanding senior in the College of Agriculture for 2001.

• Carla Ruzic, Hixton, Wis., recently earned her degree at the University of Wisconsin-River Falls. There she was an All-American judge and served as president of their dairy club.

For more information about the student recognition contest or other activities of the National Dairy Shrine, contact the shrine or visit them online at www.dairyshrine.org.

International Pasture Walk July 31 In Tioga County

WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) — An international pasture walk will be conducted by Penn State Cooperative Extension, Tioga County, and Tioga/Bradford grazing groups, July 31 from 10:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at the Don Chamberlain Farm, Mainesburg, Tioga County.

John Roche, internationally known pasture expert, will be the featured conductor. Born in Ireland, Roche graduated from Uni College Dublin and began working as a grassland/farm systems scientist in the National Centre for Dairy Production Research at Moorepark in southern Ireland.

Subsequently, Roche worked and studied in Australia, on pasture nutrition and bypass protein effects. Presently, he works for the New Zealand Dairying Research Corporation or DRC/Dexcel in Hamilton, New Zealand.

Directions to farm: Come east of Mansfield (Tioga County) on Route 6, travel three miles and look for the Penn State Cooperative Extension signs on the right. Follow signs to the farm.

Reservations are required for a lunch count. Call or e-mail your reservation to Tioga County Extension, (570) 724-9120; Fax (570) 724-6819 or e-mail jcw17@psu.edu.

Youth From Across The State To Participate In 4-H Achievement Days

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — More than 900 teens from across the state will participate in Penn State 4-H Achievement Days July 24-26 here at Penn State's University Park campus.

Penn State 4-H Achievement Days is an annual three-day educational program that gives 13- to 19-year-olds the opportunity to showcase their knowledge and achievements in a statewide competition. Top competitors get the opportunity to qualify for national events.

"There are 123,220 4-H members across the state, encompassing 4,610 clubs and activities," said Phil Hoy, youth program management coordinator in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. "All year they work with adult volunteers to become self-directed, productive, and contributing members of our diverse society.

"Achievement Days gives them a chance to test their skills and meet other youngsters from throughout Pennsylvania. They have experiences and make friends that will benefit them for the rest of their lives."

Twenty-four different contests will take place in such areas as physical fitness, orienteering, public speaking, livestock, dairy, and horse judging. "Canine Superbowl" contestants will test their dog know-how in a quiz bowl and skillathon. Regional finalists who created clothing in fashion projects will compete in a fashion review at 8 p.m. on July 25 at Eisenhower Auditorium on the University Park campus. The fashion show is free and open to the public.

For a brochure or more information, contact Phil Hoy by phone at (814) 863-7873 or by e-mail at phoy@psu.edu. Pennsylvania 4-H is coordinated by Penn State Cooperative Extension. More information on 4-H can be found on the World Wide Web at http://pa4h.cas.psu.edu.

Dairy Feeder's Training Workshops Announced

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Managing dairy feeding programs for optimum cow performance is critically important and merits special attention to improve cow performance and health. Penn State cooperative extension will be helping producers design and implement systems to manage and control feeding programs. Through a series of three hands-on workshops, dairy managers and feeders will receive a feeder's kit to help them achieve optimum performance from their dairy rations. The first two workshops will be conducted at the Lebanon County extension office Sept. 25 and Oct. 2 with the third session planned for Meadow Wood Farms near Lebanon on Oct. 9. Sessions run from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Penn State instructors will include: Tim Beck, Jud Heinrichs, Virginia Ishler, Dan McFarland, Richard Stup, and Gabriella Varga.

A feeder's kit will be provided for each farm enrolled and participants will receive instruction on how to effectively use each of the items in the kit during the sessions. The feeder's kit includes:

Optional items (must purchase or bring your own to workshop):
- Microwave oven (add $80).
- Digital gram scale (add $125).
- Particle size separator (add $160).

Included with $135 base registration fee:
- pH paper.
- Supply list to purchase additional items.
- Flour sifter to separate concentrate feeds.
- Sample pan.
- Calculator.
- TMR mix sheet spreadsheet.
- Dry matter history spreadsheet.
- Feed cost control spreadsheet.
- Three-ring binder with dairy feeding publications.
- "From Feed to Milk" videotape.
- Silage preservation videotape.
- CD including all materials in binder and software.

Participants should bring a sample of all ensiled forages and a TMR sample to the program. They will have the opportunity to practice measuring forage dry matter, pH and particle size. Measuring, plotting, and analyzing particle size data will also be featured.

During the second day's program, participants will examine NDF intake for their herds and demonstrate their understanding of this fiber management tool. A hands-on computer lab will feature two spreadsheets that will help managers and feeders monitor ration changes and help control TMR mixes. The afternoon segment will feature carbohydrate management in dairy rations.

The final session at Meadow Wood Farms will begin with instruction on silage sampling and pH assessment in ensiled forages. Feed bunk observations, including the particle size of the TMR, feed refusal, and cow observations will be featured. Feeding facility fundamentals will be taught including bunk issues and design, feeding area surfaces, and interactions of nutrition and dairy facilities, including air quality, temperature, cooling, cow comfort, and cud chewing time.

The fee for additional participants from the same farm is $40 per person to cover meal and refreshment costs. The program is limited to 10 farms so that individual assistance can be provided during the many hands-on activities planned. Registration is requested by Aug. 31. Full payment of the base registration fee on or before Aug. 31 entitles the farm to one free additional participant.

To register for the sessions, contact the customer service desk at the York extension office at 112 Pleasant Acres Road, York, PA 17402-9041. Please indicate if you will be purchasing the optional items at the time of registration. Telephone (717) 840-7408, Fax (717) 755-5968, or e-mail Tim Beck at tbeck@psu.edu.

Pa. Farm Bureau To Sponsor Web Conference On Biotechnology

CAMP HILL (Cumberland Co.) — Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, the state's largest general farming organization, will host a free one-hour web conference on biotechnology and animal health, Friday, Aug. 10, from noon to 1 p.m. The program is designed to answer the concerns of farmers. This will be a live, interactive program, during which you will be able to submit questions via phone, fax or e-mail.

Topics to be discussed are: The Latest Advances Regarding Biotech Products, Handling and Safety Concerns, Protecting Your Animals and Farms from Disease.

Here's what you need in advance of the program:

1. A computer with internet capability and speakers.

2. Real Player — this is software to view the video (download from the link on Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's Website — www.pfb.com).

3. To preregister for the conference, go to www.pfb.com. After registering, you will receive log-on instructions and a password to access the program on Aug. 10, via e-mail.

Public Auction To Raise Funds For Horticultural Education

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The public is invited to attend an auction of plants and related products on Thursday, July 26 at the Fort Washington Expo Center, Fort Washington.

The auction, held in conjunction with the Penn Allied Nursery Trade Show (PANTS), benefits the Pennsylvania Foundation for Ornamental Horticulture (PFOH), a nonprofit foundation that grants educational scholarships.

This year, more than 600 companies will exhibit the latest green products at the trade show. Many of those companies donate the material from their booths for the auction. The auction, held the last day of the show, provides an opportunity for the public to purchase unique plants at bargain prices.

The auction begins at 6 p.m. All items purchases are cash and carry and must be removed from the premises by 11 p.m. that evening. Master Card and Visa will be accepted.

PFOH was established by the Pennsylvania Landscape and Nursery Association (PLNA) to provide resources to encourage research, reward scholarship and promote the values and the benefits of ornamental horticulture.

For more information about the foundation or the auction, visit PLNA's Website at www.plna.com and link to the Penn Allied Nursery Trade Show or call the PLNA office at (717) 238-1673.

DAIRY OF DISTINCTION TO HONOR FARMS

Lancaster Farming's Dairy of Distinction Section, which honors those farms that help create a positive image of milk production, is scheduled to appear July 28.

Dairy farms are judged by district committees who evaluate dairy farms on general appearance and neatness. To date, more than 700 Pennsylvania farms have received recognition!

Read about the many new honorees in our special supplement July 28.

Pa. Receives USDA Renewal For Pseudorabies-Free Status

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — On Thursday, Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Samuel E. Hayes Jr. announced that the state has received "Pseudorabies-Free State" certification from the USDA for the second straight year.

"Annual renewal of this hard-won status isn't automatic and requires an annual reaffirmation of the Department of Agriculture's commitment to minimizing the threat of pseudorabies in Pennsylvania," Hayes said. "This recertification is a tribute to the Pennsylvania swine industry's ongoing commitment to remain free of this serious disease."

Pennsylvania initially achieved Stage V (free) status in the State-Federal-Industry Pseudorabies Eradication Program in June 2000. This designation was the result of a coordinated effort by the state Department of Agriculture, federal USDA-Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service personnel, veterinary practitioners, and Pennsylvania swine producers.

The designation allows Pennsylvania's swine industry to send swine without testing to any state in the nation.

To assure Pennsylvania's disease-free status, the Department of Agriculture is required to increase oversight of finishing floors at swine operations. With the support of local pork industry groups, this testing will be accomplished by the random collection of blood from market pigs at slaughter. In the event of a positive blood sample, follow-up testing will be conducted at the farm.

For more information or questions about Pennsylvania's Pseudorabies program, contact Dr. Phil DeBok at the Department of Agriculture at (717) 783-8300.

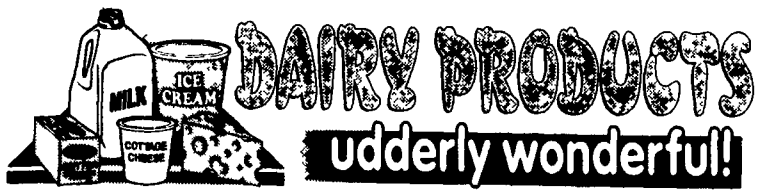
Land O'Lakes Applauds WTO Ruling Against Canada Export Subsidies

ARDEN HILLS, Minn. — Land O'Lakes, Inc., a leading marketer of U.S. dairy products and a cooperative representing 5,000 dairy farm families, commends the Office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR) on its role in pursuing the World Trade Organization (WTO) ruling against Canada's new dairy export subsidies.

The ruling found that Canada has been improperly subsidizing its dairy exports, creating an unfair advantage for Canadians over U.S. farmers and dairy processors in world markets. According to the USTR, these subsidies result in up to $35 million per year of lost sales by American farmers and processors.

"The ruling reinforces the message that Canada must comply with the conditions of existing fair trade agreements," said Nelson Habecker, a dairy farmer from Lancaster, and secretary of Land O'Lakes Policies and Resolutions Committee. "Land O'Lakes applauds the U.S. dairy trade organizations that pushed for this ruling and are continuously working to achieve fair trade in the world dairy market."



According to Habecker, this U.S. victory shows that the negotiating process works. "That's why it's important that the U.S. dairy industry supports continued trade negotiations," he said. "We may not always agree with every detail of a trade agreement. But the process does help improve the environment for world trade."

One way to expedite trade negotiations is through passage of legislation granting President George W. Bush Trade Promotion Authority (also referred to as "fast track" negotiating authority). Land O'Lakes members support the Administration's request for Trade Promotion Authority, which President Bush has said is essential for the U.S. to effectively participate in a new round of world trade negotiations.

"We commend the Bush Administration on its diligence to see this trade dispute through to a successful conclusion," said Habecker. "However, the Administration needs to recognize that other important trade issues affecting U.S. dairy farmers also require attention."

One of those issues is closing a loophole in current trade rules that allows some U.S. trading partners to ship unregulated quantities of milk protein concentrate (MPC) into the U.S. "The unregulated MPC is disrupting our domestic market for nonfat dry milk," said Habecker. "We urge the Administration to support legislation in the House and Senate to close that loophole."

Habecker and other Land O'Lakes grassroots leaders work through organizations such as the National Milk Producers Federation and the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives to show legislators the role that the U.S. dairy industry plays in our economy and the need for them to support legislation benefiting U.S. farmers.

Land O'Lakes, Inc., supports the efforts of these organizations and USTR to negotiate for fair trade benefiting the U.S. dairy export market. "The WTO ruling shows that these efforts are paying off," said Habecker. "As a dairy producer, I appreciate their efforts, which will enhance our industry's ability to compete long-term in the world trade market."

Junior Simmental Associations Meet In Maryland For Simmental Field Days

WHITEHALL, Md. — More than 100 Simmental breeders and their families from Pennsylvania and Maryland met at Pond View Farm of Ricky and Debbie Smithson near Whitehall, Md., July 6 and 7. The Simmental Field Days event is a summer tradition for the two family-oriented organizations of Simmental breeders.

Youngsters and young adults showed 60 Simmental females and steers. Every contestant went home a winner with prize winnings donated by sponsors and the parent organizations.

Doug Parke of Paris, Ky., a prominent Simmental sales figure and head of Parke Livestock, served as judge for the junior association contests and the 60 Simmental heifers, steers, and cow/calf that competed.

Two sibling pairs won the showmanship classes: Luke and Ben Phipps of Maryland, and Tim and Cassandra Schaeffer of Lebanon County.

Shane Smithson of Maryland and Katlyn Tice of Tioga County won the champion and reserve champion steers. Luke Phipps, Tiffany Morgan, Alicia Morgan, and Ashley Morgan of Huntingdon County placed second or third in the steer competition classes.

Smithson also won the cow/calf competition with a Simme Valley (NY) combination. Brandon Herman of Snyder County took reserve in the category with Becky Dausch of Maryland and Emily Whitmoyer coming in second.

Luke Phipps of Maryland and Tim Schaeffer of Lebanon County took grand and reserve champion female honors with a traditional and a black Simmental, respectively. Division champion and reserve champions included: Alicia Morgan and Ashley Morgan of Huntingdon County; Becky Dausch and Melissa Mcutt of Holly Phipps and Shane Smithson of Maryland; Melissa McNutt and Kevin Bishop of New Jersey; Luke Phipps and Tim Schaeffer; and Cassie Schaeffer and John Rembold Jr.

Parke told the young people that they were fortunate to have parents who spent so much time with them with their cattle. He also noted that the quality of animals and the degree of showmanship compared very highly with what he has seen around the country.

Each state association board of directors took the opportunity to meet during the two-day event, planning such things as future purebred Simmental sales schedules and advertising plans. It was noted by members and directors that interest in Simmental genetics continues to increase among commercial cattlemen who wish to add growth and docility to their herds.

Experiments On Summer Annuals Highlights Grazing Walk

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — On July 26, Wilson and Randy Balthaser will open their farm to those interested in grazing. The program will be at 6:30 p.m.

Highlights include:

• Demonstration farm with 14 acres of summer annuals. Three different varieties of sorghum sudangrass, soybeans, and millet.

• Issues for sophomore year graziers.

• Cost sharing through Tulpehocken Watershed program.

• Demonstration farm of five acres of winter annuals including small grain and ryegrasses in fall, 2000 and spring, 2001. Results of dry matter production, nutrient content, and palatability.

The farm has a herd of 100 Holstein and Brown Swiss. The home farm has 45 acres in grazing. Two other farms include dry cows and heifers with 20 acres each for grazing.

Directions: Follow Route 183 to the Penn-Bernville School (north side of Bernville). Turn right on the Bernville Shartlesville Road. Travel about three miles to farm on the right. Watch for Northkill Creek Farm Sign. Farm telephone is (610) 488-6865. Refreshments will be provided.

For more information, contact Mena Hautau or Clyde Myers, extension agents, Penn State Cooperative Extension-Berks County, Berks County Ag Center, P.O. Box 520, Leesport, PA 19533, (610) 378-1327 or fax (610) 378-7961.

World Trade Organization Rules Against Canadian Milk Pricing

ALBANY, N.Y. — The World Trade Organization recently announced that revised Canadian dairy export practices are not in compliance with an earlier WTO ruling that found that Canada's special milk classes system constitutes an illegal export subsidy.

In October 1999, a WTO dispute settlement panel found that Canada's special milk classes system for dairy products violated WTO rules. Under that system, Canadian government prices for milk used in processed dairy products for exports were fixed at a much lower level than milk destined for the Canadian market, with the end result that exporters of processed goods were able to sell their products abroad at world market prices. Earnings from the exports were then pooled with returns from domestic sales and shared among Canadian milk producers.

"We are very encouraged by this ruling," said John W. Lincoln, president of New York Farm Bureau. "Traditionally Canada has not lived up to the market access and export subsidy provisions contained in the 1995 WTO agreement. This is a step in the right direction to achieving fair trade."

In response to the earlier ruling, Canada replaced its special milk class system with a new dairy export program in each province. The new provincial system, however, maintained the same practices that the WTO had determined were illegal export subsidies.

Canada is expected to appeal the WTO ruling. If the U.S. prevails on appeal, which should be issued in late 2001, then compensation or retaliation will be authorized.

THE BOTANY OF DESIRE, by Michael Pollan. Random House, 2001, 286 pp., $24.95. ISBN 0-375-50129-0

In what ways have we changed the very nature of plants? In what ways have they changed us?

Those two basic questions are introduced early and often throughout BOTANY, subtitled, appropriately, "A plant's-eye view of the world."

Author Michael Pollan notes, in his introduction, that "the seeds of this book were first planted in my garden — while I was planting seeds, as a matter of fact. Sowing seed is pleasant, desultory, not terribly challenging work; there's plenty of space left over for thinking about other things while you're doing it. On this particular May afternoon . . . I found myself thinking . . . . what existential difference is there between the human being's role in this (or any) garden and the bumblebee's?"

The bee picks up and scatters pollen, thereby creating new varieties of life for flowers and vegetables. The human task, one that has been ongoing for centuries, is similar: we select and adopt new cultivars for color, or sweetness, or pest resistance, or for thousands of traits that we've come to like.

And the plants have followed along quite nicely because, like domesticated livestock, their survival is entwined with ours.

Pollan notes, "we have spent the last few thousand years remaking these species through artificial selection, transforming a tiny, toxic root node into a fat, nourishing potato and a short, unprepossessing wildflower into a tall, ravishing tulip. What is much less obvious, at least to us, is that these plants have, at the same time, been going about the business of remaking us."

To prove his point, Pollan takes readers on an emotionally and mentally involving journey to several places, including the many homesteads of Johnny Appleseed (John Chapman) in his voyages to spread apple genetics throughout the Ohio River Valley and beyond. Pollan even recounts his own trips to an orchard expressly planted with wild apples in upstate New York, bringing back samples of wild apples to his own garden, to see what genetic magic they can make with his own fruit trees.

Pollan focuses on the vital need for genetic diversity in the garden — in fact, for agriculture in general. Monocultures can perhaps be too much of a technological challenge, he asserts, with humankind relying more on genetic technology to combat plant challenges.

But agriculture is a chiefly and uniquely human enterprise. On page 186, Pollan notes: "One theory of the origins of agriculture holds that domesticated plants first emerged on dump heaps, where the discarded seeds of the wild plants that people gathered and ate — already unconsciously selected for sweetness or size or power -- took root, flourished, and eventually hybridized. In time, people gave the best of these hybrids a place in the garden, and there, together, the people and the plants embarked on a series of experiments in co-evolution that would change them both forever."

Pollan looks not only at apples, but at the Dutch tulip mania that gripped Holland between 1634-1637; about the illegal growing of plants and humankind's strange obsession with plant contraband; and tops the whole book off with a history of the world's obsession with potatoes, and how one Ireland famine rivaled the Black Plague in devastation.

But Pollan, when writing about potatoes, also compares the genetic breakthroughs made to give plant's internal resistance to pests. The remarkable technology could be a bold, forward leap — an advance so great, who knows what this will lead to in human agricultural endeavor?

BOTANY OF DESIRE is a landmark book for those fascinated with the history of our obsessions over gardens; over the beautiful connection we have with the garden, with the earth, and agriculture; and about our own striving for ultimate technological control on our planet.

Two State Golf Tournaments To Benefit FFA Foundation

STATE COLLEGE (Centre Co.) — Because of overwhelming support, the Pennsylvania FFA Foundation has planned two separate Hoss's Fore FFA golf tournaments this year.

The first event is the Hatfield Fore East tournament Monday, July 23. As in the past, it will be based at the Foxchase course near Denver.

The nearby Galen Hall golf course will also be used to accommodate as many golfers as possible. Last year both courses were filled with a total capacity of 288 entries. Golfers are assigned to a course in the order that registrations are received.

The second golf tournament, the Hoss's Fore FFA West tournament, is scheduled for Aug. 13 at Scotch Valley Country Club in Hollidaysburg, Blair County.

Hosting the golf tournament is a notable addition to the impressive list of Hoss's and the Campbell family's efforts to support youth programs, especially livestock. The restaurant chain has purchased the Farm Show grand champion steer for several years and thus is a very strong supporter of the Farm Show Scholarship Fund.

The Hoss's Fore FFA West FFA tournament is being conducted at a golf course near their home base in Duncansville. No more than 144 entries can be accepted. Entries are accepted in the order they are received.

To participate, the charge for either tournament is $100 per person, a large part of which goes to the FFA organization. Plus the charge includes a round of golf with cart, a complimentary mulligan, shotgun scramble, refreshments along the course, lunch, complimentary "Happy Hour," and dinner.

At the evening dinner, awards will be presented and a special auction is planned. Prizes will be awarded in team and individual contest categories. Registration begins at 10:30 a.m. for both events.

Sponsorship categories include Grand Champion, Hole in One Contest, Show Champion Sponsor, Driving Range Sponsor, 19th Hole Sponsor, Refreshment Station, Par Three Contest, Putting Contest or Longest Drive Contest, Hole Sponsor and Team Awards Sponsor.

Hatfield Quality Meats and Hoss's Steak and Sea House are the major sponsors and hosts of the two FFA golf tournaments. Many agribusinesses join them in supporting the FFA by providing "a great day of golf."

For more information or to participate, contact The Pennsylvania FFA Foundation, Inc. at (814) 880-0013.

USDA Announces Grant To MDA And Howard County

COLUMBIA, Md. — The Maryland Department of Agriculture and the Howard County Economic Development Authority were recently awarded a $1,500 grant provided under the Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program to conduct a feasibility study for an on-line virtual community support agriculture (CSA) program to attract consumer subscriptions for local produce.

The feasibility study will collect information useful in gauging the interest that busy professionals working in the Columbia, Maryland area have in joining a virtual CSA to receive a weekly market basket delivered to a site close to their work. The survey will collect consumer preference for items to be included in the subscription baskets, the variety of items to include desired quantity and price of produce and the most desirable time of day for delivery and pick-up near the customers' workplace.

The grants provided under the Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program are used to improve marketing systems for food and agricultural products or to identify new market opportunities for farm products.

HEAT STRESS ON DRY COWS

Philip E. Wagner
Extension Agent — Dairy
Franklin County

As I write this article today, it is 92 degrees under blazing sunshine. A few hours ago I drove by an open pasture with a group of dry cows huddled in the middle of the field. I thought to myself, "Should we be spending time, effort, and dollars to cool dry cows like we do lactating cows?"

Dry cows are less affected by heat stress than are lactating cows because they do not have to deal with large amounts of heat produced because of milk production. However, they should not be overlooked, especially those animals in the late dry period. Research has shown that cooling dry cows helps get the next lactation off to a healthier start and increases milk production.

The dairy cow goes through many physiological changes during the dry period. These changes are related to continued growth of the fetus, reduction of dry matter intake during the end of gestation, and the initiation of lactation at parturition.

More than 60 percent of total fetal growth occurs during the last two months of gestation. This fetal growth causes a significant nutritional burden on the dry cow. To further complicate matters, there is a reduction in dry matter intake 5 to 7 days prior to calving. As much as 30 percent reduction in dry matter intake has been reported.

The late pregnant cow undergoes a series of complex metabolic changes as she approaches parturition. Add to this the effects of heat stress and you increase the chances of problems at calving time. Cow comfort is especially important for these mothers-to-be.

Milk production is related to birth weight of the calf. Cows giving birth to large calves give more milk in a lactation than cows giving birth to small calves. Heat stress during late pregnancy has been shown to reduce calf birth weight and postpartum milk yield of the dam. Research has shown that cows housed under shade during the last trimester of pregnancy gave birth to larger calves than cows with no access to shade and went on to produce more milk during the lactation. Numerous research trials have found that cooling dry cows with fans and sprinklers increased calf weights and 150-day milk weights when compared to control cows.

Dairy producers need to provide the basics of water, shade, airflow, and air exchange to help reduce heat stress. This is especially critical during the last trimester of pregnancy. Provide plenty of water at one or more locations depending on the size of the group. Remember, water intake per cow can double on hot summer days when compared to a winter day.

Philip E. Wagner

Make sure adequate natural or artificial shade is available. Although shades do not generally reduce ambient temperatures, they do decrease the heat load on cows by blocking solar radiation. Shaded cows have lower rectal temperatures and lower respiration rates. Providing 45-50 square feet of shade per cow is adequate to reduce solar radiation. For dry cows on pasture without access to natural shade, consideration should be given to constructing an artificial shade structure. To obtain plans, e-mail pew1@psu.edu or call (717) 263-9226.

Many dry cows are housed in bedded pack facilities. The design criteria is generally for 80-100 square feet of pack area per cow. If possible, aim to give each cow more "space" in the hot summer months to reduce heat stress. Aim for 100-150 square feet per cow.

So, what is the answer to my question at the beginning of this article? Research has shown many times that cooling the dry cow improves milk production and overall health. In Pennsylvania, we need to focus first on reducing heat stress in the lactating herd. Then we should focus our efforts on the dry cows, especially those animals in the last trimester of pregnancy.

Yes, dairy producers should be spending time, effort, and dollars to reduce heat stress on dry cows. Dr. Richard Adams, professor emeritus of dairy science at Penn State, said many times, "Take care of the dry cow and she will take care of you."

Alert Issued For Late Blight On Tomato and Potato Plants

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Late blight was confirmed on tomato seedlings in a southwestern Pennsylvania greenhouse during June. The Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association (PVGA) in a recent monthly newsletter issued a warning to all farmers to be alert for the fungus.

Penn State University plant pathologist Alan MacNab said, "At this time, although there is no proof, I suspect that the initial source of the inoculum was overwintered potatoes that were infected last season.

"Such potatoes could be seed potatoes, volunteer potatoes in fields and gardens where potatoes were grown last year, or potatoes discarded into cull or compost piles. When infected potatoes produce new growth, the late blight fungus can infect potato sprouts and leaves, and then when environmental conditions support fungus development (cool and wet), new fungus spores are produced on these plants. Although this indicates that growers in southwest Pennsylvania might be at greater risk, all farmers need to be alert that late blight could develop on tomato or potato plants not protected by fungicide."

Love Of Farming

Seventy-eight cows are milked to the pipeline system of the barn. The "L" shape requires that the family rotates the two batches, or strings, of cows.

They feed the animals that have been in the barn overnight, milk them, clean out the barn, re-bed the area, and bring in the next group to milk. These animals will stay in the barn during the day until they are milked at the afternoon milking and turned out to spend the evening in the pasture or freestall barn. The twice-a-day job requires about two hours for each milking.

Herd production average for the last three years is more than 22,000 pounds of milk, 835 pounds of fat, and 738 pounds of protein. Besides the 162 milking cows, the Schantzs have 160 of their own replacement heifers.

The Schantzs use AI breeding for the cows and live cover for their heifers. A registered bull from one of their top-producing cows in the herd is the cleanup bull. The bulls are replaced every 15-24 months.

The rolling hills of the Dairy of Distinction farm have long ago necessitated the family's conservation practices. Burd began techniques such as waterways, diversion terraces, and strip cropping to help hold the topsoil. They use conventional and minimum tillage in their fields.

Fair Competition

Late summer and fall is an exciting time for the family. Fair time is show time for the Schantz children, who exhibit animals at Oley, Kempton, Reading, and Kutztown fairs. They are involved in the Berks County 4-H Club, where Megan and Matthew are teen leaders, and show only 4-H animals.

Last year they walked away with junior and reserve champion honors at Oley Fair. This year they have gotten off to a good start by bringing blue ribbons home from the Kempton Fair.

In addition the extensive garden in the backyard yields produce, flowers, and fruits that are canned, frozen, arranged, and displayed by the Schantz family for fair competition each year. Also hay and grains from the fields are entered at area fairs. Megan's FFA project chickens yield eggs for local fairs.

Summertime vacations for the family are short respites in their pool and wintertime brings time for snowmobiling, another favorite activity.

Besides fair participation, other community involvement includes Kathy's storyboard demonstration that she gives to students about life on a dairy farm. Besides also giving demonstrations about farm life, Megan and Matthew can be found helping on the junior Holstein club's milk shake wagon at the Kutztown Fair.

The Outstanding Farm Family honor is awarded by the Grange. David has been involved in Grange all of his life, beginning with Junior Grange. He has served on Pioneer Grange No. 1777's finance committee since 1995. The children are junior members.

Also during the banquet two 4-H members and two FFA members will be honored for their accomplishments.

4-Her Taryn A Stein, Bernville, has been a very active member of the Leesport 4-H club and has served in leadership for the club for several years. She has also attend leadership conferences and State 4-H Days for the past two summers in the Fashion Revue. She has also been a member of the Planning Committee for 4-H Capital Days.

A 9-year 4-H member, James C. Kauffman, Laureldale, has focused on the 4-H rabbit and reptile projects besides taking food and nutrition projects with the Leesport 4-H club. He has served in leadership positions in the rabbit and reptile club. A delegate to National 4-H Congress in 2001, he has also participated in 4-H contests.

FFA member Amy Moyer, chapter president this year, placed 8th out of 77 contestants at FFA Activities Week this year in Dairy Cattle Judging. She was recently selected as the Lebanon County Dairy princess. Additionally she was a Teaching Lab Assistant (TLA) at Conrad Wiser High School this year in the Agriculture Department. Her career plans including taking a place in the dairy industry as a producer, fitter/showman or professional.

Angie Lengel, Elverson, served as president of the FFA Twin Valley chapter this year and has served as treasurer and sentinel. She has been involved in Food for America programs, pet therapy at the retirement community, and creed speaking, besides helping organize and participated in contests and recreational activities for the organization.

The Reading Fair is scheduled Aug. 6-11 at the new Reading Fairgrounds near Leesport.

Nathan is quickly learning the ways of the farm and is already beginning to help milk the cows and help in the field.

Matthew enjoys spending his summer days in the fields and barns of the farm.

Emphasis On Genetics

"The product sold to customers is a combination of four families," said Kreider. The chicks come from Iowa, which has the pure strains to make the "AB" males and "CD" females, selected for feed efficiency, egg quality, and disease resistance.

These chicks are then combined to produce the "ABCD" line sold with the genetic potential of all four lines. "We're always testing different kinds of crosses," said Kreider.

The AB and CD chicks — "parent stock" — are shipped to contracted farms when they are one day old to become the breeding flocks for Hy-Line. They are raised by contracted farmers to 20 weeks old, when they are old enough to lay eggs.

In the breeding houses, a one-to-10 ratio of roosters to hens ensures fertilized eggs. Well over 99 percent of the eggs come to the hatchery fertilized.

The breeding flocks will produce for one year before they lose efficiency. "We also want to incorporate genetic progress to our customers as soon as possible," said Kreider.

The farmers gather the eggs that roll from the boxes into a belt and onto a gathering table, then are stacked in trays. To slow the maturation process, the eggs are cooled to 55-60 degrees until they are sent to the incubator to fulfill an order.

"Setting" the eggs at the hatchery, which can set one million eggs at one time, is based on orders. The average order is 100,000 chicks.

The eggs are nestled in at 100.3 degrees with a relative humidity of 50-55 percent and turned every hour.

After they are hatched, the chicks are sexed by the appearance of their wing feathers. The females have fast-feathering wings, with primary wing feathers longer than the smaller covert feathers.

Workers quickly check the wings before putting the chicks in the appropriate slot that takes the males and females to separate destinations. According to Kreider an individual worker can sort an average 3,600 chicks per hour.

Once sorted, the females are vaccinated and delivered to the farm within 24 hours. The yolk sack serves as a 72-hour food supply for the chicks, which do not need to be fed at the hatchery.

Once they are on the farm, the laying chicks, a future laying flock, will be productive for one-and-a-half to two years for the customers in Pennsylvania, Maryland, New York, and up the coast of Connecticut and Maine.

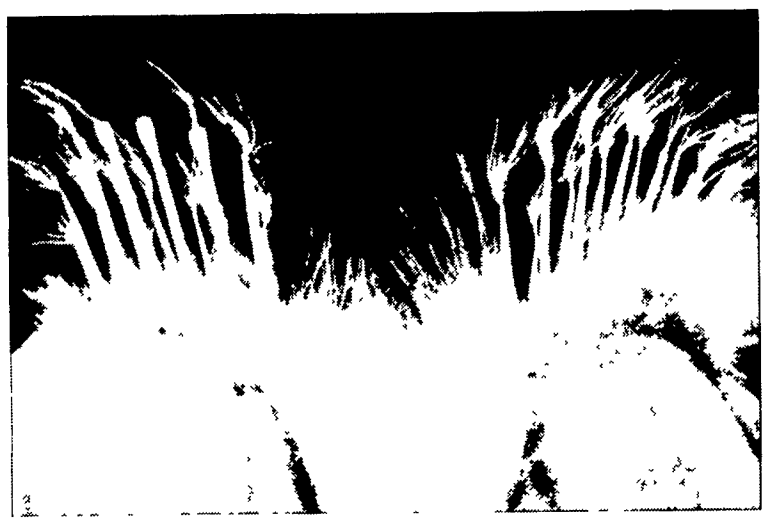
Kreider likens the hatchery to a biosecure maternity ward.

Upon arrival at work, the employees change into uniforms supplied by the company and laundered on the premises. Additionally each room is independently ventilated. The hatching rooms are washed down between sets of chicks.

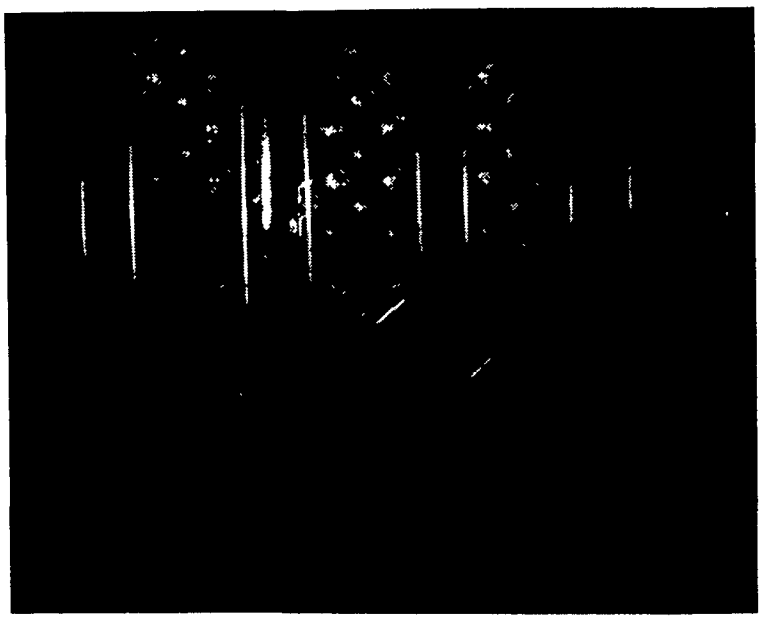
Alarms and flashing red lights help monitor the temperature of the incubators via a fiber optic network. If the temperature varies more than one-half of a degree, an alarm goes off to signal the problem and make sure the eggs stay in the proper temperature zone.

After 17 days, just before the chicks begin to hatch, the eggs are transferred from the egg racks into a hatchery basket so the chicks do not fall through the racks.

Editor's Note: Next week, a look into Longenecker Hatchery.



After they are hatched, the chicks are sexed by the appearance of their wing feathers. The females have fast-feathering wings, with primary wing feathers longer than the smaller covert feathers. The wing on the left is a female.



The eggs are nestled in these racks in a climate warmed to 100.3 degrees with a humidity of 45-50 percent. They are turned every hour by the angle of the steeply-sloped racks.

Ridge Administration Approves 20 Farms For Preservation

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — State Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes announced that 20 farms, totaling 2,216 acres across Pennsylvania, were approved for preservation and will remain permanently in agricultural use.

Cambria and Tioga counties preserved their first farms through the Farmland Preservation Program at a recent meeting.

Gov. Ridge and state lawmakers have continued their support of the farmland-preservation effort by dedicating more than $50 million for the program in the 2001-02 budget, Hayes said.

The 20 farms approved at the July meeting of the state Farmland Preservation Board are in a total of 14 counties.

The following is a list of farms preserved by county, listing owner, municipality, acres and purchase price:

Berks County:

- Wilson and Laverne Balthaser, Upper Tulpehocken Township, 75 acres, $150,400.
- Donald and Gay Landis, Tulpehocken and Bethel townships, 121 acres, $241,200.
- J. Gordon Miller, Pike and Oley townships, 148 acres, $295,000.
- Noel and Elizabeth Schlegel, Maxatawny and Longswamp townships, 18 acres, $35,000.
- Calvin and Sharon Zerbe, Upper Tulpehocken townships, 169 acres, $337,600.

Bucks County:

- Clarence and Paul Berger, Nockamixon and Springfield townships, 82 acres, $450,065.

Butler County:

- Richard and Linda Stuchal, Mercer Township, 113 acres, $211,511.

Cambria County:

- Daniel and Charlene Carney, Allegheny Township, 155 acres, $123,754.

Carbon County:

- David and Virginia Newton, East Penn Township, 67 acres, $160,250.

Clinton County:

- Kenneth and Mary Yearick, Porter Township, 144 acres, $158,400.

Cumberland County:

- Joseph and Jolene Jones, Dickinson Township, 111 acres, $211,455.

Dauphin County:

- David and Tena Kieffer, Jackson Township, 52 acres, $86,325.

Fayette County:

- Paul and Beverly Diamond, Nicholson Township, 73 acres, $76,556.
- Joanne Shamburg, Springhill Township, 239 acres, $250,698.

Snyder County:

- Joseph, Grace, J. Kenneth and Joann Blank, Franklin Township, 137 acres, $123,724.

Sullivan County:

- Harvey and Mary Vough, Forks Township, 111 acres, $102,943.

Tioga County:

- Waldo, Esther, Wayne and Kathlene Wood, Deerfield Township, $100,559.

FDA Corrects Erroneous Media Reports On Egg Safety Guidelines

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Contrary to some mistaken recent media reports, the 1999 FDA Food Code does not prohibit restaurants from serving sunny-side-up or over-easy eggs.

The Food Code, which is FDA guidance on restaurant safety, says that if less thoroughly-cooked egg dishes are served in restaurants, consumers should be provided with an advisory — on menus, brochures, or other written materials — that there is an increased risk associated with eating undercooked eggs especially for vulnerable consumers.

Restaurants and other retail establishments should continue to follow their local and state health regulations covering food service establishments, many of which have adopted the FDA Food Code.

There is a new FDA rule relating to egg safety. However, it provides safe handling instructions to consumers. This final rule dated December 2000 will take effect on Sept. 4, and states that egg cartons sold in supermarkets and other retail establishments must bear safe handling instructions. This label is an advisory to advise consumers, especially those most vulnerable to foodborne illness, about the potential of illness from Salmonella enteritidis.

This rule is one part of the larger Egg Safety Action Plan, a farm-to-table approach for ensuring the safety of our nation's egg supply. For more information on the Egg Safety Action Plan, go to http://www.foodsafety.gov.

Teachers, Young Farmers

ricultural careers.

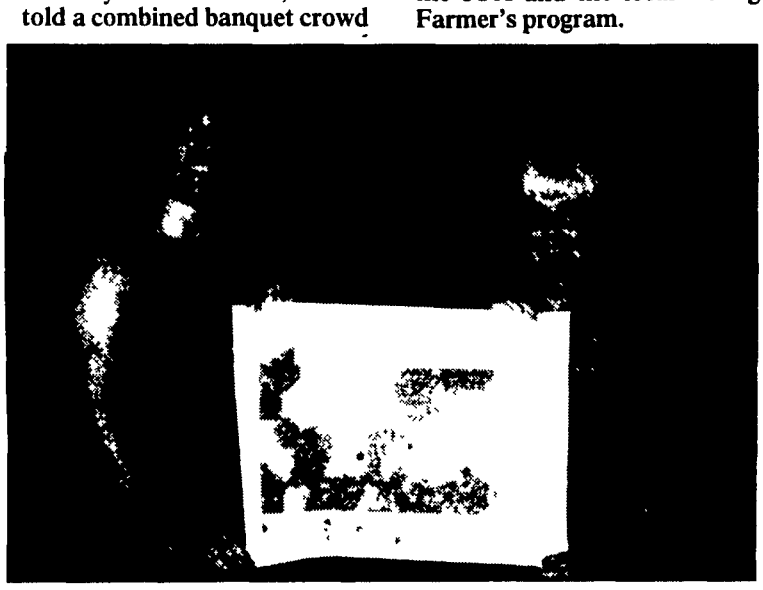
Originally from the Somerset Valley, Paul took his first ag teaching job in 1965 at Red Lion School District in York County. In 1968, he accepted the position back home in Somerset County and has been there ever since.

Paul said that rigid state instructional requirements teachers had to face in earlier years have been lifted during the course of his career. A teacher today can tailor lesson plans to truly reflect the agriculture of the community, he said.

"I think it's just your imagination that limits what you can do in your classroom," Paul told a combined banquet crowd of nearly 300 elementary and middle school teachers, ag teachers, young farmers, and other dignitaries gathered here for Pennsylvania Ag in The Classroom, Governor's Institute, and Young Farmer's conferences. "I think it's the best of times to be teaching agriculture."

Paul pointed out that female students and teachers in ag classrooms have increased significantly since the 1960s, when there were practically none. "They're making a great contribution," he said. "Our experience has been enriched."

Paul was recognized for his years of outstanding service at the school, where he also led the FFA and the local Young Farmer's program.



Jodi Brown, left, was honored for her outstanding accomplishments as an ag teacher at Ephrata High School. Sophomore students in her class created this map of Pennsylvania ag commodities. Carol Ann Gregg received recognition for her work as education coordinator for Pennsylvania Ag in the Classroom.

Although retirement might seem like a natural option at this point, Paul will continue his work at the high school on a part-time basis of 95 days per year. His duties will include mentoring his replacement, Michael Clark, and continuing to work with the Berlin Brothersvalley Young Farmer's Chapter.

Paul's main concern with the new schedule is the reduced time allotted to him to continue his life's work.

"I'll have to be careful I don't exceed the allowed days," he said.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Sam Hayes greeted the gathering of agriculturalists and teachers, commending them for their work and commitment.

"I applaud you for giving your personal and professional time to enrich the lives of your students," he said.

Hayes reminded the group that the future of America's strength depends on agriculture. "A student cannot say they have a well-rounded education if they don't know something about agriculture," he said.

Carol Ann Gregg, education coordinator for the Pennsylvania Ag in the Classroom Program, received an Outstanding Service Award for her diligent work in the program. She has been involved in the program since its start 10 years ago and served as coordinator since 1994.

Sponsored by the Agricultural Awareness Foundation of Pennsylvania, Gregg said the goal of program is "to teach (teachers) how to incorporate ag across the curriculum."

The more than 100 non-agricultural teachers present this week attended classes covering ag-related topics and participated in field trips to local farms and research facilities on campus.

One of them was Pat Gardner-Merritt, a special education teacher in Philadelphia schools for 26 years.

Gardner-Merritt was presented with an award for her ongoing commitment to incorporating agriculture into her lesson plans. She said she began recently to use hands-on techniques to teach ag to her students. Prior to that, agriculture was discussed in her classroom, but opportunities for practical experience were limited. Ag in the Classroom this year has provided further inspiration for Gardner-Merritt.

"It's been a wonderful week," she said.

Another teacher to receive recognition for outstanding service was Jodi Brown, an agriculture teacher at Ephrata High School. Tenth grade students in Brown's class created a map which details Pennsylvania's agricultural products.

Ag in the Classroom Executive Director Pat Sueck said she got involved with the program when it first began because she saw a great need for it.

Originally from Washington D.C., Sueck said it was when she married a farmer and moved to Pennsylvania that she began to learn about agriculture.

"I got educated and knew others needed to be educated," she said.

Sueck applauded the teachers from across Pennsylvania attending the conference. "Every year we get top-quality

Delaware Farm And Home Field Day At Georgetown REC Aug. 8

NEWARK, Del. — The University of Delaware's Farm and Home Field Day will take place Wednesday, Aug. 8, from 8:30 a.m. until 1:30 p.m. at the Research and Education Center (REC) in Georgetown, Del. This annual event offers many fun-filled, educational activities for children and adults, including field tours, livestock petting zoo, interactive exhibits and demonstrations.

Field tours by wagon from 8:30 a.m. to noon will highlight the latest in agriculture and environmental studies at the REC. One tour stop, for example, will discuss new races of the fungus disease Downy mildew that threaten more than 13,500 acres of lima beans in Delaware alone. Dr. Bob Mulrooney and Dr. Tom Evans will demonstrate and discuss their research findings.

The wildlife and conservation plant demonstration nursery will be another stop on the wagon tour.

The 4-H farm animal display will highlight animal care, history and production related to calves, pigs, sheep, goats, ponies, chicks, rabbits and ducks.

For more information on Farm and Home Field Day, please call Dr. Mark Isaacs at (302) 856-1997, or Jay Windsor at (302) 856-7303.

Students Challenged By Ag Sciences Governor's School

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Sixty-four of the state's outstanding high school students are participating in the 2001 Pennsylvania Governor's School for the Agricultural Sciences at Penn State's University Park Campus.

And with the five weeks of research and campus recreation comes another annual tradition: raised eyebrows and scrambled stereotypes.

The prestigious program assembles some of the state's top high school juniors and seniors for a challenging introduction to innovative research and career opportunities in such areas as food sciences, animal and plant sciences, natural resources and the environment, and agricultural engineering. Marianne Fivek, university director of the school and assistant professor of agricultural and extension education, explains that the range and rigor of the agricultural sciences can be surprising to a few participants and visitors, who might come expecting something a little more "bucolic."

"We always win some over," she said. "The school opens up a lot of people's eyes to some aspect of agriculture that could be a career for them. Even if they are familiar with farming, they often don't realize that agriculture includes food science, forestry and wildlife, agricultural economics, agribusiness or genomic research."

The students conduct research projects with faculty using College of Agricultural Sciences facilities, including advanced libraries and laboratories. In recruiting the state's top students, Fivek explains, agriculture must compete with other careers for students' interests. She enjoys seeing the delight of students discovering unexpected opportunities.

"This is an ambitious group of young people, and it's great to offer them ventures that help them test their abilities," she says. "They demonstrate the academic potential that Pennsylvania is looking to develop, and they confirm the state leadership's foresight in founding and supporting the Governor's School. Our state's position as an agricultural leader can only be maintained by attracting top young talent to the field, and this group is an excellent example of what our state has to offer."

Since opening in 1986, more than 960 students have attended the Governor's School. The majority of attendees go on to college, and many have chosen to attend Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. Between 70 and 100 Penn State faculty and staff support the program each year, teaching such subjects as veterinary science, natural resource management and engineering.

The students take courses and electives in many areas and select an independent research project. Field trips to agricultural businesses and agencies give students hands-on experience working in laboratories, greenhouses and farms. Activities this year include visits to the University of Pennsylvania New Bolton Center, Longwood Botanical Gardens, Hershey Foods and Shaver's Creek Environmental Center.

"The field trips will be great this year," said Ketja Woo, assistant director of the school. "Hershey Foods is a good example of a Pennsylvania partner that goes to great lengths to give the students a truly interactive experience. The students will participate in the candy-making process and have the opportunity to speak with a number of scientists and professionals."

Participants will not be graded or ranked, but will receive special state certificates to recognize their accomplishments. The school is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Education, the state's intermediate units and Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences. Pennsylvania Governor's Schools also are offered in the arts, sciences, health care, education, international studies and information technology and global entrepreneurism.

Lebanon 4-H Livestock Judging Team Repeats As Tops In Contest

MILLIE BUNTING
Market Staff

HONEY BROOK (Chester Co.) — Tim Schaeffer, Nate Tice, and Travis Adam earned top team honors overall for Lebanon County for the second consecutive year at the Southeastern Pennsylvania 4-H Livestock Judging Contest.

The contest was conducted last week at the Romano 4-H Center of Chester County.

Coached by Brian Kreider, a beef and crop farmer in southern Lebanon County, the top team will compete in livestock judging at the Pennsylvania 4-H Achievement Days next week at Penn State's main campus.

The top 10 junior individuals overall in the Southeastern Pennsylvania 4-H Livestock Judging Contest, front row, from left, Brittany Marsh, Chester County; Erin Willard, Lebanon County; Catherine Cornelius, Chester County; and Caitlin Fairbairn, Chester County. Back row, Johanna Rohrer, Lancaster County; Gwen Powers, Berks County; Jarett Brown, Bucks County; Rhoda Smoker, Chester County; Ryan Fairbairn, Chester County; and Michael Shearer, Lancaster County.

Fifty-seven 4-H'ers from six counties in southeastern Pennsylvania competed in evaluating beef cattle, swine, and sheep. There were 33 junior students participating in six classes (two classes for each species) and 24 seniors in nine classes, which included a reasons category which was not required for the juniors. The six counties represented were Berks, Bucks, Chester, Lancaster, Lebanon, and York.

The beef competition consisted of evaluating breeding cattle, three Angus heifers, and market steers — three Angus and one Hereford. The cattle were provided by J.D. Angus, Lisnageer Farm, Glenmoore and William and Cheryl Fairbairn, West Chester. Scott Wright supervised the beef classes.

The swine to be evaluated included a pen of breeding gilts and a pen of market hogs provided by Nelson Beam of Elverson. Brian Kreider handled the swine evaluations.

Evaluated in the sheep competition were a pen of Suffolk ewe lambs and a pen of Dorset yearling ewes provided by William MacCauley of Atglen, who supervised the sheep classes.

Cheryl Fairbairn, Chester County livestock agent, conducted the program assisted by Tim Beck, York County dairy agent; Linda Spahr, York County agent; Lee Ann Tice, a Penn State student who is a summer intern at the Lancaster County extension office; and Galen Kopp, Lebanon County extension agent.

Results of the class competitions follow.

Shippensburg Fair

The 44th annual Shippensburg Community Fair offers a variety of activities for the entire family — from the home-cooked food, watching the dairy and livestock judging, or enjoying the nightly entertainment.

Kicking off the annual weeklong event is the Shippensburg Band Concert at 7 p.m., Sunday, followed by the Community Vespers Service at 7:30 p.m. The fair officially opens Monday, July 23, and runs through Saturday, July 28.

Registration begins at 7:30 a.m. on Saturday, July 28, for the 22nd annual Shippensburg Community Fair Distance Classic Run, sponsored by the Chambersburg Road Runners Club. Starting time is 8:30 a.m.

Kicking off the evening entertainment on Sunday is the Stockmen's Contest at 6:30 p.m. The contest is open to all ages through adult and no judging experience is necessary. Items to be judged are feeds, equipment, meats, identification of breeds and three or four classes of livestock. For information contact Vicki Lantz at 530-1209.

Miss Shippensburg Community Fair Queen Julie Wadel will crown her successor on Monday with festivities beginning at 7:30 p.m. on stage. Back for his third year as master of ceremonies is Dennis Hughes, program director with WAYZ 104.7 and operations director with STAR 92.1.

Monday also offers Barnyard Olympics at 8 p.m. in the Gro-Mar Ring. Teams will consist of five members. Events include: bale toss, human wheelbarrow race, bale stacking, three-legged sack race, water balloon toss, water tub carry and tractor-tire obstacle course.

Prizes will be awarded with the first-place team receiving sweatshirts for each team member; second-place, a hat to each team member; and third-place, a T-shirt to each member. Team entries should be sent to Andy Greenleaf, P.O. Box 86, Roxbury, PA 17251. For information call 532-3067 or e-mail agreenleaf@pa.net by July 1.

AG PROGRESS:
THE SHOWCASE OF AGRICULTURE

Lancaster Farming has scheduled a special promotional issue on Ag Progress Days, the annual Penn State showcase agricultural event at the university's Rockspring research site That Aug 11 issue will feature news and information, including maps and event schedules.

Pa. Agriculture Secretary Promotes 'Simply Delicious' Program

WEXFORD (Allegheny Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes recently joined Pennsylvania vegetable and fruit growers to support the "Pennsylvania Produce Simply Delicious" campaign during an event at Soergel Orchards.

"Since 1997, Gov. Ridge and I have worked to help Pennsylvania's vegetable and fruit growers promote their homegrown products," Hayes said. "Pennsylvania has a cornucopia of produce, from fresh sweet corn and tomatoes to our sun-ripened raspberries and blueberries, and the Simply Delicious program helps us spread the good news about Pennsylvania's high-quality products."

Hayes encouraged consumers to look for the "Simply Delicious" label at their favorite farmers' market or grocery store. The Simply Delicious logo guarantees that the retailer has committed to selling Pennsylvania-grown fruits and vegetables when they are available.

To assist in the promotion of Pennsylvania produce, more than 900 supermarkets, ranging from independently owned stores and small grocery chains to large corporate retailers, have agreed to feature Pennsylvania produce. More than 600 growers are registered to provide wholesalers and retailers locally grown produce.

To help spread the Simply Delicious message, store-promotion items such as price cards, banners, posters, and Simply Delicious graphics are available for those who participate in the program.

In addition, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, in conjunction with the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers and Pennsylvania Food Merchants Association, has billboards displayed statewide bearing the logo reminding consumers to look for their favorite homegrown fruits and vegetables.

For more information on the "Simply Delicious" program, contact the Department of Agriculture at (717) 787-4737.

To find out which local growers and grocery stores are participating in the program, visit the Department of Agriculture's homepage through the PA PowerPort at www.state.pa.us or directly at www.pda.state.pa.us.

Manure Application Field Days Aug. 1 And 3

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Two manure application field days sponsored by The Pennsylvania State University, The Pennsylvania State Conservation Commission, and The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture are scheduled the first week of August.

One will be held Aug. 1 at the Joseph Musser farm near Shippensburg. The second will be held at the Rodney Metzler farm near Martinsburg on Aug. 3. Featured at each field day will be surface-application and subsurface-application manure equipment. In addition, variable rate manure application equipment using Global Positioning System (GPS) technology will also be demonstrated.

The audience will have opportunities for hands-on experience in operating equipment with a GPS-controlled applicator for in-field guidance. There will also be opportunities for hands-on experience with computerized field mapping and on-the-go record keeping.

Additional discussions will cover the role of conservation practices in nutrient management, emergency preparedness, and phosphorus-based nutrient management. Continuing Education credits for certified nutrient management specialists will be available for those who attend the meeting.

Preregistration is requested for both field days. Musser Farm registration can be made with county agents George Hurd or Jere Wingert at 717-263-9226; or Robb Meinen at 814-865-2987 or rjm134@psu.edu. Metzler Farm registration can be made with Robb Meinen as listed.

Directions to the Metzler Farm: From Route 866 take Cove Lane Road to the west. It is the only road to the west between Curryville Agway and the Altoona Blair County Airport. Travel on Cove Lane Road until you see the sign for Pleasant View Farms, The Rodney Metzler Family, and turn left into the farm lane.

Teachers, Young Farmers

teachers willing to give a week of their time."

Gregg said that about 1,000 teachers from across Pennsylvania have participated in the program each summer since 1991.

The Pennsylvania Young Farmers Association was also present at the banquet, joining the Governor's Institute for Agricultural Science Careers and Ag in the Classroom teachers for field trips and educational activities throughout the week.

Activities included touring a nursery, an elk farm, and getting a firsthand look at the recently begun composting program at Penn State.

The composting was initiated in 1998 after a group of concerned students asked Penn State employees, "Why can't cafeteria waste be composted and used in Penn State landscaping activities?"

Through a joint effort of the campus physical plant, food services, and the college of agricultural sciences, Penn State now composts the bulk of its pre-consumer "green waste" (vegetable matter) and napkin waste generated in the seven campus dining commons, as well as animal manure from the college of agricultural and leaves.

In the 1998-1999 school year, approximately 740 tons of compost were generated and used to enrich the soil for most of the large planters and prominent flower beds as well as many of the trees on campus.

Glen Cauffman of Penn State's farm operations and services said that the goals and uses of composting are numerous, including the control of odor and human pathogens, dealing with nutrient-laden animal manures, and making safe fertilizer.

Michelle Newhard of Penn State food services said that transition to the new system of waste disposal was relatively easy for the students.

A future goal of the composting program is to include post-consumer green waste from the dining commons, she said.

Teachers on the tour were encouraged to think of ways additional recycling and composting initiatives could be applied in their home schools.

Attention Chocolate Lovers

Are you a chocolate fanatic? Do you crave the taste of delicious Hershey's chocolate?

The Lebanon Area Fair, along with the Hershey Foods Corporation, the Pennsylvania State Association of County Fairs, and the Hershey Lodge and Convention Center have a way for you to demonstrate your appreciation for the scrumptious taste of Hershey's chocolate.

It's called the Hershey Greatest Cake and Cookies Contest, and it is coming to you at the 2001 Lebanon Area Fair.

Approximately 100 fairs across the state are giving cash prizes for the "Greatest Cocoa Cake" and for the "Greatest Cocoa Cookie, Brownie, or Bar" made from scratch. This will be a preliminary competition which leads to the selection of the commonwealth's best cocoa cake and cookie, brownie or bar during the 86th annual Pennsylvania State Farm Show next January in Harrisburg.

Greatest Cocoa Cake Contest

1. The layered cake must be made from "scratch" and frosted (original recipes encouraged).
2. A minimum of ¼ cup of Hershey's Cocoa must be used in the recipe.
3. If the cake is frosted with chocolate frosting, Hershey's Cocoa must be used in the recipe.
4. Display the cake on doily covered cardboard.
5. Must be a Pennsylvania resident.
6. Recipe must accompany the cake.

Greatest Cocoa Cookie, Brownie, and Bars Contest

1. Plate of six made from "scratch."
2. A minimum of ¼ cup of Hershey's Cocoa must be used in the recipe.
3. Display on doily covered cardboard.
4. Entry open only to youth between the ages of 8 and 18.
5. Must be a Pennsylvania resident.
6. Recipe must accompany cookies, brownies, or bars.

Ham And Chicken Barbecue

Hungry? Looking for somewhere good to eat?

Let the Lebanon Area Fair satisfy your hunger with some delicious ham or chicken barbecue.

It's one of the best barbecues around, and better yet, it benefits 4-H and FFA Clubs of Lebanon County.

Bring your family to the fair on Sunday, July 29 between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. for the ham barbecue and on Thursday, Aug. 2 from 2 p.m. until 7 p.m. for the fair's great chicken barbecue. Tickets are available now at the Lebanon Area Fair office or through any 4-H or FFA member for only $7 each.

Don't miss this chance to enjoy one of these delicious chicken and ham barbecue dinners. In order to be sure to get a dinner, purchase your tickets before Wednesday, July 25. There will be a limited amount of tickets available on the day of each dinner.

Show your chicken barbecue tickets at the gate for free admission to the fairgrounds on Thursday. The ham barbecue on Sunday is a free admission day also. Dinners are available for eat-in or take-out.

Stop by the Lebanon Area Fair Office at the Lebanon Fairgrounds and Expo Center, Cornwall and Evergreen Roads, just south of Lebanon, or call (717) 273-3795.

"The Amazing Story of the Ausbund" is a new book scheduled to come off the press by Aug 15, 2001 It contains historical material on the songbook of the Amish people never before published It tells the story of the Jewish, Catholic and Lutheran people who in the 1500s and before helped to influence the contents of the cherished hymnal.

- When was the Ausbund, the oldest hymnal in the world known to be still be in continuous use, first printed? (See Page 1)
- Can a reason be explained for the amazing fact that each and every original copy, except one, of the first printing of the Ausbund was lost or destroyed? (See Page 36)
- Who made up the "slow tune" singing of the Amish people? (See Chapter 8)
- Why would a song, taking 8 hours to sing, be included in a church hymnal? (See Page 39)
- Who composed these Ausbund songs that are still used in Amish worship services? (See Chapter 3)
- When did the Mennonites, having used the Ausbund for many generations, start using other hymn books? (See Page 2)
- Why was the influence of tobacco growing and using not as strong on the Mennonites as it was on the Amish? (See Page 89)
- What did the Ausbund song writers of 450 years ago believe on assurance of salvation? (See Page 105)
- What does the town of Lititz, PA have to do with Ausbund history? (See Page 66)
- How did it come about that a highly fortified castle in Passau, Germany, built in the days of the Crusades, "to keep Christianity from becoming forever extinguished," become the birthplace of the Ausbund Hymn Book? (See Page 49) And much more!

Thanks to the kind donation of a color photo made especially for the book by the manager of the large museum now standing at the very same site of this Passau stronghold, the back cover of the book has a panoramic view of the beautiful city of Passau as it looks today The front cover by artist Emma Stoltzfus shows the five eras of the Ausbund

This $10 00/per copy book of over 125 pages (8 1/2"x11") will be shipped for $7 00/per book on all pre-publication orders postmarked and paid before July 31, 2001 Please include $2 50 shipping and handling on all orders regardless if your order is only one or more (Shipments to Canada include $5 00 shipping and handling USA funds only)

Herb Lady Finds Thyme For Happiness

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

DALMATIA (Dauphin Co.) — Sunlight spills across the herbal gardens on a farm edging Dauphin and Northumberland Counties. Rosina Martz sits beneath a gazebo, sheltered from summer's hot rays as warm breezes and whiffs of lavender and heirloom roses filter through the air.

She twists stems of German mint to form the base for a fresh herbal wreath. Rhythmatically she weaves in citrus scented southern wood, showy marjoram, thyme, oregano, globe allium and other freshly picked blooms for color and aroma.

"This is my identity — my salvation," Rosina said of working with garden herbs.

Known as the Herb Lady, Rosina has years of experience growing herbs and creating works of art and tasty uses from them.

She has hosted hundreds of tea parties featuring unique and wonderful hors d'oeuvres, refreshing beverages, and desserts flavored with herbs and spices from her garden.

Declining health keeps her from hosting as many parties as she would like, but Rosina feels rejuvenated after spending hours working with the harvest from her herbs.

"Sometimes I spend all day here," Rosina said of the gardens planted on the family farm. The Martz's rent out the original homestead where the gardens are planted. Route 147 cuts through the Martz farm. On one side of the highway are the gardens and the original farmhouse. On the other side, the Martz's live in a brick two-story home bordered by the Susquehanna River.

So when Rosina works in her gardens, she cannot simply walk out her back door but needs to travel by car to the other part of the farm.

"The rose gardens were started by my mother-in-law, Stella Martz. She taught me so much about roses and herbs," Rosina said.

Growing up in Delaware, Rosina also learned about herb usage from her grandmother Carrie Tyre.

"My father's grandmother was a full-blooded Native American Indian, and the usage of herbs was passed down through the generations" Rosina said.

"People came to her for help for a variety of illnesses. According to Rosina, catnip was given to babies to help ease colic. Hops plant provided yeast to make bread.

Rosina said that unfortunately she did not pay close attention to some of the details in using herbs to treat illnesses.

A plaque in the garden reads: "These herbal gardens dedicated to the glory of God."

Rosina said, "The Bible tells all about herbs and spices. When I sit beneath my gazebo, I pray, "Guide my fingers, Lord."

Rosina attributes God's guidance in helping her develop unique ideas in their usage.

One of the most gratifying is a method she developed in making fresh herbal wreaths without using any wire, foam, tape or base to retain the shape and materials used. The delicate-looking wreath with its dainty colorful flowering herbs can be tossed into the air and suffers no ill effects.

This method saves money and time for the person who makes crafts. The herb wreath air dries naturally and can be preserved for many years.

Rosina recounts interesting uses for many herbs while giving garden tours. She said that spiderwort is often planted near power plants because the herb detects radiation and changes form and color.

An herb called horsetail rush is also used for scouring pans and to put the finishing touch on fine furniture. One called the herb of the angels is used to make candied stalks, lamb's ear is reported to have served as bandages for the Colonists, tansy repels ants, and aspirin is derived from fan hill willow.

Certain rules should be followed to allow better control in herb gardens. Some herbs affect people differently.

For example, if Rosina brushes against the nightshade plant, her skin becomes red and sore as if it were burned. But the plant has not ill effects upon her husband and many others.

Some of the rare heirloom roses include the varieties Seventh Sisters, Harrison's Yellow, Madam Hardy, and some with unknown names, one of which she dubbed Dottie's Grandmother in honor of the person who passed it on to her.

Stories accompany some of the varieties. Such as agleafentine, which Rosina said is mentioned in a Shakespearean play. A large overgrown bush called the sweet briar rose produces jagged little ball shaped growths the exude a deep, sweet aroma.

Rosina also does many herb-related crafts and is a member of "This is my identity — my salvation," Rosina, better known as the Herb Lady, said of her extensive herb gardens.

Rosina demonstrates her technique for making a fresh herbal wreath without using any wire, foam, tape, or base. When finished, the delicate-appearing wreath can be tossed into the air and still retain its shape.

Do-It-Yourselfer Solves Gardening Woes With Automatic Watering System

LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

BEDFORD (Bedford Co.) — Every year, Jay Williams watched his wife plant dozens of flowers which decorated their spacious lawn.

Then, when a day or two passed without rain, they would drag out the garden hose and watering can to wet down all of their colorful efforts.

If, they went away for a weekend or a week, it necessitated either asking a neighbor to do the watering or praying for rain. If neither plan worked, they came home to dead flowers.

While visiting their son in Albuquerque, Jay became curious as to the many desert dwellers who had green lawns, flowers, and shrubs. The answer was simple; each home with a green area had a watering system.

Pricing an installation raised a few eyebrows in the budget department. Installation can cost up to $10,000.

Being a do-it-yourselfer, Jay began looking through nurseries and discovered the "Raindrip" the Herb Society of America and the Women of the Susquehanna Charge. She makes tea cozies as gifts and regularly donates a few to the Public Broadcasting Station's annual fundraiser.

She sews, refinishes and reupholsters furniture, and paints water colors. Every year on the first Saturday of November, Rosina and some of her friends hold a large craft show in the Martz barn.

Rosina's husband does much of the manual work in preparation for the craft show and weeds the gardens since Rosina is no longer able.

"He's wonderful," Rosina said of her husband. Between Rosina and her husband, they have seven children and six grandchildren who enjoy visiting the family farm.

The 150-acre Martz farm was the first farm in the county to be placed in the Dauphin Farm Preservation Program.

"We try to become involved in all the programs offered for the good of the land," Rosina said.

The family has retained the strip of land along the river edge, and continue to rent campsites to the same families year after year.

Recently their farm was determined to house the largest little brown bat colony on the east coast and is being used for research.

For more information, write to Rosina at the Pedigreed Weed Etc., 724 River Rd., Dalmatia, PA 17017, or call (717) 692-3660.

Here are some of Rosina's favorite recipes that she serves at tea parties.

LEMON ICE BOX PIE

1 large graham cracker crumb crust, baked, cooled
8-ounces cream cheese, softened
1 can condensed milk
8-12 ounces whipped topping
6-ounce can frozen lemonade

Mix together cream cheese and condensed milk until blended. Mix in whipped topping and frozen lemonade. Mix well until blended. Pour into cooled crust and freeze.

Makes one large or two small pies.

ROSE PETAL SANDWICHES

8-ounces softened cream cheese
12 slices thin white bread with crust removed
6 fresh unsprayed red roses

Trim crust from bread. Spread on softened cream cheese. Prepare rose petals by rinsing under cold running water and blotting dry with paper towel. Remove petals from bud end. Carefully remove the white part at the bottom of each petal. (This is called the bone and is bitter).

Lay petals on cream cheese and top with other slice of bread. Cut small or serve open faced.

LEMON MINT PUNCH

Brew one cup mint tea. Allow to cool. Mix with ½ cup sugar. Juice 3 lemons. 2 quarts water.

Add tea to lemonade mixture, stir and chill. Add ice ring.

LEMON THYME HONEY

In small saucepan, stir 16-ounces of honey over medium heat. Heat until warmed through. Place 6-7 sprigs of lemon thyme in heat-proof jar. Pour warm honey over herbs. Cool to room temperature. Cover tightly. Let stand at least one week before serving.

HERB MUSTARD

1 jar prepared mustard
2 tablespoons lemon thyme
2 tablespoons tarragon
2 tablespoons chives
2 tablespoons parsley
2 tablespoons chopped onions
2 garlic cloves, crushed

Combine ingredients and add:

Cayenne pepper, to taste

Let stand several hours.

Great tasting on hamburgers and hot dogs, and as a dip for pretzels and cheese.

SAGE BUTTER

½ cup butter, softened
2 tablespoons fresh, finely chopped sage leaves

Mix well. Let stand to marry the flavors. Serve with crackers, biscuits, muffins, or toast points.

STRAWBERRY SOUP

2 quarts strawberries, pureed, set aside
1 pint half and half
½ pint sour cream
½ cup sugar

Mix well in blender. Mix together in glass bowl and swirl. Strawberries and cream will be marbled. If not mixed too much it will give a pretty effect. May substitute other berries for the strawberries.

The Martz farm is the first to be preserved in Dauphin County. The farm borders the Susquehanna River and Northumberland County.

The couple enjoys many delightful dishes seasoned with herbs. Some of the recipes for these are included in the article.

WATER CHESTNUT HORS D' OEUVRES

2 cans whole water chestnuts
1 bottle chili sauce
1 cup brown sugar
½ cup Miracle Whip
1 pound bacon

Cut strips of bacon in half. Wrap each chestnut in ½ slice of raw bacon and secure with wooden toothpick. Put into glass baking dish. Mix brown sugar, chili sauce, and Miracle Whip. Blend well. Pour over bacon chestnut pieces. Bake 30 minutes to 45 minutes at 350 degrees.

HERBED TATER TOTS

1 large package frozen tater tots
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
2 teaspoons Old Bay seasoning
½ teaspoon chili powder
1 tablespoon parsley flakes
1 teaspoon celery salt
½ teaspoon dill weed, chopped

Toss. Bake according to package directions. Serve hot.

HERBED CREAM CHEESE SPREAD

To one package low-calorie cream cheese (room temperature) add:

1 teaspoon dill
1 teaspoon chives
1 teaspoon burnet
1 teaspoon Italian parsley
1 small clove garlic, crushed
1 tablespoon real butter

Gather fresh herbs. Wash and pat dry. Mince fine. Mix.

This can be spread on rye bread or crackers. Pipe the spread on party rye bread for a nice effect. Bread should be lightly buttered. Garnish with thin slices of radish, chive flowers, dill sprigs, or burnet.

GARLIC CHEESE BISCUITS

2 cups biscuit mix
½ cup grated Swiss cheese
½ cup grated cheddar cheese
1-2 garlic cloves, crushed

Mix lightly with fork. Add ⅔ cup milk.

Combine to a soft dough. Turn onto a surface dusted with flour or baking mix and kneed quickly 15 times. Pat or roll dough ½-inch thick. Cut in squares or fan-shaped for scones or with floured cutter. Bake on greased baking sheet 10-12 minutes. Watch carefully during baking. Biscuits may be topped with poppy or sesame seeds.

Do-It-Yourselfer Rigs Up Watering System

system had pieces and parts as well as a booklet suggesting ways to hook up your own system. The total cost for the Bedford home would be only a little over $200.

There are a number of different brands of watering system parts on the market but a search of nurseries and home building stores in the east produced no results. Before taking their next trip to Albuquerque, Jay laid out plans for his home watering and decided what parts would need to be purchased. He brought the parts home from Albuquerque in a suitcase.

A later trip to visit a relative in North Carolina proved to also be fruitful in purchasing additional irrigation pieces.

The Williams home had five separate areas which needed watering including plants around the back of house, a raised flower garden, an herb garden, a rock garden, an area of perennials.

There were numerous pots, a few shrubs, four window boxes and eight hanging baskets.

"The hanging baskets are the most difficult," says Jay. "I had to figure out how to get the water up to them."

The main supply lines are plastic which carries the bulk of the water to all of the areas. All of these lines are buried a few inches underground.

Feeder lines are tapped into that inch line.

Most outlets are called drippers although the Williams system includes several sprayers. The drippers water at the rate of one-half gallon, one gallon or two gallons per hour.

The one-half gallon sized drippers seemed about right for the Williams' as they allowed about a cup of water in ten minutes to be deposited at each plant.

The flowers and other plants are watered each morning via a timer which turns on the water and shuts it off ten minutes later.

Here's a closeup of the timer.

Sprayers should be on a different supply line as they need to operate for a longer period of time.

To make the gardens more compatible with the drippers, the Williams used large pots imbedded in the ground in the raised flower bed and around one of their two water gardens. A variety of plants were placed in the pot with a dripper going to the roots of each plant.

Drippers are also used in the small birdbaths, which are a part of the raised gardens.

Jay ran a small section of hose up the house and along the rain spout to have droppers reach the hanging baskets. He painted the hose to match the house as a camouflage.

For vegetable gardens, either individual drippers or a drip watering hose can be used.

Each lawn and garden situation is individual but with a little imagination and ingenuity, a watering system can be adapted to each.

The concept of drip watering is simple: the slow, regular delivery of water directly to the root zone of the plants keeps the root zone moist but never saturated. Plants receive the ideal amount of water at the ideal rate.

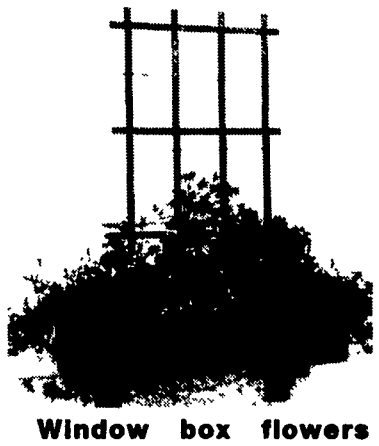
The use of water is reduced by up to 70 percent over conventional sprayers and you water only the plants. With a hose or even a watering can, you water weeds as well. Stress on the plant is also reduced.

Fertilizing via the same system is done by placing tablets in a special adapter installed near the timer and is suggested on a two week to monthly basis.

For easy winter draining, a screw-cap fitting is put on all ends at low and high spots. While the system might sustain a light frost, the system must be drained and flushed out with air before heavier frosts arrive.

"It's certainly made our lives easier, and our lawn prettier," Jay says.

For information and a catalog on the "Raindrip" drip watering system write Raindrip Inc., 2250 Agate Court, Simi Valley, Ca. 93065 or phone (800) 222-3747.



Window box flowers bloom profusely and never wilt since installing the automatic system.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

Opening a kitchen cupboard door early one recent morning — only half awake — gave me quite a start. Peering out around the corner of the opening was a small mouse.

A summer surprise!

Mice on a farm are just part of life, but a face-to-face with one in the cupboard in mid-July was unexpected. Most years, they sneak into the house when fall nights begin turning chilly. Maybe our unseasonably cool evenings have them shivering sooner than usual.

The Farmer whacked at the mouse with a wooden spoon, missed, and went rummaging for a mousetrap. Less than a day later, I opened the same door and came face-to-face with TWO small mice. My whack with a wooden spoon got luckier and one porch cat thought it had won a lottery.

Since I only whacked one, there's still at least one — and probably more — running around the walls waiting to spring another surprise at some inappropriate time. And one wooden spoon has been relegated to weapons use.

In a more dramatic and devastating summer surprise, lawn owners hereabouts are reportedly waking up to find their lawns gone brown, overnight. Just hours before reading a snippet from the news article about the lawn problems, I had shared with the Farmer horror stories heard at a dairy meeting concerning army worm infestations. Fellow dairymen from both northern Pennsylvania and New York state had related stories about "squirming" fields covered with writhing armies of mulching caterpillars, chomping down fields of alfalfa, wheat and corn and leaving rural roads covered with "oil slicks" of marching worms killed in combat with traffic.

Yeeecch! A summer surprise we could all live without.

We're scouting fields hoping not to be surprised by the crop-destroying buggers.

A more pleasant summer surprise turned up in one of the small flower beds of the backyard: a beautiful, blooming "Easter" lily. Its trumpet-shaped, wonderfully fragrant blooms have lingered in the pleasant weather, a dramatic addition to the small section of microclimate on our yard where bulb lilies seem to thrive.

I'd forgotten planting it. Which is one of the nicest surprises of gardening.

A few years ago, The Farmer acquired a handful of catfish fingerlings to put in the meadow ponds, hoping to help keep the annual algae bloom in check. Maintaining a fish inventory is no easy task — unless it's through doing a body count of floaters — and we were never sure if any survived.

One recent evening, while Derra Dog and I made our usual post-milking patrol of the meadow, arm waving summoned me pond side. Amid vigorous splashing, a couple of squarish-snouted fish-sporting a several-inch-long "whisker" protruding from the sides on the wide-open mouths — were gobbling fish pellets.

A fun surprise by an incredibly ugly..., er, interesting-looking, couple of fish.

And, having lately expressed interest in setting up a garden mini-pond in the yard, with bubbling water, it was a timely surprise to discover, as of this writing, that a waterfall and flowing-water pool had been added to our lives.

Unfortunately, the waterfall was pouring from a small hole in the block wall between the dairy barn's milk house/utility room/office offset and the box stalls which were standing full of the overflow. Source of the surprise waterfall is a mystery we can solve only by busting through the wall (and worst case scenario, jackhammering up concrete floors).

Knowing how such repairs usually work out, such good fortune would truly be one of summer's best surprises.

Healthy Gardeners, Gardens

PITTSTOWN, N.J. — Healthy Gardeners and Healthy Gardens is the theme for the second Lawn and Garden Twilight meeting of the season at the Rutgers University Snyder Research and Extension Farm near Pittstown on Wednesday, July 25, 6 p.m. until dusk.

Don't miss this chance to enjoy the Melda C. Snyder Teaching Garden and to learn about protecting and promoting your well-being, that of your family and your lawn and garden, too. For those who have never been to the farm, make this your first visit, and you'll be back.

Featured experts will discuss a variety of topics related to maintaining health. Taghgh Rainey, program coordinator for the Mosquito and Vector Control Program in Hunterdon County, will talk about West Nile virus and prevention and will give an update on the "gnat" situation.

Peter Nitzsche, Morris County agricultural agent, will focus on Lyme disease prevention. Dr. James Simon, professor of the New Age Agriculture and Natural Products Program at Rutgers, will speak on herbs for health and pleasure.

By late July, fresh fruits and vegetables fill gardens and farm stands. Learn about proper harvest and storage, which is important for maximizing nutritional benefits and enjoyment. Experts will be on hand to also talk about the National Institute of Health's 5-A-Day Nutritional Plan.

Cooperative Extension personnel will be available throughout the evening to answer gardening questions, helping promote a healthy garden. For a healthy lawn, learn about fall lawn care and weed control not, it's not too early to plan for it from Dr. John Grande, Director of the Snyder Farm.

And, of course, the Teaching Garden is available to be explored. Plantings include displays of edible flowering plants, fragrant and night blooming plants, plants native to the Americas, butterfly and hummingbird attractants, ornamental grasses, deer resistant plants and more.

The event is free, but the farm asks that reservations be made by calling (908) 713-8980. Leave a name and number of people attending. Directions to the farm are given.

The Melda C. Snyder Teaching Garden will also be open to visitors on Fridays during July and August. Master Gardeners will be on hand to answer questions between 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Call (908) 730-9315 for directions to the farm.

Kids And Cash: What Do You Think?

Ask yourself these questions: "Do all children need an allowance?"

"If I give my child money when they ask for it, will confrontation be eliminated?"

"I should pay my children for doing tasks around the house?"

Many issues exist regarding kids and cash. One of the most frequently discussed issues is how children get money. An allowance is one method. Earning money is another. Gifts are a third. Children generally get their money by a combination of the three. Parents can provide positive learning experiences about money management. Children learn by doing. Research shows that children learn the most about money management by having money to spend and save.

So what is a parent to do? Let's take a look at allowances. Webster defines an allowance as money given regularly to a person, in this case, a child, for a specific purpose. The purpose is for the child to learn how to manage money. So, the child can use the money as he or she wishes. The goal is for the child to learn how to plan for expenditures, allocate funds, and set aside money for a rainy day.

When is my child ready for an allowance? Before a child receives an allowance, he or she must understand that an allowance is a predetermined amount for personal spending for a given time period. If the money runs out, additional funds will not be given until the next time period. Supplemental money from the allowance giver — the parent — is not an option.

Most kids are not ready for an allowance until they are 6- to 8-years-old. At this age, a child generally can tell the difference between real and play money. A child understands that stores don't accept play money. Generally by 6- or 8-years-old, children recognize the concept of buying — that real money is traded for goods or services. With Webster's definition in mind, allowances are different from earning money. Children should do household chores because they are members of the household not because they are paid. +(Having children do chores can be another article.+)

When setting up the allowance with the child, you might want to consider the following:

$What expenses should the allowance cover?

$How much should the allowance be?

$How often should the allowance be paid?

$How often should the allowance amount be reviewed? When should a raise be given?

$What arrangement can be made for expensive purchases?

Discuss allowances as a family. Within reason, talk about the family's financial situation. What other children in the neighborhood receive can be an influence, but it is not the main consideration. The family situation and child's readiness is the prime consideration. A side benefit of the family discussion is a greater sense of family togetherness. A child learns his or her opinion counts and is part of the decision making process. A tight budget does not do away with a child's needs. Make a list of where and how much is already being spent. Parents and child will be surprised. Decide what the allowance should cover. Decide who in the family is responsible for what expenses. Saving for future purchases or big items can be part of the learning experience. The change with the age and maturity of the child impacts the allowance. Remember that all families differ. Keeping up with the Jones is not the goal.

The family financial picture for the very young child, the allowance might cover costs for minor needs and wants. As the child gets older, the allowance can cover more greater needs and wants.

In many families, allowances are reviewed yearly on the child's birthday. An allowance should always have some money left for a child to spent freely after meeting his or her expenses. That freedom is crucial to a child learning to make choices and accept responsibility for them.

Without accepting the responsibility of making choices, money will manage the child rather the child managing the money. Mistakes will happen. Learning will occur. Confrontation will happen, but understanding will accompany it.

Just as each child is different, each family is different. So fit the child's money management education into the child's wants and needs, abilities and family situation.

USDA Estimates Child Rearing Costs

WASHINGTON, D.C. — A family with a child born in 2000 can expect to spend about $165,630 ($233,530 when factoring in inflation) for food, shelter, and other necessities to raise that child during the next 17 years.

Now in its 40th year, the USDA report, "Expenditures on Children by Families," has proven to be a valuable resource for state agencies and courts in determining child support guidelines and foster care payments. Of primary interest to states is the child-rearing cost estimate for middle-income, two-parent families, which in 2000, ranged from $8,740 to $9,860, depending on the age of the child.

The report, compiled by USDA's Center for Nutrition Policy and Promotion, notes that family income affects child rearing costs, with low-income families projected to spend $121,230; middle-income families $165,630; and upper-income families $241,770 over a 17-year period. In 1960, a middle-income family could expect to spend $25,230 to raise a child through age 17.

The report notes geographic variations in the cost of raising a child, with expenses the highest for families living in the urban west, followed by the urban northeast and urban south. Families living in the urban midwest and all rural areas have the lowest child-rearing expenses.

Veggies Fresh From The Garden

Summertime is a veggie-lover's delight. The season offers many different kinds of vegetables — all at peak flavor — to add variety, taste, and outstanding nutritional benefits to the diet.

Take advantage of the season by planning menus to incorporate in-season vegetables. If these vegetables aren't growing in your own garden, stop by a roadside stand.

Enjoy these tasty ideas incorporating vegetables fresh from the garden.

BROCCOLI AND CHEESE DELIGHT

4 cups broccoli
1 cup ricotta cheese
4-ounces cheddar cheese, cubed or shredded
4 eggs
2 teaspoons minced onion flakes
1 tablespoon flour
Dash garlic powder
1 envelope instant chicken-flavored broth mix

Cook broccoli and arrange in an 8-inch square greased baking pan. Combine the remaining ingredients in blender. Blend until smooth. Pour over broccoli. Bake at 350 degrees for 30 minutes until lightly browned. Makes 4-6 servings.

Diane Bigelow

GAZPACHO

6 large tomatoes
1 large cucumber, peeled, seeded, chopped
1 large green pepper, finely chopped
1 medium-size red onion, minced
3 tablespoons red wine vinegar
Juice of ½ lemon
2 tablespoons olive oil
2-3 tablespoons chopped fresh parsley, to taste
2 tablespoons chopped fresh basil
Freshly ground pepper to taste
Herb croutons (optional)

Peel the tomatoes by submerging in boiling water for 15 seconds. Remove to a colander and rinse under cold water. The skins should slip right off. Core the tomatoes and gently squeeze out the seeds. Chop half of them coarsely and puree the other half in a food processor. Combine the puree and chopped tomatoes in a large mixing bowl. Blend the remaining ingredients, except the herb croutons with the tomatoes. Cover and refrigerate for several hours before serving. Serve chilled; garnish with herb croutons. Makes six servings.

If you would like a thinner version or need to stretch it, add up to two cups tomato juice. For a seafood variation, add a small can of minced clams and their juice.

YUMMY GREEN BEANS

1 pound small green beans
2 tablespoons salt or other seasonings
4 quarts boiling water
2 tablespoons butter
1 large clove garlic, crushed
Salt and pepper to taste

Cook green beans in salted boiling water in saucepan until tender crisp; drain. Rinse under cold water; pat dry. Melt butter with garlic in small saucepan. Pour over green beans in saucepan. Add salt and pepper; toss. Cook over low heat until heated through. May be heated in the microwave on high for 2 minutes. Serves 4.

ZUCCHINI BREAD AND BUTTER PICKLES

1 large onion, sliced
6 cups sliced zucchini
¼ cup salt
2 cups cider vinegar
1 cup sugar
1 teaspoon turmeric
1 teaspoon mustard seed
1 teaspoon celery seed

Slice onion and zucchini ⅛-inch thick and place in large bowl. Salt thoroughly. Cover and allow to rest overnight. Combine remaining ingredients and bring to a rolling boil. Add zucchini and onion to pickling solution. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer 15 minutes. Pack pickles into hot sterilized pint jars. Fill to ½-inch of top with pickling solution. Seal and process in a boiling water bath for 10 minutes. Makes 3 pints.

ZUCCHINI RELISH

12 cups ground zucchini squash
5 tablespoons salt
4 cups ground onions

Let set overnight. Rinse off and squeeze excess water out. Add the following:

2½ cups vinegar
1 tablespoon dry mustard
1½ teaspoons celery seed
½ teaspoon black pepper
6 cups sugar
¼ teaspoon turmeric
1 green pepper
1 red pepper

Combine ingredients and cook 30 minutes. Do not overcook. Spoon into hot jars and seal in boiling water bath 10 minutes. Makes 7 pints.

Pat Birley

PICKLED SQUASH

2 cups yellow or zucchini squash, sliced thin
Salt
1 green pepper, diced
2 cups cider vinegar
3 cups sugar
2 teaspoons mustard seed
2 teaspoons celery seed
1 cup onions, sliced into rings

Put squash in a bowl, cover well with salt and let stand one hour. Rinse lightly with a cup of water to remove some salt. Combine green pepper, vinegar, sugar, mustard, and celery seeds, and bring to a boil. Boil for two minutes; add squash and onions and return to a boil. Remove from heat and pack while hot into sterilized jars; seal. Yields two pints.

Boost the flavor of garden vegetables by preparing Mediterranean Grilled Vegetable Platter. The colorful display and ethnic flavor is sure to have guests and family members eating more vegetables.

Featured Recipe

Looking for a mouth-watering way to serve fresh vegetables to family and friends?

Try grilling vegetables. Vary the flavor by trying different varieties of marinades. Marinade is the secret ingredient to impart distinct ethnic taste to grilled foods including beef, poultry, fish, and vegetables. With the myriad of ready-made bottled marinades available on the market, it's never been easier to juice to make something deliciously different.

Here's a great recipe to take along as a picnic side dish, to top a main-dish salad, to wrap in a tortilla or add to a sandwich. Can be made ahead and kept in refrigerator until ready to use. For a different flavor, substitute another marinade.

MEDITERRANEAN GRILLED VEGETABLE PLATTER

1 cup Mediterranean marinade with lemon juice
12 small portabello mushrooms, cut into ½-inch slices
2 zucchini or yellow squash, cut into 2-inch slices, lengthwise
1 small onion, cut into wedges
1 small Japanese eggplant, cut into ½-inch slices
2 red, green or yellow bell peppers, cut into chunks
6 medium asparagus spears

In large plastic seal-proof storage bag, combine all ingredients; mix well. Seal bag and marinate in refrigerator at least 30 minutes. Remove vegetables, reserve used marinade. Grill or broil mixed vegetables 10-12 minutes or until tender (mushrooms cooked quickly), turning once and basting often with reserved marinade. Vegetables should be slightly charred. Arrange on platter. Makes 6 servings.

Twins Head Centre County Dairy Princess Promotion

PLEASANT GAP (Centre Co.) — The Centre County Dairy Princess Coronation was held recently the evening of June 2 at the Logan Grange Hall. Ashley Judy, daughter of Russ and Barbara Judy, Spring Mills, was crowned Centre County Dairy Princess. Her twin Alanna Judy, was crowned alternate dairy princess.

For judges Doug Hoover, Chuck Schillings, and Jennifer Boob, it was a tough decision. Not just sisters running against each other, but twins, a judge's worst nightmare. Afterwards, an ice cream social was held and no hard feelings were felt.

Ashley is a senior at Penns Valley High School, where she is a varsity cheerleader, captain of the majorette squad, and is a member of the summer and fall marching band. She belongs to the National Honor Society, Venturing Club, and competition cheerleading squad, is the treasurer of the Senior High Choir, and is secretary for the Varsity Club. Her hobbies include hanging out with friends and going to the drive-in movie theatre.

Alanna is also a senior at Penns Valley High School where she is a varsity cheerleader, swimmer, and is the drum major of the Senior High Marching Band. She belongs to the National Honor Society, Venturing Club, Varsity Club, competition cheerleading squad, participates in the high school musical, is the vice president of the Student Council, a peer tutor, and is a senior mentor. She enjoys being in the company of many friends and making lasting memories.

Dairy maids include Courtney Klinger, daughter of Robert and Kim Klinger of Port Matilda; Miranda Ulmer, daughter of Dan and Penny Ulmer, Bellefonte; Brittnee Rossman, daughter of Gary and Corinne Rossman, Spring Mills; Amanda Gates, daughter of Carl and Carla Gates, Warriors Mark; and Ashley Bird, daughter of Richard Jr. and Pat Bird of Pleasant Gap.

Dairy Misses are Nicole Rossman, daughter of Gary and Corinne Rossman, Spring Mills and Nicole Wasson, daughter of Ronald and Candace Wasson, State College.

Dairy Ambassadors are Krystal Wasson, daughter of Ronald and Candace Wasson, State College; Naomi Ulmer, daughter of Dan and Penny Ulmer, Bellefonte; Bethany Wasson, daughter of Doug and Jennifer Wasson, Centre Hall; Heather and Halee Wasson, twin daughters of Ronald and Candace Wasson, State College; and Dakota Rossman, son of Gary and Corinne Rossman, Spring Mills.

All of them will represent the 250 Centre County dairy farmers and their families. The outgoing Centre County Dairy Princess Emily Cloninger, logged 225 promotions during her reign. Congratulations to her for being named the Pennsylvania Alternate Dairy Princess for 2000-2001.

Here is a quick and tasty treat to cool you off in the summer days to come. July is ice cream month and what a better way to celebrate than with this frozen dessert made with real quality ice cream.

Frozen Pumpkin Dessert

¼ cup brown sugar
¾ cup canned pumpkin
½ teaspoon cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ginger
⅛ teaspoon nutmeg
⅛ teaspoon cloves
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 quart vanilla ice cream

Mix together and beat in 1-quart vanilla ice cream. Put into a 9-inch graham cracker crust and freeze.

Wyoming-Lackawanna Team Ready For Dairy Promotion Action

TUNKHANNOCK (Wyoming Co.) — After three years of participating in dairy promotion, Bobbie Sue Adams was crowned Wyoming Lackawanna Counties dairy princess recently.

The 17-year-old senior at Wyalusing High School is the daughter of Robert and Rose Adams of Sugar Run.

"For the last three years, I have participated in the dairy princess program and have grown to love meeting new people and visiting with those I have seen before. My favorite fact to share with people is that chocolate milk has the same nine essential vitamins and mineral as white milk. Flavored milk, contrary to popular beliefs, does not cause hyperactivity in children," Bobbie Sue said.

Dairy Princess Bobbie Sue Adams is surrounded by members who will assist in dairy promotion in Wyoming and Lackawanna Counties, from left, are Ambassador Billy Anderson, Dairy Maid Denise Hardisky, Alternate Becki Carr, and Little Miss Rachel Smarkusky.

The new princess has shown dairy cattle for 10 years through 4-H shows and the Wyoming County Fair. She said, "I show mostly Jerseys. My very first 4-H project, however was a Holstein named Star. But, I chose a Jersey names Cookie as my second 4-H project. Today, most of the cows I show are the offspring from Cookie. I own about 14 cows."

In addition to showing cattle, Bobbie Sue plays on the community soccer team, and in school participates with the Science Olympiad and SADD.

Alternate Dairy Princess Becki Carr, daughter of Paul and Pat Carr of Tunkhannock, has one older brother.

As a senior at Tunkhannock Area High School, she participates in a building construction class. She will be joining the Tunkhannock Chapter of the FFA.

Dairy Ambassador Billy Anderson is the son of George Anderson and Lora Sidel of Tunkhannock. The ninth grader at Tunkhannock Area High School owns two Ayrshire dairy cows that he has shown in 4-H and at the Wyoming County Fair.

Returning for a second year is Dairy Maid Denise Hardisky who is ready to serve the dairy industry again. She is the daughter of Dr. Michael and Beverly Hardisky who reside outside of West Nicholson. On the family farm, the Hardisky's have a 100-head sheep operation, six 4-H market swine, and one 4-H market steer.

Denise attends Lackawanna Trail Junior/Senior High School where she is an eighth grade high honors student. She participates Family Career Community Leaders of America, is a Peer Mediator, and plays clarinet in Concert Band and Marching Band. She has created a competitive registered Shropshire flock, which she shows at local, state, and international levels.

Denise has been a three time Skill A Thon winner at Agricultural Progress Days held in State College. A skill a thon is a five hundred question exam concerning health, management, nutrition, feeds, and meat quality of sheep. She has also been a two-time skill a thon winner at the Pennsylvania State Farm Show. She is an active member of the Susquehanna County Livestock Judging Team, which has enjoyed many wins throughout the past two years.

Rachel Smarkusky, daughter of William and Smarkusky, Nicholson, is a third-grader at Lackawanna Trail Elementary Center. She belongs to Girl Scouts and 4-H, where she has projects in sewing, cooking, flowers, sheep, and pigs.

QUESTION — Virginia Zimmerman, Lititz, wants a recipe for making beef or pork puddings.

QUESTION — A York County reader wants a recipe for Chicken-Peanut Casserole that tastes like that served at Hershey Farms Restaurant.

ANSWER — Here's another recipe for stewed tomatoes sent from Bethany Keeney, Seven Valleys, for the Sensenigs, Ephrata.

Stewed Tomatoes

1 quart tomatoes, pureed
¼ cup butter
½ onion, chopped
½ cup sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch

In medium saucepan, saute onion in butter. Add cornstarch, sugar, and tomatoes. Simmer for 45 minutes, stirring occasionally.

ANSWER — Zayn Muhsin, Philadelphia, would like to have recipes for making processed meats such as sausage, salami, turkey ham, corned beef, bacon, or turkey bacon. Thanks to Cindy Simpson, Fairfield, for sending recipes. The same instructions apply to whichever variety of sausage selected.

East Breakfast Sausage

1 pound ground pork or beef
¼-1 teaspoon sage
¼-½ teaspoon marjoram
¼-½ teaspoon thyme
¼-½ teaspoon coriander
1 teaspoon salt
⅛ teaspoon black pepper
1-3 tablespoons water
3 feet sausage casings

Sausage casings are available from your butcher. Refrigerated they will keep for two years. If using casings, soak in water for two hours or overnight in refrigerator.

Choose the sausage you want to make, Sprinkle the seasonings over the ground meat. Knead until thoroughly blended. Form into patties, a meatloaf or stuff into sausage casings by hand or with a sausage horn. Make a large roll or tie off in 5-18-inch links with a string.

Refrigerate in airtight containers for 2-3 days to allow flavors to blend. If you plan to use the sausage immediately, the spices will not be as strong.

Cooking instructions: Patties: Fry until golden brown. Loaf: Set loaf pan in another pan of hot water in oven. Bake at 350 degrees for 1½ hours or until meat thermometer reaches 160 degrees. Roll or links: Cover with water in fry pan. Simmer 20-30 minutes. Drain water and fry until golden brown. Or use in other recipes.

Only fresh ground meat should be used because the refrigerator life of preservative-free sausage is only 4-5 days. Curing takes 2-3 days. If you cannot use all the sausage, freeze it. It will keep for 1-2 months in the freezer.

Italian Sausage

1 pound medium ground pork or half pork and half beef
1 medium onion, minced
1½ teaspoon salt
1 clove garlic, minced
1 bay leaf, finely crumbled
½ teaspoon black pepper
½ teaspoon fennel seed
¼ teaspoon paprika
⅛ teaspoon thyme
⅛ teaspoon cayenne pepper
3 feet sausage casings (optional)

Polish Kielbasa

2 pounds coarsely ground pork butt
¾ pound finely ground beef
1½ teaspoon coarse salt
1½ teaspoon crushed peppercorns
1½ teaspoon marjoram
1 tablespoons paprika
2 cloves garlic, minced
1 teaspoon honey (optional)
½ teaspoon ground nutmeg
6-feet sausage casings (optional)

ANSWER — A reader from Blaine had questions about the recipe for Strawberry Delight sent in by Anna Mae Nolt, Shippensburg, who answered that the crushed berries and the 16-ounces of whipped topping are added at the same time as the other ingredients and beaten with a mixer or by hand. The recipe fills two large dishes.

ANSWER — For people who have grapes, try these recipes. If you don't have grapes, you can substitute purchased grape juice.

Lemon Grape Tea

4 cups boiling water
8 lemon-herb tea bags
11.5 ounces grape juice concentrate, thawed

In medium saucepan, pour water over tea bags and let stand, covered, 5 minutes. Remove tea bags. Add undiluted grape juice concentrate and stir to combine. Reheat if necessary. Pour into mugs and garnish with lemon.

Great Grape BBQ Sauce

1 onion, finely chopped
2 tablespoons vegetable oil
2 tablespoons chili powder
11.5-ounces grape juice concentrate, thawed
2 6-ounce cans tomato paste
2 tablespoons cider vinegar
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce

In medium saucepan over medium heat, cook onion in oil until tender, about 5 minutes, stirring occasionally. Add chili powder and cook an additional minute. Stir in remaining ingredients; heat to a boil, stirring constantly. Stir over low heat 5 minutes to blend flavors. Use to baste meat or chicken when grilling or broiling. Refrigerate any leftover sauce. Makes about 3 cups.

Chilled Grape Souffle

1½-2 quarts wild or Concord grapes
¾ cup plus 6 tablespoons sugar
1 tablespoon unflavored gelatin
3 tablespoons plus 2 tablespoons cold water
6 egg whites
½ teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup heavy whipping cream
Whipped cream and mint for garnish

Wash and peel grapes, separating the skins from the flesh; skins should slip off easily.

In a medium-heavy saucepan, cook the insides of grapes until they turn into juice, about 10 minutes. Makes about 2 cups juice.

Pass juice through a sieve or stainer set over a medium-sized bowl to remove the seeds. Discard the seeds. Add the grape skins and ¾ cup sugar to the juice. Reserve approximately ½ cup mixture to cover bottom of serving dish.

Return mixture to the pan; place on stove and cook the mixture until liquid has been reduced to 1 cup, about 30 minutes.

Add gelatin to cold water in a small dish, stir to dissolve; add to the grape mixture. Remove the grape mixture from the heat and let it cool thoroughly. This can be preserved in jars at this point.

GREEN BEANS, PEAS, AND CORN

1 can French-style green beans
1 can whole white shoe peg corn
1 can small peas
1 can pimento
1 green pepper
4 stalks celery sticks

Dressing:
1 cup sugar
1 cup vinegar
½ cup salad oil
1 teaspoon salt (optional)
½ teaspoon paprika

Drain green beans, white corn, peas, and pimento. Add green pepper, celery, and onion. Heat and pour dressing over vegetables. Refrigerate overnight. Drain before serving. Serves 6-8.

SAVORY BAKED ZUCCHINI

2 tablespoons butter
6 small zucchini or summer squash, cut into ¼-inch slices
⅓ cup chopped red pepper
1 teaspoon Italian seasoning
½ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
4 eggs
1 cup light cream or half-and-half
1 cup shredded provolone cheese
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoon romano cheese

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Melt butter in a large skillet. Saute zucchini, red pepper, and seasonings until vegetables are tender crisp, about 5 minutes; set aside. Beat eggs until foamy. Stir in cream, provolone cheese, and flour. Add vegetable mixture. Pour into well-buttered 1½-quart rectangular baking dish. Sprinkle romano cheese over top. Bake until knife inserted near center comes out clean, about 40 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

Rain Falls But Doesn't Dampen Spirit Of Sullivan County Parade

Danielle Bagley, left, was crowned Sullivan County dairy princess while Elizabeth Reibson was named the alternate dairy princess.

CAROLYN MOYER

DUSHORE (Sullivan Co.) — Pouring rain could not dampen the spirits of Sullivan County's dairy promoters as they recently hosted their annual parade and princess crowning ceremony.

Participants and parade watchers pulled out umbrellas and donned raincoats to celebrate the theme "Be a Survivor, Drink Milk," as Danielle Bagley accepted the Sullivan County dairy princess title and Elizabeth Reibson was named the Sullivan County alternate princess.

Bagley is the daughter of Zane and Becky Bagley, Shunk. The 16-year-old princess attends Sullivan County High School where she will study cosmetology this fall through the vocational-technical education program. She is employed at Becky's ice cream stand and at Hemlock Girl Scout Camp.

Reibson is the daughter of Andrew and SunNyeo Reibson, Forksville. She will be a junior at Sullivan County High School in the fall. She is employed at Becky Bagley's Ice Cream Stand and helps on her grandfather's dairy farm.

Serving as dairy maids are Victoria Woodhead, daughter of Jay and Gum Woodhead, Forksville; Aubrey Frazier, daughter of William and Marianna Frazier, Muncy Valley; Anna Reibson, daughter of Andrew and SunNyeo Reibson, Forksville; and Ashley Broschart, daughter of James and Georganne Broschart, Dushore.

Four young ladies will serve as Sullivan County dairy maids. From left are Ashley Broschart, Anna Reibson, Aubrey Frazier, and Victoria Woodhead.

As part of their annual dairy promotion events, fifth graders are asked to participate in a poster contest. Judge Joan Moore, of Forksville, named the winners from each school. At Laport Elementary School the winners were Sky Woodhead, Ben Fiester, and Nicole Roman with an honorable mention award going to Courtney Grahnam. From Turnpike Elementary, winners were Allen Williams, Sabrina Trapani, and Kimberly Blasi with an honorable mention award going to Amy Homer.

Cook's Question

In a small pan, combine 6 tablespoons sugar with 3 tablespoons water. Bring to a boil, and heat to the softball stage or 250 degrees on a candy thermometer.

Meanwhile, in a standard mixer fitted with a whisk, whip egg whites with cream of tartar until fluffy. As the whites whip, add hot sugar syrup, pouring it down the sides of the bowl. Continue to whisk until stiff peaks form.

Whip the heavy cream and set aside. Place the grape mixture into a large bowl. Using a large rubber spatula, lightly stir in one-third of the egg whites just until incorporated. Gently fold in the remaining egg whites by thirds.

Fold the whipped cream into the grape-egg white mixture until well incorporated. Mound the mixture into six one-cup ramekins and chill at least 4-5 hours.

To serve, garnish with a dollop of whipped cream and a sprig of fresh mint.

Eating Right Is Basic

Program Teaches Kids to Whip Up Cool, Nutritious Treats

CAROLYN N. MOYER
Tioga Co. Correspondent

WELLSBORO (Tioga Co.) — What could be better on a warm summer day than a frosty cool drink? And, when that drink includes milk as a main ingredient, you get a wholesome dose of nutrition as well.

Getting kids to drink more milk and include healthy foods in the diet is one of Dawn Bowers' goals as a nutrition education adviser with Penn State Cooperative Extension of Tioga County. Through her role, she works one on one with elementary students, showing them how easy it is to create delicious, nutritious snacks. She has also teamed up with the dairy princess program in order to further the message.

"Our purpose is to find something that the kids can do. We also want to offer something that can compete with soda and sugared drinks," said Bowers. "We went into eight schools from April through June and reached more than 500 kids."

Her specialty this spring was shaker drinks made with common household ingredients.

'There are common things you can use to make these drinks," said Bowers. 'You don't need a blender or electricity. All you need is a container with a tight fitting lid, ice cubes and the ingredients for the drink."

For most of her school visits, Bowers chose to demonstrate the "Chocolate Smoothie" and the "Orange Dream Shake."

The Chocolate Smoothie requires:

1 cup of cold milk
1 tablespoon chocolate syrup
1 scoop vanilla ice cream
1-2 ice cubes

The Orange Dream Shake recipe calls for:

¼ cup orange juice
1 teaspoon sugar or maple syrup
½ cup milk
1 scoop vanilla ice cream
2-3 ice cubes

The secret is having a half full container and ice cubes. It makes the drink very frothy," she said.

Recipe sheets with these recipes and others were given to the kids as well as other nutrition information.

Besides concocting delicious shaker drinks, Bowers also totes along nutrition educational supplies including a giant food pyramid, turkey bones and flour canisters.

'I bring in a turkey bone that has been soaking in bleach so the kids can see what a porous bone looks like. I also show them how much calcium is in your body at different ages. That's where we use the flour canisters. The flour represents the total amount of calcium in your body. I explain to them that calcium is the mineral that makes your bones hard," she said.

People are amazed when they see that a typical adult has 11 cups of calcium, at 15 years old, you have about seven cups of calcium, at age 10, three and a half cups, and a newborn has just ¼ cup of calcium. A woman with osteoporosis has only six and a half cups of calcium.

Leona Schmouder, who teaches third grade at Liberty Elementary School, has been using the project materials for several years. "We choose about six units each year. The children learn about good nutrition and kitchen safety habits. They also learn to taste new things and actually take part in making them," she said.

In addition to preparing and tasting the shaker drinks, each year Mrs. Schmouder's class also hosts a sandwich-tasting party where kids are challenged to bring sandwiches made from something other than luncheon meat.

"We get a lot of peanut butter with anything you can think of," she said. This year we also had one student bring in cheese with green ketchup."

Sandwiches are cut into small pieces so students can sample different concoctions.

"Some kids are more daring than others. Some won't try anything," Mrs. Schmouder said.

The third graders at Liberty also spend time talking about different breakfast foods that they can prepare by themselves.

"We always go to breakfast together and talk about the different food groups in the meal. "Anything we do with food, they really enjoy."

As with any good lesson, the kids are encouraged to take the information home and share their knowledge with others. Each lesson comes with a worksheet full of nutrition information and new recipes to try, like taco pizza.

"I encourage them to get their families involved," said Bowers. "I always ask them who is at home who can help. That way we get more people involved."

How much calcium is in your bones at age 15? How much calcium is in an infant's bones? What about an adult's bones? Here these kids try to match the age group with the correct amount of calcium (represented by flour).

The prickly pear cactus has the potential for becoming a tasty inexpensive addition to North American diets. There are more than 100 species of prickly pears in the U.S. alone and Arizona contains 11 common varieties.

These species differ in taste due to their chemical makeup, the time of year, the age of the pad, the soil, the rainfall, and the climate. For these reasons, the recipes developed use only one type of cactus — Burbank Spineless.

The Burbank Spineless is easy to distinguish from other varieties because it has a minimum of spines. This makes the pad easier to handle than other varieties. The flavor is excellent, and the plants are found in abundance in the Tucson are and shipped to supermarkets across the U.S.

Prickly pear cactus pads, commonly called nopales, can be used as a vegetable similar to green pepper or okra when properly prepared. They can also furnish important nutrients to the diet. A generous serving of nopales will supply approximately 112 milligrams of the recommended daily allowance for vitamin C. It also contains several important minerals (such as potassium, iron, and calcium), which are needed for proper body function. Vitamin A is present in lesser amounts but still contributes to the amount of vitamins needed daily.

Nopales are also low in calories. They provide only 37 calories per 3 ½ ounce serving and are comparable to broccoli or carrots in calories per ounce. The amount of carbohydrate in the cactus pads tends to vary according to the age of the pad, the soil, and the season. Minerals in the prickly pear also vary. In the southwestern United States, amounts of potassium, magnesium and calcium will be higher than in areas with more rainfall.

The Indians and Mexicans have known for centuries that the common prickly pear is an excellent food source. The Mexicans still use the nopales in their dishes today. They can be purchased in the produce department and the pads will stay fresh for up to two weeks, if stored in an airtight container in the refrigerator.

To prepare for cooking, grasp the pad in one hand, and with a paring knife scrape off the tiny stickers. Do this under running water, or rinse thoroughly and inspect for stickers. Try to peel off the tough outer skin. Often it will peel like a ripe peach. Now cut the pad into desired size.

For most recipes, it is necessary to first parboil the nopales (about 5-10 minutes) until firm but tender. This insures the right texture, and removes most of the slime found in the prickly pear. When the prices of green peppers rise, nopales can be substituted for green pepper in shish kabobs, pizza, omelets, and pepper steak. It can be used instead of green beans in casseroles, or three-bean salad. Try it-you might like it!

Dreaded Lily Beetle Invades

ITHACA, N.Y. — The lily leaf beetle, an invasive species that dines on and destroys ornamental lily plants, has been found in New York state's North Country, say Cornell University entomologists. This is the first sighting of the beetles in the state. And beside their habit of devastating lilies, the young beetles also possess an interesting habit of personal hygiene — covering themselves with their own excrement.

The beetle's (Lilioceris lilii) discovery in New York state was made by two Cornell Cooperative Extension (CCE) master gardeners in separate locations, and each without the other's knowledge. Master gardeners are trained volunteers who provide New York state's home gardeners with research-based information. Pat Macomber, a CCE master gardener in Mooers, N.Y., near the Canadian border, found the small, distinctive red beetles in her garden in late May. At the same time, Alan Tetreault, a CCE master gardener from Plattsburgh, N.Y., had been asked by a neighbor to identify the unusual beetles.

Tetreault brought the beetle specimens into the Clinton County Cooperative Extension office and showed them to Amy Ivy, a CCE educator in horticulture. Immediately, Ivy sent the beetles to E. Richard Hoebeke, a Cornell entomologist and curator of the university's entomology collection, who confirmed the identification.

The lily leaf beetles likely stowed away aboard a European plant shipment, and they first were found on this continent in 1942 near Montreal, but it was not until 1992 that they were first seen in the Boston area. Scientists are not sure if these two sightings are from the same infestation. Since their discovery in Boston, the beetles have been spotted throughout eastern Massachusetts and have continued to spread throughout the eastern regions of New England. By 1998 and 1999, the beetles were found in New Hampshire and along the southern border of Maine. They have been seen on the northwestern border of Vermont and now in New York state.

When Ivy had a television call-in gardening program in Plattsburgh, viewers as far away as Montreal would call to ask about the damage the beetles were causing.

"These beetles move fast, they are hard to handle and they really devour the plants. It's amazing," said Ivy. "That's why the viewers in Montreal were complaining about them so bitterly."

The adult beetles stay alive throughout the winter and emerge early in the spring, when they begin looking for food and mates. The adult females lay their eggs on the underside of lily and solanum leaves and produce between 250 and 450 eggs, according to research by Richard Casagrande, an entomologist at the University of Rhode Island. The eggs appear in April or May and hatch within eight days.

Specifically, the beetles attack Asiatic lilies (Lilium sp .) and Fritillaria , according to Carolyn Klass, a Cornell extension educator in entomology. The young larvae feed on the underside and the upper surface of lily leaves and sometimes on lily buds. This feeding period, which lasts 16-to-24 days, is the most destructive. From there, the beetles drop to the soil and pupate, emerging as adults about 16-to-22 days later, according to Casagrande. They feed throughout the rest of the growing season.

And their personal hygiene leaves something to be desired: While they feed, the lily leaf beetles cover their bodies with their own excrement, giving them a grotesque appearance.

"It must be some sort of defensive mechanism," says Hoebeke. "It makes them look like a bird dropping, warding off predators and parasites. Tortoise beetles, for example, put fecal material on their backs for that reason."

Casagrande concurs with Hoebeke saying that the larvae cover themselves with their own feces to reduce being hunted by birds and ants.

What can be done to stave off the invasive beetle? Not much, says Hoebeke. "Based on what I've read, it is widespread in Eurasia. There, the egg batches on the underside can be destroyed by hand."

Ronald D. Gardner, a Cornell extension educator with Cornell's Pesticide Management Education Program, says there are two pesticides registered in New York that may be applied to control the beetles: Ornazin and Schultz Houseplant & Garden Bug Spray. Ornazin (EPA 5481-476) contains a biochemical pesticide that is extracted from the Neem tree and is formulated to be mixed with water. It affects the insect while in the larval stage by interrupting molting and it also may repel the adults. Schultz Houseplant & Garden Bug Spray (EPA 1021-1667-39609) comes in an aerosol can. It may be sprayed on the plant to control both adults and larval stages of leaf beetles. Gardner says, however, he cannot guarantee the effectiveness of these products until they are tested for this particular beetle.

How Do They Get All Those Vitamins And Minerals Into Fortified Cereals?

Adding nutrients to a cereal can cause taste and color changes in product. This is especially true with added minerals.

Since no one wants cereal that tastes like a vitamin supplement, a variety of techniques are employed in the fortification process. In general, those nutrients that are heat stable (such as vitamins A, and E and various minerals) are incorporated into the cereal itself: they're baked right in.

Non-heat-stable nutrients (such as B-vitamins) are applied directly to the cereal after all heating steps are completed. Each cereal is unique — some can handle more nutrients than others can, which is one reason why fortification levels are different across all cereals.

ANSWER — A reader thanks the person who sent directions on how to play the game, "All about Lancaster County."

ANSWER — Jackie Hall wanted to know how to grow colored moss on coal. Here is a different version from that printed last week. Thanks to a Leola reader for sending the instructions.

Snowflake Plant

4 teaspoons baking soda
4 teaspoons liquid bluing
4 teaspoons salt

Mix together and pour over sulfer coal. Should be stored in dry, dark room and in a glass container. Do not cover.

If you want white moss, add a few drops iodine. If you want pink moss, add a few drops Mercurochrome.

ANSWER — Dr. Robert MacDonald thanks the person who supplied the answers to his questions about Plexiglass and Ashley stoves. For those who might be interested, MacDonald writes that the Ashley Stove Company has been sold to Y.S. Stove Company, Pittsburgh, Tenn. Phone 1-888-299-1440, extension 3102.

ANSWER — Mrs. Luke Hoover, Mifflinburg, wanted to know where to buy flower bulb baskets, used to grow and store bulbs, at a low price. Thanks to J. Gehman, Newburg, for suggesting Michigan Bulb Co., 1950 Waldorf NW, Grand Rapids, MI 49550-0500. They will send a free catalog upon request.

ANSWER — Arlene Lingle, Boalsburg, wanted to know where she can purchase green roof paint, not rust-o-leum. She writes that the paint is like the silver and black with fiber. Thanks to Joyce Stuff, Mercersburg, who recommends writing to the Gibson-Homans Co., 1755 Enterprise Parkway, Twinsburg, Ohio 44087. Joyce writes that a local hardware store has special ordered red roof paint from that company for years. The five-gallon bucket is called Black Jack Colored Roof and Sidewall Coating.

QUESTION — Thanks to Terry Fake for e-mailing answers to two questions: A reader wants to know where to purchase half-gallon size freezer boxes, and a Leola reader wanted to know where to buy good, unbreakable plastic freezer boxes. Freezer boxes of various sizes are sold by the United States Plastic Corp., 1390 Neubrecht Rd., Lima, Ohio. You can also check out the Website www.usplastics.com.

Armyworms Invade Lawns In Southeast Pennsylvania

Extension offices and lawn care companies have received numerous calls over the last few weeks about a plague of worms. They've been described as inchworms, cutworms, and other not-so-nice names. They've been found by the thousands falling in swimming pools, crawling over driveways and up houses, and crunching underfoot (YUCK) . Most annoying is the fact that they are wiping out lawns throughout many neighborhoods in Berks and the surrounding area.

What are these creatures? They are armyworms. It is normal to see a few during the summer months, but this year's infestation is something else.

So where did they come from? Another fluke, nobody really knows. Armyworms do not overwinter in our area, but are prevalent in the south. Most normal years we get a few that blow northward with storm systems. These rarely amount to much. There is speculation that this year's armyworms arrived with air masses associated with hurricane Allison, which blew the adult moths over our area. These females laid their eggs on the grass in lawns and other field grasses in enormous numbers, resulting in the infestation of thousands of lawns and fields.

The adult moths do not cause any feeding damage. They feed on the nectar of many trees and shrubs, and can be seen at porch lights at night. The moth is pretty unimpressive. It has a wingspan of about 2 inches, and the wings are light-caramel colored. The front wings have one white spot in the middle.

The larvae are smooth caterpillars, not hairy like gypsy moth larvae or woolly bears. These "worms" can reach 1½ inches in length. The main body color varies among individuals from almost yellow, to yellow- green, to dark brown, and there are distinctive stripes running along the length of the armyworm. The stripes are alternating dark and a salmon pink.

Armyworms actively feed on plants in the grass family during the night. Their feeding creates brown patches in turf that first appear like heat and drought stress. The grass leaves themselves are ragged from where the armyworms feed on them. In large areas the blades are clipped right to the ground. When the population is high, feeding produces bare circular areas.

If you walk over the lawn during mid-day, you may miss them since the worms rest during the heat of the day in the thatch. In the late evening and early morning, or on cloudy days, they are out in force and many people have described seeing the lawn "moving" as caterpillars crawl over the turf looking for food. Many lawns are damaged along mulched beds or other protected areas, since the armyworms retreat to these sheltered areas to spend the day and then invade the lawn to feed.

One yard was completely brown in the area around the compost pile. It seems that the homeowner collected armyworms along with the grass clippings and then deposited them on a pile to compost. The armyworms quickly dispersed from there, eating all the grass in their path!

What to do? The good news is that armyworm feeding rarely kills the turf, since they are just mowing off the tops. However, additional stresses from heat or drought can combine with armyworm damage to kill grass. A light fertilization and watering if weather turns hot and dry can help the lawn recover.

For large populations, treatment for armyworms can be done with many labeled insecticides, especially fast-acting synthetic pyrethroids. There are also biological insecticides available. Discuss insecticide options with your lawn care professional or your county extension agent. For best results, apply late in the day to the leaf blades they will be feeding on. No need to water it in, and liquid applications are more effective than dry.

The invasion of armyworms will likely end as quickly and unexpectedly as it began. There can be two or three generations during the summer months, but usually the first one is most damaging. Be on the lookout during August for reinfestation.

Pennsylvania Beef Council staff launch summer grilling tour with television station WHTM-27.

Beef Council Launches Media Tour To Celebrate Grilling Season

MIDDLETOWN (Dauphin Co.) — To help launch the summer grilling season, the Pennsylvania Beef Council teamed with Chef Charlie Gipe, Hershey Park, to promote beef at central Pennsylvania media stations.

In April, Chef Charlie marinated beef brisket at his Easter tailgate with BOB 94.9, a Harrisburg country station. While Chef Charlie shared his secrets to preparing the perfect brisket, Beef Council staff conducted interviews with morning disc jockeys on BOB and COOL 99.3, an oldies station.

In May, WHTM-27, the Harrisburg-area ABC affiliate, broadcast their "Live At Five" show from the Beef Council office. Chef Charlie prepared four beef dishes for viewers and Beef Council staff discussed the importance of summer-time food safety. In May, Beef Council staff also conducted a 30-minute "Beef. It's What's For Dinner."® segment at Blue Ridge Cable, Ephrata.

The grilling tour is just one project funded by Pennsylvania's beef, dairy and veal producers through the national beef checkoff. For more information on this program or the beef checkoff, contact the Pennsylvania Beef Council office at (717) 939-7000.

Marinades Make Meats More Fun

Marinades add flavor and tenderness to any meat or fish. You can buy less expensive cuts of meat and make them moist so you can enjoy them thoroughly.

Most marinades contain some type of acid, such as wine, vinegar, or tomato or lemon juice. The acid adds flavor and acts as a tenderizer. Seasonings, such as herb and spices, add more flavor. Marinades can also contain sugar or oil, but neither are necessary and can be eliminated to cut calories.

Some basic marinade guidelines:

— Make your own by combining one acidic ingredient, one herb and one oth er flavoring, such as garlic, hot pepper sauce, Dijon mustard, Worcestershire or ginger.

— Use two-thirds to one cup of marinade for every one to 1.5 pounds of food.

— Use zipper-seal plastic bags to marinate in. You generally need less marinade that way, and you can easily turn them to distribute the marinade evenly.

If you prefer to marinate in a deep dish or pan, avoid metal containers. The marinade's acid can pit the metal, adding an off-flavor to meat and ruining the container.

— Experiment with seasonings. Often, labels indicate what sort of meat or fish herbs and spices partner best with. Or, check cookbooks or cooking magazines for ideas.

— The longer you soak the meat or fish in marinade, the stronger the flavorings will be.

— Food-safety specialists discourage marinating raw meat or fish at room temperature. Instead, use the refrigerator to prevent harmful bacteria from building up. If you feel you must marinate at room temperature, do so for no longer than an hour immediately before cooking.

— If you want to offer some marinade at the table to use as a sauce on the cooked meat, it's best to make extra and use fresh marinade for that. You can bet that used marinade contains bacteria from the raw meat. It's possible to boil used marinade to kill bacteria before re-using it, but again, food-safety specialists discourage the practice. Some types of bacteria produce toxins that don't go away no matter how long you boil them.

— Salad dressings, either regular or low- or no-calorie, often make good (and easy) marinades. Or, try a bottled marinade available at the meat counter or condiment section of your grocery store.

'Soy' In Soy Sauce Is From The Bean

If soy sauce is really made from soybeans, why isn't it light-colored, like soybeans?

Soybeans actually do provide the basis for soy sauce. Traditionally-made soy sauce is produced from a mixture of soybean meal, roasted grain (wheat, most often) and salt. It's fermented and aged for four to six months, producing that unique flavor. The color comes from the grain and the fermenting process. But you can rest assured, the "soy" in soy sauce is what you think it is.

Not all types of soy sauce are made the traditional way. Some manufacturers process soybeans into hydrolyzed vegetable protein, and add salt, corn syrup and coloring to come up with a reasonable facsimile of the traditional sauce. This version is an even farther cry from the original sauce, which didn't contain any soy.

Food historians say soy sauce originated in ancient Asia. Then, people preserved meat and fish by packing it in salt. Liquid would leach out, and Asian cooks began using that liquid as a base for broth and seasoning. Soybeans didn't have anything to do with it until the sixth century, when Buddhism began to sweep the countryside and vegetarianism began to be widely practiced. Soy sauce was developed as a vegetarian version of the traditional liquid.

Most nutritionists recommend going easy on the soy sauce because of its high sodium content. According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Nutrient Database, a teaspoon of soy sauce contains anywhere from 288 milligrams to 341 milligrams of sodium, depending on how it's made. Reduced-sodium versions have significantly less - 177 milligrams. But be sure to read the label. "Light" usually refers to lower sodium, but it's possible that it's referring to color (as in "light" brown sugar). The label should make the meaning clear.

The Dietary Guidelines for Americans recommends no more than 2,400 milligrams of sodium daily. There is some controversy about that figure, though. The recommendation stems from a link in about 10 percent of the population between high sodium intake and high blood pressure. However, there is no way to tell who will develop high blood pressure from too much salt. High salt intake can also increase the amount of calcium excreted in the urine, so if you do eat a lot of salt, be sure to increase your calcium intake, too, to reduce the risk of osteoporosis and bone fractures.

4-H HAPPENINGS

4-H Shooting Sports Competition At Springtown

Over 50 4-H youth participants from Bucks, Montgomery, Schuylkill, and Northampton counties participated in the 4-H Southeast Regional Shooting Sports Competition at Springtown Rod and Gun Club recently.

Fifteen certified 4-H adult instructors supervised the event. 4-H Shooting Sports teaches education, safety, and skill development in Air Pistol, Air Rifle, .22 Rifle, and Archery. Youth learn and practice by shooting at paper targets with safety education the most important factor.

In the Air Pistol Senior Division, Ages 16-18, Mark Smedberg, son of James and Immogene Smedberg, of Chalfont, was awarded the Gold and Nathan Crooke, son of Jim and Gail Crooke, of Perkasie, took home the Silver. In the Air Pistol Junior Division, Ages 13-15, Michael Esposito, son of Fidel and Nancy Esposito, of Chalfont, won the Gold.

In the .22 Rifle Senior Division, Nathan Crooke took home the Gold. In the .22 Junior Division, BJ Strouse, son of Robert and Heidi Strouse, of Sellersville, won the Gold and Jacob Crooke, son of Jim and Gail Crooke, of Perkasie, was awarded the Silver. In the .22 Rifle Sub-Junior Division, Ages 8-12, Seth Lange, son of Thomas and Debra Lange, of Kintnersville, took home the Gold.

In the Archery Junior Division, BJ Strouse took home the Bronze and in the Sub-Junior Division, Daniel Lang, son of Carl and Cynthia Lang, of Yardley, was awarded the Bronze. The Junior Archery team that consisted of BJ Strouse, Ginger Boer, daughter of Ken and Barbara Boer, of Warminster, Austin Hall, son of Scott and Austin Hall, of Churchville, and Ross Lang, son of Carl and Cynthia Lang, of Yardley, placed first to win the Gold.

In the Air Rifle Senior Division, Andrew Clark, son of John and Debra Clark, of Sellersville, won the Silver. The Senior Air Rifle Team consisting of Andrew Clark, Nathan Crooke, Kim Reichner, daughter of Bob Reichner and Marti Neiman, of Perkasie, and Julia Krout, daughter of Becky Krout, of Blooming Glen, was awarded the Gold.

In the Air Rifle Junior Division, Tami Reichman, daughter of Steve and Tacey Reichman, of Perkasie, won the Gold, William Marek, son of Bill and Debbie Marek, of Kintersville, won the Silver, and Jesse Moyer, son of Dan and Ruth Ann Moyer, of Doylestown, was awarded the Bronze. The Junior Air Rifle Team consisting of Tami Reichman, William Marek, Jesse Moyer, and Scot Reichman, son of Steve and Tacey Reichman, of Perkasie, won the Gold.

Graduating Without Debt — College And The Credit Trap

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Pizza. Beer. Shopping. Books. University apparel. How do college students pay for all the expenses of college life?

According to USA Today (www.usatoday.com), 78 percent of today's college students carry plastic; 32 percent have four or more credit cards. And, the majority of those student cardholders carry balances over month after month, after month. When graduation comes, the average student will have accumulated $15,000 of debt.

While it's too late to prevent the Class of 2001 from graduating with credit card debt, the time is ripe to educate your incoming freshman about credit.

• Begin with the basics. Be sure to stress that, except for emergencies, your child shouldn't charge more than he or she can repay at the end of the month. Let your child know that when bills aren't paid in full, the outstanding balance accrues finance charges. Explain how it could take years to pay off even a modest balance if he or she pays only the minimum due each month. You can use an online calculator, such as the one found at www.kiplinger.com to demonstrate how long it takes to pay off a credit card balance at different payment levels. Finally, point out the fact that there is no need for more than one credit card. The more cards he or she has, the more likely that your child can get into financial trouble.

• Teaser rates, annual percentage rates (APR), and credit card fees. Help your child comparison-shop for the best card and warn him or her about "teaser" rates. A credit card that starts with a six-month interest rate of eight percent, then climbs to 19 percent after the initial period ends, is no bargain. Suggest that your child compare credit cards based on what the APR will be after any initial offers have expired.

Novice credit card users also need to know that fees for late payments, over-the-credit-limit fees, and cash advances can be substantial. For example, a student who charges a CD and forgets to pay the bill could easily end up with a late fee that exceeds the cost of two CDs.

• Establishing credit history. When it comes to credit cards, perhaps the most critical lesson of all is the importance of building a good credit history. College students must understand that their credit records, just like their transcripts, can have a lasting impact on their future. Explain to them that credit bureaus keep track of credit card holders' payment histories and sell those reports upon request to employers, landlords, lenders, and others that may need to rely on that information in the future.

• Practice makes perfect. If you want to give your child a chance to practice before moving on to the real thing, contact your credit card issuer and request that he or she be made an "authorized user" on your account. This way they get used to having plastic in their wallets but they can't run up debt without your knowledge. When your monthly statement arrives, review the child's charges with them and collect their share of the bill. Whatever you do, don't forgive the debt or grant a payment extension — you can be sure Visa and MasterCard won't.

A great credit card alternative is a debit or check card. Issued by credit unions and other financial institutions, debit cards operate similar to credit cards except that the money is directly withdrawn from the cardholder's checking account. For example, a debit card that carries a Visa or MasterCard logo is accepted at any merchant or restaurant that accepts Visa or MasterCard. But, because the money comes out of your account, there are no interest charges. Debit cards are safer to carry than cash and more convenient than checks.

Used correctly, a credit card can be a learning tool that provides convenience, cash protection, worldwide merchant acceptance, an emergency source of cash and a head start on establishing a good credit history. For more information in regards to credit or other financial issued faced by young adults, visit www.creditunionsrock.com.

30 Youths Show Pigs At WNY Hog Show

HAMBURG, N.Y. — Following the first annual WNY Hog Preview Classic presented by the Erie County Agricultural Society on Saturday, June 16, at the Hamburg Fairgrounds, 17-year-old pig exhibitor Josh Kwilos of Forestville commented, "This is a great competition for the kids, and it also helped us get ready for the fair."

With over 30 youths between the ages of six and 19 from all over New York and Pennsylvania showing their pigs, the WNY Hog Preview Classic was started so that there would be another competition for the kids to show and gain experience, especially the young kids, as well as new exhibitors who have never shown their pigs in competition before.

"This type of show is very important because it gives the exhibitors an opportunity to become more experienced show persons, and take what they learned home to better themselves and their pigs," said Jessica Gominiak, competition organizer and Competitive Exhibits and Agricultural Coordinator for the Erie County Fair. "The show is also a great place for first time exhibitors and kids not yet old enough for 4-H to get a feel for what it feels like to be in the show ring and compete with other kids."

The success of the show was largely due to the competition's judge, Joey Johnson, from Wilmington, Ohio. Not only did he explain to the exhibitors and those in the attendance why he ranked each animal and showman the way he did, but he also took the time to talk to each youth during the showmanship competition and explain what they were doing wrong and how they could improve their performance. Johnson even asked the senior showman (ages 16-19) to drive their pigs around a large barrel, a very difficult skill rarely seen in competition.

"It was great that all the kids could have one-on-one contact with the judge," agreed Gominiak. "I am sure that they all learned something new."

The competition included a hog show, where each pig was shown and judged on its overall balance, including soundness, structure and muscle. Debbie, the pig shown by Josh Kwilos, was judged the grand champion, and the reserve champion was awarded to the pig shown by 18-year-old Eric Bond of West Valley.

The second part of the show was a showmanship competition, in which each exhibitor was judged based on their appearance, ability to control their animal, and how well they followed the judge's instructions. Matt Kulijiowski, 17, of Collins, was awarded the grand champion showman, and Daniel Gowanlock, 13, of East Aurora, the reserve showman.

The Erie County Agricultural Society along with Andolina Angus Farms presented the Empire State Junior Preview Classic II June 29 and June 30 in the Livestock Arena of the Hamburg Fairgrounds. The competition was designed to give young adults, 21 and younger, the opportunity to show their heifers and steers at a pre-season show.

Composted Mushroom Manure Should Be Used Sparingly

Ronald Hostetler
Penn State
Cooperative Extension

EBENSBURG (Cambria Co.) — Composted mushroom manure can be pretty good stuff, but should be used in moderation unless well composted to reduce nutrient levels.

The manure can be mixed in with the existing soil as with other supplements, such as peat moss, so the manure never makes up more than about 20-25 percent of the final soil mixture volume. That means one inch of manure mixed with the top four to five inches of existing soil.

Ideally, the mushroom manure is mixed with the soil before planting. Do not "top dress" the plants with the mushroom manure like it was bark or straw. Avoid much direct contact between the mushroom manure and the plants at first.

A side dressing of manure with already planted plants could be done, but the nutrients from the manure would be more slowly available for plant growth, and the improved soil structure produced from mixing in the composted manure would not occur very much.

Grass clippings are a common mulch although they can get pretty moldy and unpleasant for gardeners with allergies. Unlike straw, grass clippings can be pretty dense as a mulch if too deep this denseness will hamper water penetration near plants. I would much rather see grass clippings used around tomatoes than around any of the leafy vegetables.

Inevitably, some of the clippings will end up on the leaves of lettuce, spinach and the like and these will seem like fish bones when encountered in a salad. I have found them almost impossible to remove completely from the leaves once there.

Also, grass clippings can encourage slugs which will really do a job on the plant leaves at night. This probably would not happen with tomatoes.

Bottom line — use some grass clippings as mulch around plants with harvestable fruit up high like tomatoes (staked or caged, not laying on the ground), peas, Brussels sprouts, raspberries and the like. Compost them or mix them with the soil before planting to improve soil structure in most situations.

One other thing about grass clippings that could be a problem with sensitive plants, including tomatoes. Grass clippings might be a source of herbicides applied to the lawn to kill broad-leaved weeds. Such chemicals will also kill or damage almost any garden plant when the concentration is high enough. If herbicides have not been on the lawn or it has been several months since application, grass clippings around garden plants may have little herbicide residue left and could be OK. If there is any doubt about herbicides having been used or if the garden plants are stressed from lack of water or very hot or cold conditions, do not use the grass clippings in the garden. Dispose of them elsewhere.

We Salute Our Farming Industry

Ag Census Reveals Nation's Food Sources

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Backyard barbecues are an American summer staple. Though we don't have fixed menus, you can almost count on traditional favorites, such as hamburgers and hot dogs, chicken, ribs, garden salads, potato salad, chips, fresh fruit, and beans.

Did you ever wonder where these foods were produced?

Many areas of our Nation contribute to this bountiful menu, but we want to highlight Pennsylvania and counties that are the top producers as shown by the 1997 Census of Agriculture State and county data.

The beef on your backyard grill could have come from Pennsylvania. It was the 20th ranked state in cattle fattened on grain and concentrates sold, with over 169,000 head. Lancaster County ranked 58th nationally in cattle and calves sold, with over 151,000 head.

Now we know the answer to the question, "Where's the beef?", but a more perplexing question might be "Where's the pork?" Iowa, traditionally the top state in hogs and pigs sold, accounted for about one-fifth of the nation's total. However, your hot dogs and ribs may have originated in 13th ranked Pennsylvania, with more than 1.7 million hogs and pigs sold. Lancaster County dropped from the fifth position in 1992 to 16th during 1997 with more than 651,000 head.

Do you like farm-fresh mushrooms on top of your burger or sizzlin' steak? Hmmmm...then you probably buy the freshest there is because Pennsylvania is the top mushroom producing state in the nation. Pennsylvania supplies 40 percent of the nation's mushroom crop. The top mushroom producing counties in 1997 nationally were Chester County, with over 13.8 million square feet under glass or other protection, and Berks County with over 5.4 million square feet under glass or other protection.

What about the mustard that you might put on your hot dog or hamburger? Where were the seeds for mustard production grown? The top three counties, Umatilla, Ore., Bottineau, N.D., and Hettinger, N.D., accounted for nearly 30 percent of all mustard seed production.

The chicken on your barbecue grill may have come from one of the traditional broiler producing states. Georgia, Arkansas, Alabama, North Carolina, and Mississippi are the top five. These leading states accounted for about 60 percent of total production in 1997. Pennsylvania fell from the 13th spot to 16th nationally in broilers produced, with more than 118 million broilers. Lancaster County ranked 33rd nationally in broiler production.

If you're like many health-conscious Americans, you might enjoy a good salad. Calling California "America's salad bowl" is no misnomer. Nearly one-third of all land used for vegetable production in 1997 was in California. Pennsylvania gained a spot to the 17th position nationally in vegetables harvested for sale, with more than 44,000 acres.

As for the tomatoes in your salad or in the ketchup on your hamburger or hot dog, California and Florida had almost 75 percent of all acres in tomatoes harvested. Four Pennsylvania counties pushed the state to the nationally ranked sixth spot in tomatoes harvested for sale: Luzerne, Northumberland, Wyoming and Lackawanna. Let's not forget about sweet corn. Young and old alike are in heaven in Lancaster County, which produces 10 percent of Pennsylvania's more than 18,000 harvested acres, which ranks Pennsylvania ninth in the nation.

The potatoes in your potato salad or used to make potato chips and French fries may have come from Idaho, with almost 30 percent of all potato production. Pennsylvania claimed the 18th spot nationally, with over 308 million pounds of potatoes grown. Erie County was the top producing county in the state.

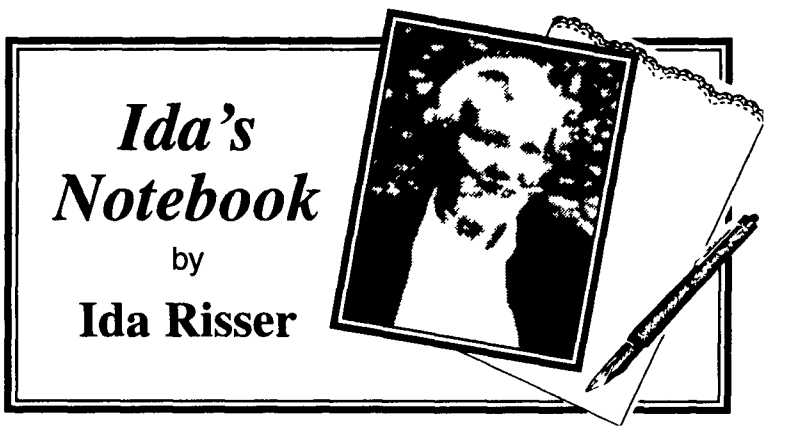
As for snap beans as a side dish or a three-bean salad, where did they originate? Perhaps they came from Wisconsin, Florida, or New York. These three states produced almost 48 percent of all snap beans. Pennsylvania ranked 10th nationally, with more than 7,000 snap bean acres harvested. Columbia County was the top producing county with almost 2,000 snap bean harvested acres. Centre County followed with over 1,200 acres.

For dessert, a delicious fresh fruit salad may be a consideration. In 1997, three states — California, Arizona and Texas — produced almost 80 percent of the nation's cantaloupes. Pennsylvania ranked 11th nationally, with more than 980 acres harvested. Lancaster County, led the state in cantaloupes grown.

Pennsylvania remains a top producer in fruit production. Pennsylvania ranks fifth in the nation in apples grown. Adams County gained a spot to rank eighth nationally in apple production. Across the nation, Pennsylvania ranks fourth in grape production; eighth in cherries; sixth in peaches; sixth in pears; seventh in plums and prunes; and sixth in strawberries.

Pennsylvania manufacturers produced 51.7 million gallons of ice cream in 1997, fourth nationally.

Nationally, Pennsylvania is second only to California in the value of agricultural products sold directly to individuals for human consumption in 1997. Pennsylvania accounts for more than 48 million dollars in direct sales. Lancaster County ranked third nationally.



July is the month of many vacations and our family is planning one in the Pocono Mountains. You'll probably hear more about this later. But for now, we are entertaining two of our children and their families from Maine and Georgia. When there are 11 people here, we eat breakfast in shifts. I bought so many kinds of cereal that we almost do not have a place to store all of the boxes.

Our son had a pig roast the other week for his fellow employees. Some neighbors and relatives were invited too. It took a lot of bread to stuff a little pig. There were so many small children running around and I'm sure everyone enjoyed the fireworks that ended the evening's activities.

It is so easy for families to grow apart. Distance can be a big factor. Although, I feel that age is important too. Our children were 15 years apart and so the oldest one went off to college in New York state while the youngest was only 3-years-old. And, only now that they are married and have families do they have a lot in common. Our grandchildren are 21 years apart and the two boys at each end will probably never get to know each other very well.

My mother had one brother and he was 14 years older than her. Therefore, even though she was only 5-years-old, when her father was killed in a train accident, he was 19-years-old and old enough to take over management of the farm. Even though they lived in the same house for awhile, I don't believe they ever got to know each other very well.

But family is family despite age differences and we still feel connected to those who live far away.

Checkoff Dollars Racing Toward Success

DES MOINES, Iowa — The fastest growing sport in the country has helped to increase the popularity of pork thanks to a checkoff-funded sponsorship.

Pork has become the official meat of the ARCA RE/MAX racing series. Pork also helps to sponsor the Pork. The Other White Meat/ Advance Auto Parts car and operates numerous promotions with local retail stores near racetracks.

"This is a very successful checkoff-funded promotion for increasing pork sales, and one of the best promotions the pork industry has been involved in," said Steve Schmeichel, chairman of the demand enhancement committee and a pork producer from Hurley, S.D.

"It allows the national and the state pork associations that manage checkoff funds to join with foodservice and retail activities in a concerted effort to raise the awareness and demand of pork to consumers."

So far this year, race-related promotions with local stores have increased sales of pork by more than 10 million pounds. This has already surpassed the 2000 total of 8 million incremental pounds.

The incremental pounds, relative totals sold above the previous year, are reported by the stores and are used as a measurement of the success of a promotion. This year's numbers are showing a successful campaign in the making.

During the 2000 racing season, Pork. The Other White Meat was seen by an estimated 627,000 fans attending ARCA races and more than 16 million television viewers.

Although the ARCA series, and the related sponsorship fees, are smaller than the better known NASCAR racing series, the events tend to occur in the same places, thus reaching a larger audience.

Retail promotions are scheduled at each race event on the ARCA circuit, which includes 24 events from February to November. Hundreds of pork producer volunteers work at the race and related promotional events to make this successful promotion possible. Check out this and other checkoff-funded programs at www.porkboard.org.

Incredible Egg, Poultry - Related Items Reveal Fascinating History

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family Features Editor

ROCKSPRING (Centre Co.) — Collectors interested in poultry-related antiques search for everything from dainty china egg cups to a poultry lice killing machine.

The porcelain egg cups and the glass and china plates with indented cups for serving deviled eggs are eye-appealing and contain their own bit of kitchen history. But the items so useful for tending poultry portray the fascinating evolvement in the care of poultry.

Two wonderful sources for those interested in poultry-related antiques are the Pasto Agricultural Museum, Rock Spring, and The Incredible Edible Egg collection on display and for sale at the Grist Mill Antiques Center, Pemberton, N.J., through July 31.

According to Darwin Braund, curator for the Pasto Agricultural Museum, the poultry lice-killing machine was patented in 1897 and manufactured by Charles Schild Company, Cleveland, Ohio. The machine featured a canvas tube measuring 30x12-inches with a drawstring opening, which hung horizontally in a wooden frame. Louse dust and chickens were placed inside the tube and rotated with a crank.

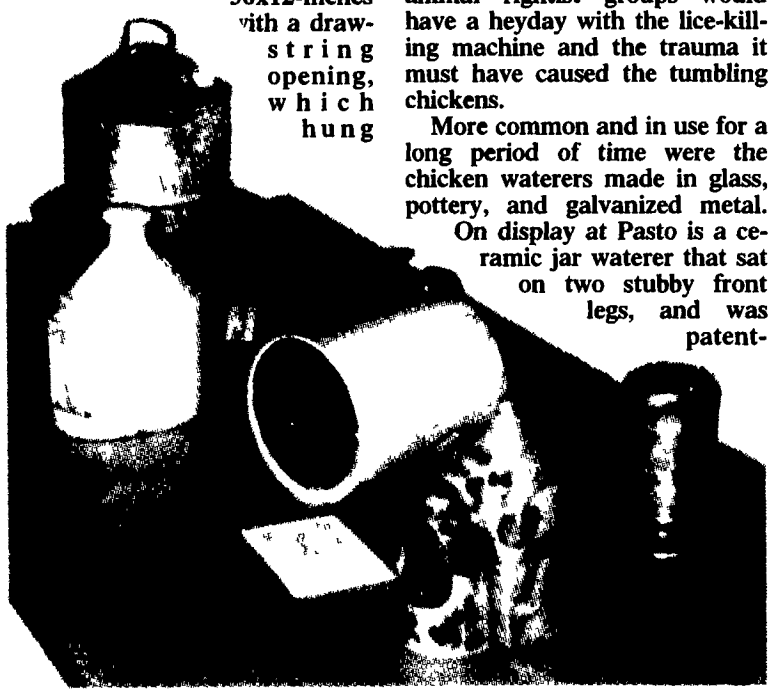
Normally free-range chickens rolled in outdoor dust to kill the lice, but during winter months, lice became a problem and this rare example of the machine was probably used on individual farms.

Another ususual item on display at the Pasto Museum is a bone cutter used to grind up bones and combined with ground corn and wheat to use as a mineral supplement. The Dandy Bone Cutter was manufactured in 1917-1921 by Stratton Manufacturing Company.

The cast-iron gadget held a bowl similar to a lard press with a top that screwed down to compress the bones on top of a razor-sharp blade. The crank drove wheel chopped the bones and grain as it turned round and round. These were probably used in meat processing plants or on home butcher shops.

It isn't hard to understand why these pieces were quickly outdated. Today, no doubt, the animal rightist groups would have a heyday with the lice-killing machine and the trauma it must have caused the tumbling chickens.

More common and in use for a long period of time were the chicken waterers made in glass, pottery, and galvanized metal. On display at Pasto is a ceramic jar waterer that sat on two stubby front legs, and was patented in 1885. In the 1930s, a saucer and metal frame chick watered made by Oakes Manufacturing Company, Tipton, Ind., was designed to be used with any screw-top jar.



Top photo shows a 1933 yolk color roter, one of only 40 manufactured with an index of 24 colors to determine egg yolk color. The colors were painted on watch glasses, arranged in a circle on a roter, in a box. Also shown are several versions of egg carriers. Bottom photo shows other items on display at the Pasto Agriculture Museum

These items are on display during the celebration "The Incredible Edible Egg," at the Grist Mill Antiques Center in Pemberton, N.J., through July 31.

Some other items of interest at the museum is a coal-fired chick brooder previously used for keeping newly-hatched chicks warm. The cast iron stove with canopy and thermostat was patented in 1918 and in use through the 1940s.

An egg incubator about the size of a large card table, on four legs, was made by the Prairie State Incubator Company, Homer City, and patented in 1907. The item is complete with kerosene heater on the side. It included a small thermometer and an hygrometer to determine humidity level.

Wooden slatted egg crates, used to transport eggs from the farm to the country store for barter and for shipping by mail or rail, date back to the early 1900s. Tin boxes were also made for holding and shipping two dozen eggs.

One of those on display at Pasto held 30 dozen eggs and has the original fillers and dividers. The tag inside identifies R.M. Johnson as the dealer in fancy fresh-laid eggs, Columbia Cross Roads. Dr. Robert Snetsinger found the crate when he purchased a small farm near State College and discovered it in the attic of one of the farm buildings.

When farmers wanted to capture chickens for butchering, a chicken hook was used. This often had a wooden handle attached to a strong wire hook that snatched the leg of the chicken.

Unlike the modern methods of today, preparing eggs for market was a time-consuming process. Eggs were candled and weighed one at a time. An egg candler on display shows a metal kerosene lamp with aperture. A egg scale made by Brower Manufacturing Company, Quincy, Ill., carries a written claim that it was the largest manufacturer of poultry supplies in the world.

The Incredible Edible Egg event at the Grist Mill Antiques Center, Pemberton, N.J., through July 31, is reported to display every conceivable egg-related item. Some of these are egg gathering baskets, egg cartons, egg carriers, and trays. Kitchen tools include egg lids, beaters and whips, spearators, timers, poachers, slicers, and cookers.

Those pale white glass eggs often used today in Easter displays formerly served a useful purpose. The eggs were placed in nests to encourage chickens to lay their eggs in the approved spot.

Both Ruth Glisson and Shirley Seacrist of Ephrata remember grandmothers using china egg cups to serve soft-boiled eggs to guests. The cup cradled the cooked shelled egg, and was then flipped right side up to form the dish to eat the egg. Shirley remembers cracking the soft-boiled egg into the cup, but Ruth recalls the shell of the egg was gently cracked, the top part removed and the egg eaten from the half shell that was cradled in the cup.

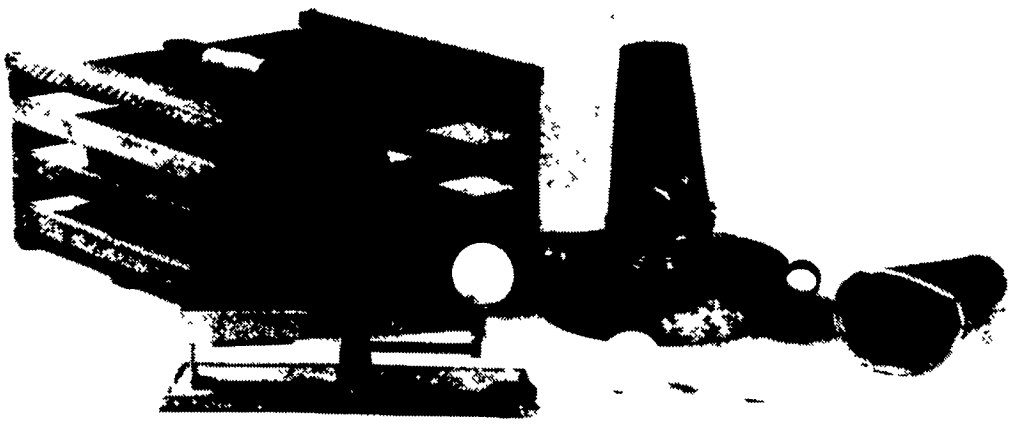
Many different patterns and styles in glass and china of the egg cups have been made over the years. Examples on display at the show are English transferware, Quimper, hotel china, blue and white delfware from Holland, Torquay motto ware, milk glass, and French Noveau.

Hen on covered dishes, egg stands, egg advertising items, salt and pepper shakers and other breakfast items with egg, hen, and chick motifs are popular with collectors. A large collection of these are on display and individual pieces can be found in almost every antique shop.

The Incredible Edible Egg display at the Grist Mill Antiques Center is located at 127 Hanover St. (Rt. 616) on the banks of the Rancocas Creek in historic Pemberton, N.J. The Grist Mill is open seven days a week from 10 a.m.-5 p.m. For more information, call (609) 726-1588.

The Pasto Agriculture Museum, nine miles southwest of State College on Rt. 45, is open during Ag Progress Days in August and by appointment. To arrange for a tour, call the museum office (814) 863-1383.



This photo shows the essentials of marketing eggs in days gone by. The metal kerosene lamp with the round mica-covered opening was used to candle eggs for cracks, possible embryonic development, spots, and other imperfections, one egg at a time. The funnel at right was used to concentrate the light on a suspect egg. Each egg was weighted on the scale, again one by one, to grade for size. Eggs then were carried in the six-dozen crate to the country store for sale or for barter. Photo courtesy of the Pasto Agriculture Museum.

Frederick Carder Pioneered Steuben Glass Techniques

Surprisingly many of the early 20th century glass designed by Frederick Carder for Steuben, the glassworks he founded, sell at auction for only a couple of thousand dollars.

At the same time, similar techniques, used by his contemporary, Louis Comfort Tiffany sell for much more. One answer is that for the last two decades anything made by Tiffany has been on a roll. In fact many of the techniques used by both men ended up looking similar but with different names. A case in point would be Tiffany "Favrile" glass and Carder's "Aurene"; both iridescent.

At the recent Skinner 20th century Furniture and Decorative Arts auction however some of the iridescent Tiffany and Carder pieces ran neck and neck pricewise.

Beautiful examples by both were hammered down to a couple of thousand dollars.

A Carder, Steuben acid-etched green jade lotus design glass vase, seven-inches high sold for over estimate at $3,450. Most of Carder's pieces sold over estimate as did the finer examples of Tiffany.

Born in England (1863-1963) Carder's early adult life as a glassmaker was influenced by the Art Nouveau colors and designs. Colored glass was popular in America and Europe. The experimental techniques developed by Emile Gall'e and the Favrile glass of Louis Comfort Tiffany would seem to leave no room for competition.

However, after coming to America and opening a glass factory, Carder created something new. It was a gold, metallic luster glass he named "Aurene". It became so successful that the following year he introduced Blue Aurene. From 1905 to 1910 Carder created red and green aurenes. Hundreds of these aurenes were produced.

Another important technique made by Carder is Verre de Soie It was appropriately named since it is lustrous glass with an iridescent silken sheen. While most of the Verre de Soie pieces weren't decorated, sometimes applied decorations were used.

Some have engraved patterns.

The names Carder gave his glass and patterns are as creative as his use of color and design. Aurene, for instance, came from the first three letters of "aurum", the Latin word for gold, combined with the last three letters of schene, the Middle English form of sheen, which describes the gold luster of the glass. The name of Intarsia came from the Italian term for inlaid woodwork.

CLUES: Although Carder designed entire table services for individual customers, most of these have largely survived as single pieces. The customized pieces can be recognized by a personal monogram, family coat of arms, or

— Attend Craft Appraisal Road Show —

LANCASTER (Lancaster County) — The Pennsylvania Guild of Craftsmen announced that Dr. Lori Verderame will appraise craft items for the 55th annual State Craft Fair on July 28-29 from noon until 4 p.m. at Franklin & Marshall College in Lancaster. Patrons will be able to bring in their collectibles and have a certified appraiser give a verbal appraisal. Those without a collectible to share are invited to "sit in" on the appraisals to help develop a sharp eye for collectible crafts.

Dr. Lori Verderame, certified appraiser and art historian, will conduct appraisals of several types of crafts including pottery, basketry, fiber, glass, wood, leather, metal and paper (excluding books) during the Guild's 55th annual State Craft Fair. Learn what to look for and what questions to ask as Dr. Verderame discusses what makes some crafts more valuable than others, and shares her expertise on appraisals, art collecting, and the conservation of aging treasures.

Dr. Verderame will display five collectibles at a time and discuss each one with the owner and audience concurrently. This successful format educates the entire craft public.

Dr. Verderame has taught art history at Penn State University, the State University of New York, and at the Yale University Art Gallery. She has held positions at the Allentown Art Museum, Muhlenberg College and the Palmer Museum of Art, Penn State. She recently published a book titled, Seymour Lipton: An American Sculptor, has published catalogs and articles on numerous American artists, is the art history writer and editor for Lehigh Valley Style and Central Pennsylvania Life magazines and shares her expertise with the readers of the Lancaster New Era in the newspaper's collectibles section. In the Philadelphia area, Dr. Verderame appears on the CBS KYW-TV3 program Trash or Treasure? educating viewers about their valuables.

There will be a minimum $5 donation collected for each item appraised. These funds help restore the State Craft Center in Tyler State Park. Renovation of the building will serve the craft community by providing a place to hold education programs throughout the year.

crest. There were often as many as eight or ten types of drinking glasses including whiskey tumblers and stemmed goblets.

Collectors can also keep an eye out for finger bowls, cigarette holders, candlesticks and compotes that were often part of a commissioned table service.

The earliest gold aurene pieces have a purplish cast. Later examples often have reddish shadings. Choice would be gold aurene vases decorated with leaves and vines in green glass. They were made in limited editions.

During the 1920s acid-etched pieces, including tableware, vases, bowls and lighting fixtures were designed by Carder. Most were of cased glass, with a darker colored glass covering a light, inner layer. Some combinations used gold or blue aurene cased over other cdolors.

The basis for a relatively inexpensive collection could be small pieces in gold or blue aurene. A single piece often turns up at estate and even garage sales.

Collecting Can Be Key To A Child's Development

Collecting is as much a part of childhood as teddy bears, well-worn denims and toothless grins. Whether it was coins, dolls, sports cards or something else, nearly everyone can remember collecting something as a kid.

Why are children so enthusiastic about collecting? According to Dr. Carol Seefeldt of the Institute for Child Studies at the University of Maryland, collecting is part of a child's learning process.

"Starting at age 7 or 8, children can categorize things in multiple dimensions, and collecting gives them the chance to practice newly acquired mathematical skills," said Seefeldt, co-author of the book, Development Continuity Across Preschool and Primary Years. "They now have the math skills to think of more or less, and are able to figure out how many more of an item they need to have a complete set — or compete with their friends."

Collecting also allows young children to develop feelings of control over their world, which is valuable to their cognitive development, according to Seefeldt. "It gives them the power to scheme and dream about building their collection," she said.

Starting A Simple Collection

So is there a "best" thing for children to collect? According to Seefeldt, making sure that collecting is interesting and within the child's reach is most important.

To Gary Doss, curator of the Burlingame Museum of PEZ Memorabilia in Burlingame, Calif., PEZ dispensers are a terrific collectible because they're relatively inexpensive and small, simplifying storage.

"There have been a lot of collectibles that have come out in recent years, but PEZ dispensers are still unique and have a lot of appeal to kids of all ages," said Doss, whose museum contains all but two of the PEZ characters ever manufactured. "You get a toy, a cartoon character and candy all in one collectible item."

Doss believes that the limited-edition mini PEZ dispensers currently being distributed in General Mills cereals (Trix, Lucky Charms, Cocoa Puffs and Honey Nut Cheerios) will be popular with collectors and give children an easy way to get into PEZ collecting. "All you have to do is acquire the four different cereals and you'll have your first complete set of PEZ dispensers."

+(Note: The boxes are only available through July, and early customer response suggests they may sell out quickly.+)

Of the 300 unique PEZ dispensers ever created, Doss estimates that approximately 100 are available to collectors for $1 or less. "You can go to a collecting show or a garage sale and usually find a basket of PEZ dispensers for a quarter or so each."

Dispensers with a unique feature are especially collectible. For instance, the General Mills dispensers are about 40 percent smaller than the average PEZ dispenser and are the first PEZ products to feature cereal cartoon characters. Because of these factors, serious collectors paid top dollar to get their hands on some of the first-released General Mills dispensers at this summer's National PEZ Convention and in eBay online auctions.

Those who collect PEZ dispensers as an investment have been rewarded, according to Doss. "PEZ have held their own," he said. "In the 10 years I've been collecting, I've never had a PEZ dispenser go down in value."

The Burlingame Museum gets more than 10,000 visitors a year and its Website, at www.burlingamepezmuseum.com, has attracted more than one million visits. As the museum's curator, Doss particularly enjoys the broad public interest in PEZ collecting.

"There is no 'typical' PEZ collector," he said "We get visitors from young children to those who are 90-years-old, from all ethnic backgrounds and from all over the world. Everyone likes PEZ and I think that's neat."

HERD DISPERSAL
Belleville Livestock Market
Friday, August 3, 2001 at 11:00 AM
127 Head

We will be selling on consignment a herd of 100 dairy cows consisting of 20 recently fresh, 6 to freshen before the sale date, 20 dry and the rest in all stages of lactation and 27 heifers in all stages. This is a young herd of cows with 45 head that are first or second calf heifers with RHA of between 16,000 and 17,000 lb. Cattle are all home raised and will be pregnancy checked and have their 9 way shots at the time of the sale. This is a well producing herd that is offered for sale due to the owner's health problems. This herd was never pushed with fancy feed, so please plan to attend this special Friday Morning sale and increase your milk production immediately.

STRIVING TO PROVIDE TOP QUALITY USED EQUIPMENT

Deer Farmers Worldwide To Meet In Texas

LANHAM, Md. — Austin, Texas will be the host city of the 2002 World Deer Farming Congress III, which will be conducted in conjunction with the annual North American Deer Farmers Association (NADeFA) convention, Feb. 19-23. This global gathering of deer farmers and ranchers will provide educational events, the chance to earn prestige and recognition through photo and hard antler competitions, networking opportunities, tours to Texas deer farms and ranches for practical knowledge, as well as auxiliary events for traveling companions.

The World Deer Farming Congress III and the NADeFA annual convention schedules are interwoven to provide deer farmers from the U.S. and other countries ample opportunities to learn about the status of deer farming and ranching around the globe. World leaders from New Zealand, Britain, Canada, China, North America, Australia, Belgium and Scotland will discuss a wide range of topics from the historic importance of deer farming to human culture, to whole farm management, to how the various international associations and cervid species groups are promoting the production of deer for food and game animals worldwide. Sessions on such practical subjects such antler development, parasite control, health maintenance, and public perception of deer farming and ranching will provide conference goers with a balanced educational array.

NADeFA's unique strength lies in the variety of cervid species produced by its members. As such, each annual convention provides opportunities for the NADeFA species councils to meet. Red deer, elk and sika producers; fallow and axis producers; and whitetail deer producers will enjoy one complete afternoon to meet with their colleagues from around the world and discuss issues unique to each species in specialized breakout and educational seminars.

As in past years, the NADeFA annual convention draws other events related to the deer farming industry. Drs. Rob Deegan, Iowa, and Ken Waldrup, Texas, representing the American Association of Small Ruminate Practioners Deer Committee, are organizing the North American Deer Veterinarian Seminar for 2002. Called "NADVET 2002: The World Tour," this seminar will provide time for discussion of top of the mind topics such as chronic wasting disease of elk, Johnne's disease and tuberculosis. NADVET 2002 will be Tuesday and Wednesday, Feb. 19-20. Following on the heels of the NADeFA convention and World Deer Farming Congress III will be a workshop presented by Safe Capture International, which will run Saturday afternoon and Sunday, Feb. 23 and 24.

Social events are part of the 2002 meeting and all participants will have the chance to sample Texas culture with a Saturday evening event at an Austin icon, the Salt Lick. This rustic Texas barbecue "joint" is situated in the Hill Country at the western edge of Austin and is known for providing memorable meals and comfortable surroundings, allowing convention goers the chance to kick back and enjoy a warm Texas evening.

For more information on the 2002 NADeFA annual convention and the World Deer Farming Congress III, contact NADeFA headquarters, at info@nadefa.org; 9301 Annapolis Road, Suite 206, Lanham, MD 20706-3115, (301) 459-7708, or fax (301) 459-7864.

Veneman And WTO: Canadian Dairy Exports Unfair

WASHINGTON, D.C. — U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Ann M. Veneman released the following statement regarding this week's World Trade Organization (WTO) decision ruling that Canada's dairy export subsidies are inconsistent with its WTO commitments. The U.S. calculates that Canadian dairy export subsidies result in lost sales by American farmers and dairy processors of up to $35 million per year.

"We are extremely pleased with today's WTO decision which will greatly benefit U.S. dairy producers," Veneman said.

"This decision demonstrates how the rules and disciplines of the WTO protect American farmers from unfair trade competition. The administration continues to work vigorously to address unfair trade practices and is committed to expanding export opportunities for food and agricultural products around the world."

"To make further progress, it is critical that the president have the necessary tools to negotiate trade agreements that help U.S. farmers. Trade Promotion Authority is one of the most important tools in helping expand market opportunities and eliminate export subsidies."

Select Sire Sales Representatives Receive National Awards

PLAIN CITY, Ohio — Seven A.I. sales representatives employed by Select Sire Power Inc., Rocky Mount, Va., have been named members of the Select Sires President's Club. This national award annually recognizes employees who excel in sales and service to dairy and beef customers.

Among the 70 people throughout the country to earn this elite recognition are: Earl DeLong, Mexico, N.Y.; Gene Dewitt, Belleview, Fla.; Jim Falvey, Bedford, Pa.; Clair High, Kinzers, Pa.; Larry Hill, Cattaraugus, N.Y.; Keith Meador, Libertytown, Md.; and Jeff Meador, Mount Sidney, Va.

"Each sales representative who qualifies for this special award must exceed specific performance levels for sales and service," says Joel Mergler, vice president of training and educational programs, Select Sires. "President's Club members demonstrate outstanding leadership, knowledge and sales skills when working with customers. They truly are expert at linking Select Sires' products and services to herd-management practices that benefit beef and dairy producers each and every day."

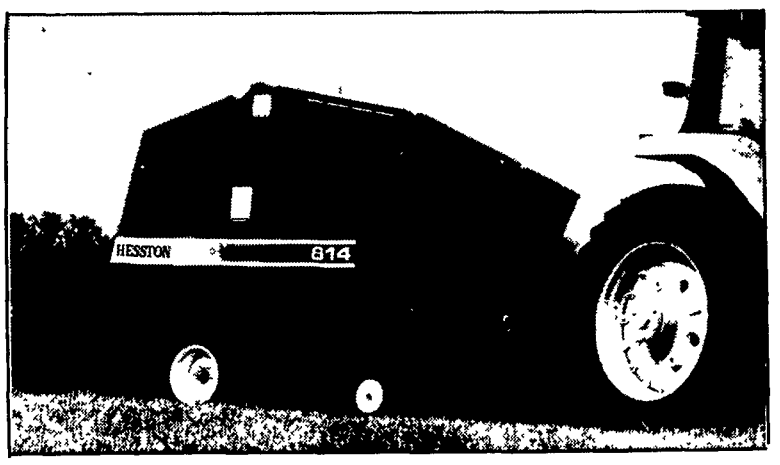
Hesston Introduces New Model 814 Round Baler

ATLANTA, Ga. — Hesston® is introducing a new fixed-chamber round baler with advanced-technology features that will help operators get in and out of the field faster.

"Many round baler users prefer the simplicity, reliability and soft-core bales that come with a fixed-chamber design. Now these farmers and ranchers can obtain a new level of productivity in a fixed-chamber baler, thanks to the innovative electronic control features available in the new Model 814 Round Baler," said Eric Raby, Hesston general marketing manager.

"The new 814 baler replaces the field-proven Model 514 fixed-chamber round baler," added Raby, "and retains many of the features that made the 514 model so successful with operators, including its 5-foot by 6-foot bale size that offers high production capacity in any type of crop."

The new 814 is equipped with an electronic control box that offers automatic bale tying. Other new features include an optional hydraulically driven pickup, a factory installed option, and optional mesh wrap, which can be installed as an option in the factory or the field.



Hesston's new fixed-chamber Model 814 Round Baler offers new electronic control features that help farmers and ranchers get in and out of the field faster.

The Model 814 can also be equipped with an electric pickup lift, which allows the operator to raise and lower the pickup without leaving the tractor seat, just by pressing a button on the control box.

The new electronic control box also gives operators the option to tie the bale automatically or manually, check the bale count, change the number of twine end and center wraps, change the twine spacing, change from twine to mesh, and change the number of mesh wraps with fingertip control.

Wisconsin Man Takes Top Honors In NTMA Apprentice Competition

SOUTH BEND, Ind. — The 29th annual National Tooling and Machining Association's (NTMA) National Apprentice Competition was conducted at the Bertrand Campus of Lake Michigan College (LMC) in Niles, Mich. on May 9-11.

Nineteen regional champions representing 13 states vied for recognition as "Best of the Best" in an intense two-day contest involving projects in lathe, mill, precision grinding, and a comprehensive written exam.

Code numbers were assigned to the individual projects and test materials so inspectors and graders are unaware of the contestants' identities. Only when the envelopes were opened at Friday evening's award ceremony were the three winners revealed.

Daniel Jorgensen of Omega Tool, Inc., Milwaukee, Wis., prevailed in a closely contested event and expressed surprise at being named overall champion. He was joined at the podium by Larry Garrett, Jr. of Ahaus Tool & Engineering, Richmond, Ind., who placed second and Meadville's Paul Howick from Sipco Molding Technologies who claimed third place. Recognition was also given to the top individual projects. A special award for the "Eagle Eye" went to Vince Lucci of Proper Mold & Engineering, representing the NTMA Detroit Chapter.

As first place sponsor, Omega Tool will receive a Charmilles Technologies EDM Die Sinker valued at $50,000 or a 50 percent discount off the price of selected other machines with retail value up to $200,000.

In addition to plaques and tools, all contestants were given a wooden tool chest from H. Gerstner & Sons and a copy of the latest edition of the Machinery's Handbook published by Industrial Press Inc. They also earned a scholarship award from the National Institute for Metalworking Skills to cover the cost of registration and testing for industry credentials.

This event was hosted by the NTMA Michiana Chapter in South Bend, Ind. and took place in the Manufacturing Technology Lab at LMC.

Land Pride's Skid Steer Powered Rake

SALINA, Kan. — Land Pride's Skid Steer Powered Rake, SR2572, will turn your skid steer loader into the perfect landscaping tool. The hydraulic driven roller operates in both directions, depending on your direction of travel.

With two roller choices, and adjustable material control deflector and 20 degree left and right angling, the SR2572 allows you to move dirt like a box-craper, windrow rocks like a rake and work the soil like a pulverizer — all in one tool.

Land Pride recently introduced the Cat. 1 3-Pt. Powered Rake in a 72-inch width. The product line also includes the heavy-duty 72-inch and 96-inch PTO Powered Rakes.

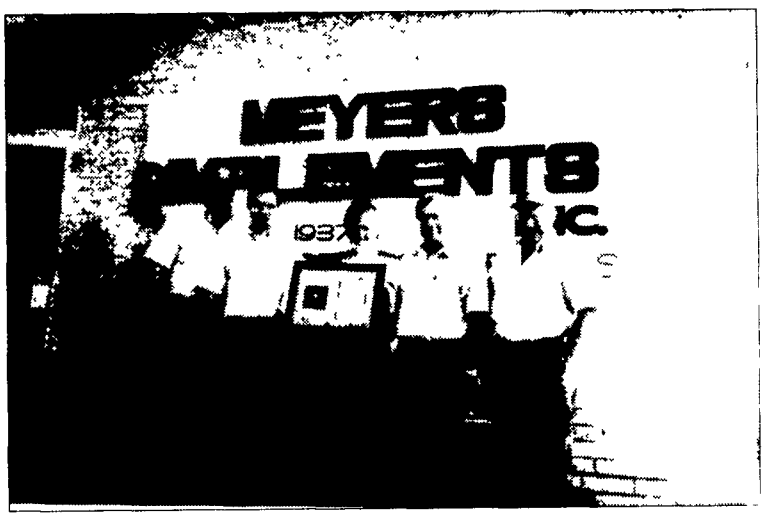
Meyers Implements Receives AGCO Recognition Awards

GREENCASTLE, Pa. — AGCO Corporation (NYSE: AG), a major worldwide manufacturer and distributor of agricultural equipment, recently recognized Meyers Implements, Inc., Greencastle, for superior achievement upon completion of the Continuous Improvement Program. AGCO's annual dealer evaluation review.

David Newcomer of AGCO Corporation presented Meyers Implements, Inc. with a Silver Medallion Dealer's plaque, a merchandise/travel certificate and a financial award as recognition for their excellence in the Continuous Improvement Program (CIP).

The CIP evaluates dealers' performance in areas such as sales, parts, service certification, advertising, training, overall facility and signage with the ultimate goal of improving customer satisfaction. Meyers Implements, Inc. was recognized for its exemplary efforts to excel in these standards of dedication and determination. "Very few dealers achieve this high level of recognition.



Meyers Implements of Greencastle recognized as one of AGCO's top dealers.

Meyers Implements, Inc. has been judged by AGCO to be among this elite group of dealers. We are proud of the commitment Meyers Implements, Inc. has made to its customers and to AGCO and congratulate them on their accomplishment," remarks Randy Hoffman, vice president, AGCO Marketing - North America.

New Holland Introduces New Tractor For Vineyards, Orchards, Groves

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — New Holland has introduced a unique, low-profile agricultural crawler tractor designed to meet the specialized needs of hillside farms such as vineyards, orchards and groves.

Compared to a conventional wheeled tractor, the New Holland TK crawler has tracks that provide optimal traction with reduced slip on hills and in wet conditions. The tractor is more stable than a wheeled tractor, with a short turning radius. The tracks also reduce ground compaction.

New Holland's TK crawlers are available in three models: the 60-PTO hp TK76, and the 65-PTO hp models TK85 and TK85M. Each is powered by a New Holland Iveco engine. The TK76 and TK85 feature a 12-foot 2-inch track width with an overall vehicle width of 55.5 inches. The TK85M offers the option of a 12-foot 2-inch or a 15-foot 7-inch track width with an overall vehicle width of 63.5 inches or 67 inches respectively. Overall length of the TK, from the front support to the three-point link ends, is 132 inches.

TK crawlers feature a new, suspended operator's platform. The platform, suspended on four tuned rubber isolation mounts, reduces vibration and noise transmitted to the operator.

The exclusive Steering-O-Matic™ system allows the operator to turn the tractor in any direction with only the use of a thumb and index finger. Unlike conventional crawler tractors, TK crawlers do not require the use of foot-operated brakes and two hands to steer the unit. This reduces operator fatigue and allows the operator to focus on positioning the implement. A single control lever operates the wet steering clutches and the wet steering brakes, giving the TK precise steering control and long life.

Up to five remote valves can be placed on the TK. A dedicated pump provides flow of up to 12 GPM to the remotes and the three-point hitch. A flow control valve can be fitted on units with up to four remotes, enabling the operator to control the amount of oil flow through the first valve. Speed of hydraulic motors and equipment reaction time can be adjusted simply by turning the flow control knob located under the right armrest.

All models offer an 8x8 transmission with a dedicated shuttle. The large, 11.5-inch double plate traction clutch has a large contact area to prolong clutch life and assure reliability. This clutch is engaged by an over-center lever located to the left of the operator.

The robust, three-point hitch allows up to 8,200 pounds lift capacity (OEDC rating) at the ball ends. New Holland's exclusive Lift-o-Matic™ quick raise and lower system is offered as an option. This feature gives the operator the ability to raise and lower the three-point hitch to a maximum and minimum height by simply pushing a button.

Serviceability is easy. A single piece flip-up hood provides easy access to the engine compartment and allows the operator to quickly check all daily service points.

ROTO-MIX IV FEED MIXERS

With ROTO-MIX IV you reduce fines, minimize shrinkage, and eliminate dead spots The gentle tumbling action mixes fragile flaked and high-moisture ingredients without grinding, resulting in a fluffier, more nutritional ration

The ROTO-MIX end-to-end, side-to-side mixing system provides the most thorough TMR available, ensuring that your cattle will consume a balanced ration of nutrients in every pound of feed they eat

Trailer Models Available For Demo

TMR SOLUTIONS FOR BETTER HERD HEALTH THE PROOF IS IN THE MIX

"Displaced Abomasum, (DA), problems in newly calved cows have virtually been eliminated!" This is one major feature on Michael & Nancy Jarrett's Lost Brook Farm, in Montgomery, PA, since the arrival of the Keenan mixer.

This 160 cow herd has a rolling herd average of 22,700 pounds, at 3.8% butterfat, which highlights the attention to detail shown on this well run dairy farm. Investing in a Keenan mixer met an immediate need for the farm operation. The ability to add structural fiber, in the form of hay, to their milk cow, dry cow and heifer TMR's.

Working as a team, Michael & Nancy, along with Howard their feeder, Scott Crandell their nutritionist, and Tony Hall, the Keenan TMR specialist, review the structural fiber content of the farms forages and TMR's, using a Penn State Particle Separator The results obtained are compared to the targets needed for cow cud chewing, and good rumen health. This is all part of Keenans on site service to the farmer, and their advisory team, during the first year of a Keenan mixer ownership.

Already the team have increased the hay content of the milk cow TMR's from zero to 2 pounds per cow daily. A loading and mixing procedure agreed with Howard ensures optimum hay integration every time. Spot checks on samples by Tony enable the team at Lost Brook Farm to assess the consistency of feed out, as well as how good a particular mix is for the cows rumen health. Guidelines are agreed to help minimize cow sorting behavior during feeding.

Mix consistency at this dairy with their Keenan has been excellent, from beginning to end of feed out. When the hay was added to the High and Low cow groups respectively, the cows reduced their intake of free choice sodium bicarbonate voluntarily! The increase in ration texture had promoted better cud chewing in the cow, and reduced sub-clinical rumen acidosis, so the cows "backed" themselves off the "bicarb". This of course is the main reason why the DA problem has also been dramatically reduced, better rumen health during the crucial period after calving.

Steps have already been taken this season to cut the haylage crops longer, to get better cud chewing from this home grown chopped forage, so capitalizing on the Keenan mixers non-destructive mixing action. Similarly, the replacement heifer rations now have the high hay contents accurately mixed in their TMR's, with no room for the variation in intakes with free choice hay feeding. The team agree, "The heifers look great!"

So, for the ability to add hay to your TMR's, without the risk of over-processing and for the feeding out of a consistent mix all along the bunk, whatever the hay content, choose Keenan as your next mixer. Mix-It, Feed-It, Profit!

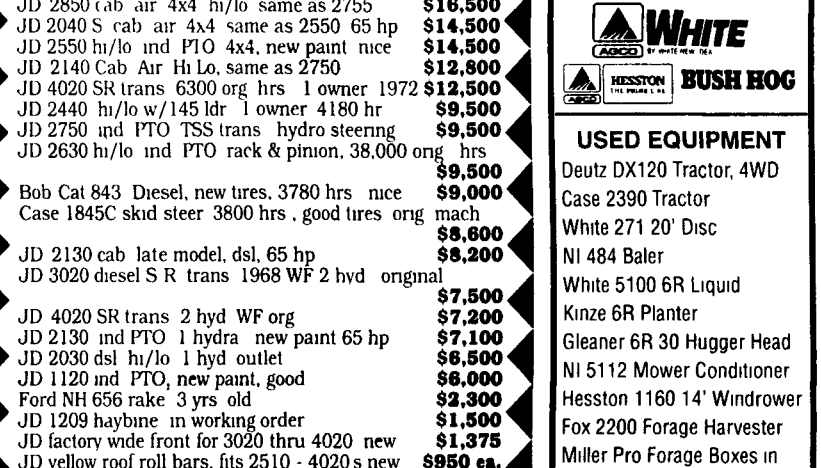
Reel Auggie = Results



The Reel Auggie Design provides a fluffy, more palatable ration that promotes feed consumption. When your cows consume more high quality feed, they'll produce more milk.

MORE MILK IN THE TANK, THAT'S THE BOTTOM LINE!

To see results, ask for a Reel demonstration from your local Knight dealer today.

Customize Your Bales

Without Paying Extra

Variable Chamber Balers Let You Make The Call.

If you demand a smaller hay package and a baler that's easy to operate, the New Idea® 4643 (4'x3') and 4644 (4'x4') are for you Thanks to the variable bale size, you can customize bales to fit your operation And each model creates bales that range from 30 to over 50 inches in diameter.

With so much diversity, you'll only bale the size you need Their low-profile, full-width pick-up glides easily over fields, catching every stem The pickup height can be easily adjusted

For more details on the versatile 4643 and 4644 round balers, visit your AGCO® New Idea dealer today

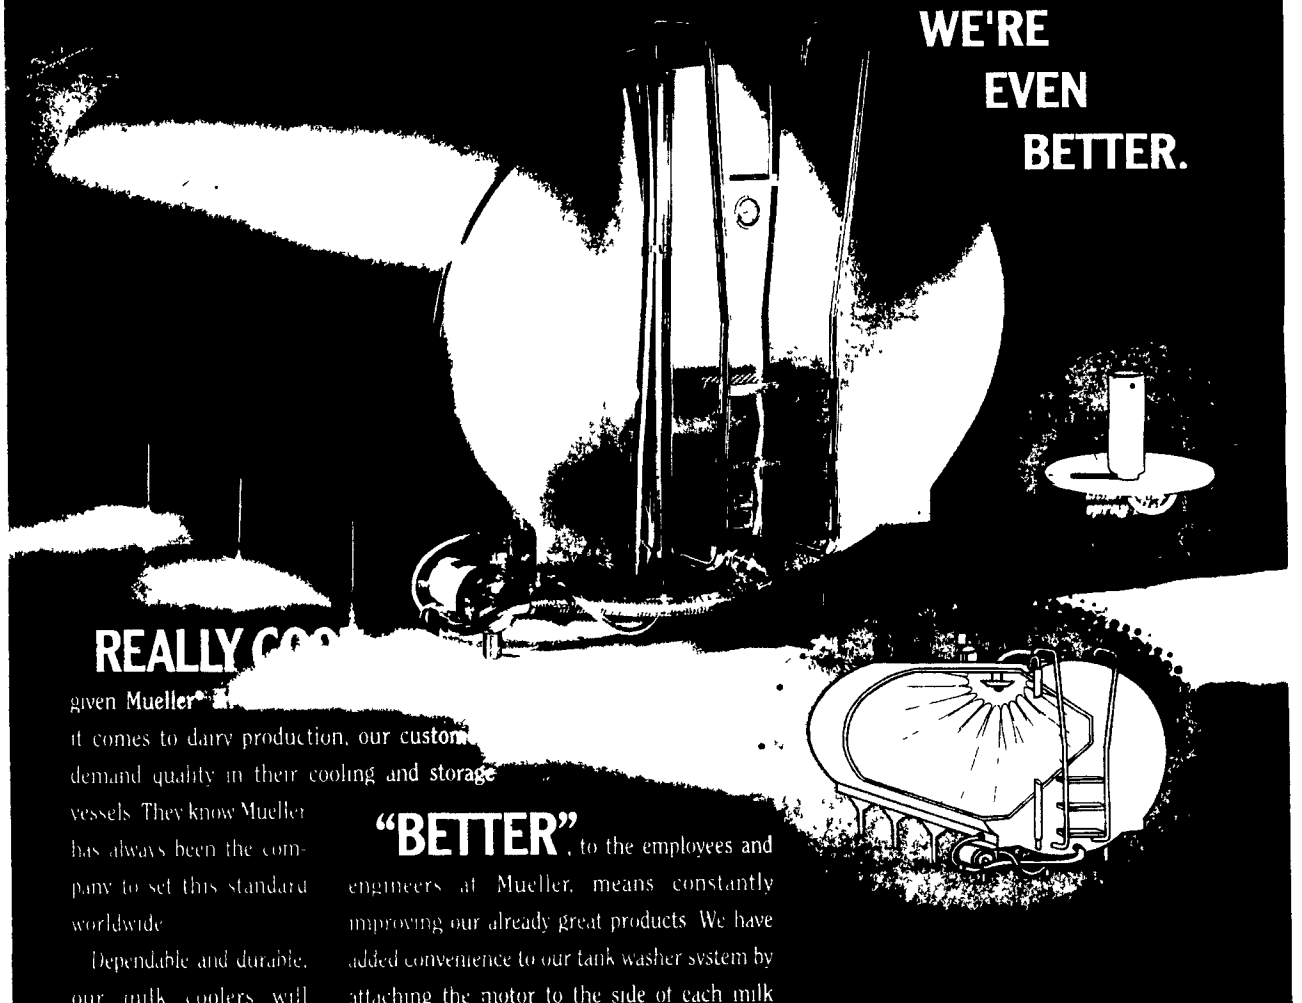
WE'VE ALWAYS BEEN GOOD.

NOW WE'RE EVEN BETTER.



REALLY GO

given Mueller

it comes to dairy production, our custom

demand quality in their cooling and storage

vessels. They know Mueller has always been the company to set this standard worldwide.

Dependable and durable, our milk coolers will provide you with years of trouble-free performance as well as low operating cost, precise temperature control and a wide range of standard features.

"BETTER", to the employees and engineers at Mueller, means constantly improving our already great products. We have added convenience to our tank washer system by attaching the motor to the side of each milk cooler smaller than 3,000 gallons. At the same time, we have added quality by installing the most effective interior washing device in the industry. Mueller's tank washing spray dish is an innovative, one-of-a-kind design which more evenly distributes the cleaning solution throughout the tank's interior. It prevents clogging and offers maintenance-free cleaning. This high performance process will give you extra clean tanks.

For the BEST products with the best performance, you can always count on Mueller. For more information see your nearest dealer or call 1-800-MUELLER.

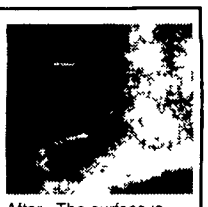
WARNING! DETERIORATING CONCRETE FROM CORN JUICE!

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

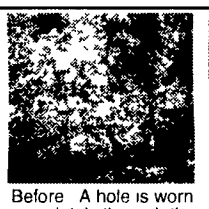
RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo s interior with plaster damage and stave exposed



After The surface is reconditioned and a new thick tough surface will protect stored feed

REPAIRS HOLES:
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface



Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall

After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied, the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made.. quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original

Before The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

VAN DALE

"FARMERS CHECK OUT THE LATEST IN FEED STORAGE AND DELIVERY"

Standing under the elevated, drive-thru floor of a poured concrete silo are: Ken Mansfield and John Swope - salesmen for Star Silos, Mark and David Wolfskill, father - son farmers from Berks Co., and George Garman, Farm Manager of Detwiler Farms in New Enterprise, PA.

After punching in 1919 pounds of silage for his feed mixer, George pushed the button for his Big-Jim Quantum unloader to begin unloading, and it took 1 min. and 16 seconds to unload almost a ton of silage into the mixer. Asked if that was as fast as it would work, George said "no, but I don't want to overwork the unloader."

EVERLAST II EVERLAST II EVERLAST II

Metal Roofs Aren't Created Equal

EVERLAST II IS BETTER:

- it is galvanized heavier, like old times.
- it is heat formed, less paint cracks.
- is cut while hot, prevents early edge rust.
- won't scratch as easy, paint is harder.
- won't bend or buckle as easy, stronger design.
- laps are tighter, and virtually invisible.
- nail/screws seal better, ribs fit tighter to head.
- zinc phosphate, not chromate under paint.
- still priced about the same or less.

EVERLAST II
is excellent for for houses and barns.

DOUBLE DIPPED GALVANIZED
is proven best for animals.

STANDING SEAM

CAN ALSO BE PICKED UP OR DELIVERED FROM LEBANON PLANT

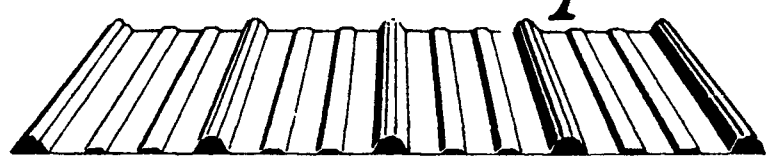
Rural Economy



Cost-efficient Centurydrain® roofing and siding is on some of the best looking buildings in the country.

Build with Centurydrain roofing and siding and you've built a money-wise structure. Full-hard, high tensile galvanized steel, and an exclusive drain channel for a dry interior give you a building that'll handle years of hard duty and hard weather. Good looking, too. Crisp lines and plenty of bright, long-lasting colors make Wheeling Centurydrain as handsome as it is economical.

Attention: Swine and Poultry Producers

Announcing:

Crude Soy Oil Now Available

With the addition of our new soybean processing facility, we now offer soybean oil as an animal nutrition product. Processing the soybeans ourselves allows us to utilize locally grown soybeans and support our local agricultural community!

Crude Soybean Oil

A product of Keystone's expelling process, this oil can be used in a wide variety of on farm applications. Crude soy oil is a natural alternative to animal fats and provides needed energy in various rations

Uses of Crude Soy Oil Include:
- Use as a high energy feed ingredient in swine and poultry diets
- Especially useful in sow lactation diets, pig starter and grow/finish diets.
- Used as an added energy source in broiler, turkey and layer feeds
- Can be used for dust control purposes.
- Can be used as a lubricant for feeding systems

Advantages of Crude Soy Oil:
- Use as a direct replacement for animal fat
- Vegetable based product.
- Holding tank does not need to be heated if temperature is above 30 degrees, which reduces storage and handling costs compared to animal fat.
- Bulk delivery, partial loads available direct to farm by Keystone Mills.
- Customer may pick up to save delivery costs

Other Soy Products Available:
- Keystone offers Golden Pro 46 XP which is 46% protein - 6-7% oil, Golden Meal 40 which is 40% crude protein with 18% oil

Keystone Mills Soybean Exchange Program
- We will take your soybeans in trade for Golden ProXP 46, Golden Meal 40.
- Contact Keystone Mills for details on our soybean exchange program featuring these quality nutritional products.

Turning brown into green.

Ever heard the old adage: "You'll only get out of it what you put into it?" We don't know how this truth originated but we know it can be applied to the subject of fertilizing and nurturing your soil. While we can't promise a field full of dollar bills, you will definitely see an appreciable rise in profits when East Coast Spreading has used their experience and their even-spreading top-notch equipment to put into your soil everything it needs to give high yields back to you!
